Athletic Group, School PTA Back Park Improvements

Two community groups expressed support for park improvements as outlined by the Hoffman Estates Park District at meetings where the June 10 referendum was detailed Tuesday.

Both the Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA) and the Twinbrook School PTA board of directors said they were favorably impressed by the plans for $1.1 million in park district projects.

Strongest support for the park district plans came from the HEAA. George Rush, president of the group, said "we unanimously passed a resolution expressing whole-hearted support for the district's plans."

He said the group will begin to set up a program of educational meetings to reach all the members of HEAA. Rush added a telephone campaign to solicit support from both HEAA members and other segments of the community will be instituted later.

"We were impressed by what the referendum has to offer in the way of improving neighborhood parks," Rush said.

"LOOK AROUND and you see that we have to upgrade the recreational facilities here to keep up with the growth of the area," he explained.

Rush stated HEAA will also be able to upgrade the HEAA programs because of the number of recreational fields that will be added if the referendum is approved.

The group had to limit its program this year because of a shortage of fields in the area.

While no resolution was passed by the Twinbrook PTA, most of the board members said they favored the program.

"We will ask our general membership to support the referendum," said Mrs. Libby Gluck, president.

MRS. GLUCK said the PTA has been very impressed with the changes the park district has undergone since February, when Al Binder took over the post of park director.

Mrs. Gluck added, however, she questions whether many persons will vote for the referendum and the increase in taxes, estimated at less than $10 per year, because of economic situations.

Meetings with other community groups are planned throughout the remainder of the month.

Aquatics Expert To Address Park Forum

A nationally known authority on aquatics programs will be one of the featured speakers at tonight's public meeting on the June 10 park improvement bond referendum presented by the Hoffman Estates Park District.

David H. Robertson, director of the swimming program at New Trier High School, Winnetka, will present information on the merits of a fully balanced aquatics program in a community.

One segment of the proposed $1.1 million development bond issue calls for constructing an indoor swimming pool at the new Hoffman Estates High School.

Tonight's meeting, part of a month-long series of sessions to present details of the district plans, is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

"We try to show how a pool is the only physical education facility that can be of equal help to boys, girls, men, women, the handicapped and every other age group," Robertson said.

HE HAS presented similar programs in recent years to a number of park districts, school boards and other civic and community groups, including organizations in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Evanston.

He said the pool can be of greatest advantage in teaching youngsters of all ages to swim.

"People are more impressed by these learn-to-swim programs than anything to do with competitive swimming," Robertson said.

The pool would be built by the park district and operated jointly by High School Dist. 211 and the park district. Discussions on the final operating agreement are now underway, according to park district director Al Binder.

Residents also will be able to obtain more information about the cost of the project and tax increases if the issue is approved.

Village Rallies To Aid Of Kidney Patient, 27

Surgery to remove both kidneys of Gerald Cody, 27, a teacher in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 is scheduled for today. The kidney surgery will be done at Billings Hospital in Chicago if all tests go well, said his mother.

This initial surgery will prepare Cody for a kidney transplant from his 31-year-old sister, Sharon.

Cody, a fourth-grade teacher at Schaumburg Elementary School, has undergone intensive kidney dialysis treatment during the past five weeks, and has suffered from a kidney disease for four years.

His fellow teachers in Dist. 54 have organized an area-wide blood drive to replace the large amounts of blood Cody will need during both operations.

In conjunction with the Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan, a May 24 blood drive has been arranged at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

ANYONE who wishes to donate blood may register by telephone anytime before that date by calling the administrative office at 528-4200. At least 150 pints are needed. To date, 31 donors have registered.

Blood will be taken from 2:30 to 6 p.m. at the school on that date. However, anyone who wishes to donate for Cody at area hospitals at other times may also do so.

It is necessary to tell the hospitals that the blood is to go to the Dialysis Department of Billings Hospital at the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics in Cody's name.

The district also has established a cash fund at the Schaumburg State Bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg, in Cody's name to help defray expenses of surgery and dialysis treatment. Approximately $1,000 in donations has been received.

Cody, formerly of Chicago, has lived in Schaumburg for four years. He is past president of the Schaumburg Education Association and presently an active member. In spite of his illness, he has lost little time from school.

Eye Expansion Of Girls' Sports

The board of education of High School Dist. 211 will consider expansion of the girl's interscholastic athletic program at its meeting today.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 1750 Roselle Rd., Palatine.

The Mid-Suburban League, which organizes athletic competitions for area high schools, has been developing a program of girls' athletics for the coming year. The expanded program was made possible by action of the Illinois High School Association last fall increasing the number of sports girls may take part in.

High School Dist. 214 approved the expanded athletic program last month.

In other action, the board will hold a discipline hearing in an expulsion case and will hear a progress report on the construction of Hoffman Estates High School.

ARTISTRY, CRAFTSMANSHIP and pure business acumen are combined in The Nail Keg, a new iron works shop at 8 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg. A vital tool in fashioning wrought iron pieces is the welder's torch, as demonstrated by Bob Cecile, one of three partners in the firm.

A New Shop In Town

Iron Business Doing 'Weld'

by BOB ANDERSEN

The cliché — "If there's a will, there's a way" — might be applied to three local men who started a new business in Schaumburg.

Strictly novices a few months ago, the trio now are competent and artistic craftsmen. They own and operate an iron works shop at 8 W. Schaumburg Rd., known as The Nail Keg.

They design, fashion and sell wrought iron pieces ranging from the more commonplace gates, room dividers, archways and railings to more custom-made pieces such as chandeliers, fireplace log holders and flower stands.

In fact, they recently made a wall bracket to hold a dinosaur's foot.

"None of us knew zilch about wrought iron works," said Bob Cecile, a partner in the enterprise with Dean Erickson and Larry Maus. Cecile and Maus live in Schaumburg. Erickson is a resident of Hoffman Estates.

Cecile explained why three men decided on a wrought iron shop when none of them knew a thing about the craft until last September.

THE IDEA blossomed during a trip through a small Wisconsin town called Antigo, about 350 miles away, Cecile said.

The partners made the acquaintance of Miles Jansen, an oldtimer in the wrought iron business.

"He got us into it," Cecile said. Once the fundamentals of the craft, including welding, were learned, the trio did a little market research. "We went to flea markets with our own pieces of wrought iron," Erickson said. "We wanted to know if the pieces would sell."

The pieces did sell. "People in this area like this kind of work," Erickson said.

The trio opened their shop in January and report business is getting healthier and healthier.

Cecile said the three are versatile and interchangeable, as far as the actual operation of the shop. They trade off the welding and manual chores, as well as tending to customers.

Erickson said the bread and butter of the business are such things as wrought (Continued on page 3)

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race tracks.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tensions in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Marital law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 8 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Bill Would Mean Windfall For Eye Doctors

Visual Exams To Be Mandatory?

by ROGER CAPETTINI

A bill that would require Illinois school children to undergo eye examinations by ophthalmologists or optometrists in addition to their school physicians by physicians was approved Tuesday by the Senate Labor and Commerce Commission.

The bill could mean a $13.5 million windfall for eye doctors across the state, according to testimony offered during the committee hearings.

The bill was passed by the House last Nov. 3. With the recommendation to pass the bill from the Senate committee, the bill now awaits action by the full Senate.

The bill would require mandatory visual examinations by optometrists or ophthalmologists of every student in the state entering kindergarten, first, fifth or ninth grades.

If made law, the bill would preempt the vision screening program that became law last August but is not mandatory until September, 1972.

PASSAGE OF THE bill has been opposed by the Illinois State Medical Society, which contends the program would cost parents more than $7 million a year and the state public aid department more than $1 million since eye examinations by optometrists and ophthalmologists cost $15 to $35.

Also opposed to the bill are: The Illinois Association of Ophthalmology; Illinois Academy of Pediatrics; Illinois Pediatric Coordinating Council; Illinois Academy of Family Physicians, and the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The Illinois State Medical Society opposes the bill because it says it will force parents to take children to an optometrist's or ophthalmologist's office for the examination.

The society pointed out there are only 400 ophthalmologists in the state as opposed to about 1,900 optometrists. Ophthalmologists have medical degrees and are qualified to treat eye diseases and ailments as they relate to the entire body. Optometrists are not licensed physicians and are not qualified to treat eye diseases.

The society has characterized the bill as a "make-work bill for optometrists."

The present screening program is given free of charge and is part of the regular school physical examination program.

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY also attacked the bill because it says the bill would prohibit family physicians or internists from conducting eye examinations. The society called that "a ridiculous requirement since optometrists themselves are not licensed physicians."

Three of four children, the medical society contends, have no visual defects and those that do presently are referred to an optometrist or ophthalmologist by the vision screening program. Citing a shortage of optometrists and ophthalmologists, especially in downstate Illinois areas, the society says passage of the bill would only aggravate the situation.

The Senate committee, dominated by Chicago Democrats, voted 8 to 3 to recommend passage of the bill.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, minority spokesman on the committee, said yesterday he voted in favor of the bill.

Graham added, however, his vote was intended "to get it out of committee and into the light of day." He said the bill cannot pass in its present form.

The senator said he does not feel the bill would prohibit the required examinations being conducted by family physicians as interpreted by the Illinois State Medical Society. "But if it does say that, it's dead," Graham said.

He said Senate staff workers are studying the bill and amendments to clarify the role of family doctors in administering the examinations are expected.

You Have Just Quit Working For Government

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a little more than four months of toll the average American worker has finally earned enough to pay the federal and local taxes he will owe next year, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said.

It said the Jan. 1 to May 10 period it took to meet tax liability was the same as 1871.

But another way, the average employee spends two hours and 51 minutes of each eight-hour day working off his tax liability.

"Rather than talk about more spending and newer taxes, government should determine just what taxpayers are getting for their present tax burden," said Arch Booth, the chamber's national vice president.

"Spending reform and control, rather than concern over where more taxes are coming from, shall occupy government's foremost concern if it is going to fulfill its responsibilities to all American taxpayers," Booth said.

'Rainstick Junction' Keeps Commuters Dry

Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters caught unprepared for rainy weather this spring again will be aided by Rainstick Junction.

Now in its eleventh year, Rainstick Junction is a cart stocked with a supply of umbrellas and placed in the main Chicago terminal each spring for the benefit of the railroad's 50,000 daily commuters.

Riders are free to borrow the umbrellas without charge. The North Western asks only that they be returned so that they will be available to the next group surprised by a sudden shower.

Rainstick Junction is filled with the umbrellas that accumulated during the previous fall and winter months in the railway's lost-and-found department and were never claimed. More than 2,100 rain shields have been distributed over the years to suburbanites caught unprepared for a Chicago rainstorm.

27,404 Face Parking Scofflaws Arrest

A total 27,404 persons face arrest in a crackdown on parking scofflaws, according to Matthew J. Danaher, clerk of the Cook County Circuit Court.

These persons acquired 10 or more parking tickets during 1971 which they refused to pay, Danaher said. Warrants for their arrest have been prepared and are being delivered to the Chicago Police Department for service.

The Scofflaw Court has brought in $6,997,733 in additional revenue and cleared up 706,396 unpaid parking tickets since 1969, said Danaher.

The announcement was accompanied by a list of 74 persons and companies who comprise the "100 Club," the group with 100 or more unpaid tickets. Eight of these persons are repeaters from previous years, Danaher said.

The top ticket getter for 1971 was a Chicago woman who received 231 tickets in 1971. The 100 Club includes two other persons who topped 200 tickets, Danaher said.

The members of the 100 Club hold a total of 9,886 unpaid tickets, an average of 133 each. All ticket totals are as of the close of business on March 30.

All scofflaws — so named because of an old English word meaning one who scoffs at the law — face fines of $25 a ticket unless they voluntarily appear in the Traffic Violations Bureau at 321 N. LaSalle, and clear up their tickets at $10 each. Those who cannot afford to pay the entire fine are usually given time to do so by the judge sitting in Scofflaw Court.

Begin Payments To Public Works Building Subcontractors

After lengthy discussion and despite the objections of several trustees, the Schaumburg Village Board agreed Tuesday to begin making payments to the 19 subcontractors who made repairs on the fire-damaged public works building.

Most of the discussion centered on the fact the settlement for damages was paid directly to the village for disbursement to the various contractors rather than being disbursed by the insurance company.

Trustees Peter Justen and Herb Aigner voted against the action. Aigner, who was most vocal in dissonance, said by making the payments, the village has little recourse if the work proves to be faulty.

"We are putting all the responsibility on our shoulders and letting the insurance company off the hook," he said.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel, who recommended the action, said the village should contact the Travellers Insurance Co. to see if it will stand behind the work and guarantee payment of any claims above the amount paid to the village.

JOHN BROWN Construction Co. was the general contractor on the project, which cost more than $30,000. It has submitted a sworn affidavit to the village naming the subcontractors on the project. Several trustees expressed concern over the possibility of other subcontractors, not on the list, claiming they performed work on the project.

Village administrator John Coste will handle the payments and secure waivers from the contractors for liens for further claims.

In other action, the board awarded contracts totaling $206,000 for the purchase of materials for road repair and improvement. The revenue for the purchases was derived from the village's share of state motor fuel tax revenue.

Village Engineer Joe Zgonina told the board supplies such as asphalt and paint for marking streets were available at a much lower price than last year. He said the village should be able to make more repairs because of the reduced price.

He also stated sidewalks along the south side of Schaumburg Road from the high school to Springguth Road should be completed next week.

THE BOARD approved construction of the first phase of a 367-unit apartment complex near Roselle and Wise roads. The development, Schaumburg Green, will be built by the Centex Corp. The cost of the development will be partially financed by state housing loans. Awarding of bids for repairs to the east wall of fire station number one were delayed because it was discovered the village had insufficient funds allocated to complete the entire project.

Contractors who bid on the project will be asked if they would do the work in two phases. The first would replace most of the wall, which is beginning to buckle and show signs of possible collapse, but not attached to the roof. The second phase would complete roof connections. They will be asked to protect the exposed area from the elements.

Tree Planting On Tap For Weekend

"Pull on a pair of rubber boots, grab a plastic pail and a shovel or spade and come on out for Project Help Saturday," urged Betty Enbysk of Schaumburg.

Mrs. Enbysk, a member of the Schaumburg Clean Environment Committee (CEC), and John Raush, her counterpart in Hoffman Estates, are in charge of this week's planting program a part of the 3-week joint village improvement and beautification project.

In Schaumburg, Mrs. Enbysk will direct planting of 5,000 saplings and more than 100 slightly larger trees at Terada "Muskra" Park.

The 16.5-acre Schaumburg Park District site is located at Salem Drive and Schaumburg Road.

Younger children (third grade level and under) will plant bird food seed, rather than dwarf canary grass at Terada Park.

According to Mrs. Enbysk, 1,400 plugs of grass will not arrive in Schaumburg by this weekend.

"BECAUSE OF extremely wet ground conditions the grass will not be available yet, but the seed planting will be substituted as a smaller children's activity,"

45 Cub Scouts Added To Project Help Work List

Forty-five Cub Scouts from Schaumburg Pack 195, members of the Schaumburg Woman's Club, and 36 biology students from James B. Conant High School have added their names to the list of Project Help volunteers.

Although The Herald's campaign to enlist 400 workers for the joint village environmental effort has nearly doubled its established goal, additional volunteers are still being accepted for the next two Saturdays.

This weekend two areas in Hoffman Estates and a 16.5 acre parksite in Schaumburg will be planted with trees and shrubs by workers.

On May 20, miles of creekbed area in both towns will be cleared of debris.

VOLUNTEERS will assemble this Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at Schaumburg High School; the following week, crews will meet at 9:30 a.m. at the northeast end of Golf-Rose Shopping Center.

Residents of all ages from both communities are being encouraged to join the Project Help work force. Volunteers will be assigned to areas of need regardless of their place of residence.

Persons wishing to join the still growing Project Help volunteer worker list are asked to call The Herald, 394-2300, Ext. 256.

Names of all individuals, groups and schools will appear in The Herald.

FROM CONANT High School the new volunteers are John Henry, Dave Driscoll, Kirk Johnson, James Matias, Mark Kaufman, Bob Neubecker, Jim Leonard, Sharon Lawson, Mary Siwe, Tim Tumilly, Paul Krausen, Trig Crawford, Eliza Gonzalez, Marie Olson, Cheryl Moore and Karen Labno.

Other Conant volunteers are Irene Lebert, Betty Brooks, Mary Newby, Cindy Augustine, Phil Kerr, Lois Latimer, Sandy Felker, Donna Perkey and Ken Hatfield.

Still more Conant volunteers are Steve Heffer, June and Jim Campbell, Tim Jones, Debbie Krick, Karen Steinke, Sharon Marzullo, Jeff Dyer, Eleanor Arnold, Jana Wood and Karen Kinsela.

Other Project Help enlistees include Hoffman Estates Trustee Virginia Hayter, Allison Watson, Connie Stupka, Laura Ditzig and Dawn Drew. Also volunteered are Mrs. Walter Steinhoff, her children Dorri, Danny, Dennis, and Doug; and Chris Sebastiani.

Officials To Get Pay Boost?

Hoffman Estates Trustee Edward Hennessy is contemplating a proposal to raise the salaries of persons elected in the future to the offices of trustee, mayor and village clerk.

The proposal, if approved by the board, would not affect the pay of any current holders unless they ran and were elected to new terms after their current terms expire.

The board discussed and generally agreed two years ago to increase trustees' salaries from the existing level of $15 to $25 for each regular board meeting attended. The trustees are not paid for meetings from which they are absent.

While there was general agreement the salary should be raised, there was an oversight and no official action was taken, said Hennessy. It had been assumed the trustees seated on the board last May would receive the salary increase, but it was realized after they took office that the raise never had officially been approved.

WHILE HENNESSY would not specify how much of an increase he is proposing this year, he said it was "about the same as two years ago."

Hennessy also is suggesting pay raises for the mayor's position and that of village clerk. He also declined to specify the amount of increase. The mayor currently earns $1,500 and the clerk either $700 or $750, he said.

The increases were suggested in a memo Hennessy sent to the mayor and trustees. He said the memo would be discussed in an executive board session, a meeting closed to the public.

iron cafe doors, room dividers, archways, window guards, indoor and outdoor railing, chandeliers and flower holders. They also offer combination wood and wrought iron shelves and stands.

The trio aims to please. They do custom work and go into homes on request to visualize and design projects.

THE DINOSAUR'S foot? Well, that is about as unusual a custom project as Erickson can recall.

A Hoffman Estates woman came into the shop sometime back with a plaster of paris model of a fossil, which was determined to be a prehistoric dinosaur's foot.

The woman's son, Erickson said, had been in New York on a highway construction site, when the fossil was dug up.

The young man, recognizing the real McCoy, seized the opportunity. He dashed off to a lumber store, purchased some plaster of paris, and made an exact replica of the fossil.

His mother wanted to hang the fossil replica on her wall and requested the partners fashion a wall bracket to hold the foot. They did.

Miss Gorgol 3rd Runnerup In National Junior Miss

Barbara Jean Gorgol of Des Plaines, Paddock Publications and Illinois' Junior Miss of 1972, Tuesday night was named third runnerup in the national Junior Miss Pageant at Mobile, Ala.

Lydia Hodson of Kentucky was named America's Junior Miss for 1972. She received a $10,000 scholarship.

Policemen Honored

Four Schaumburg policemen were among a group of suburban police honored yesterday at graduation ceremonies from the Northwest Police Academy.

The ceremonies and a luncheon were held at the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

Policemen Roger Peter, James Kuzek, Ted Pryka and Art Pedraza were among the 36 men who completed the eight-week course in basic police work.

The men were instructed in the various aspects and duties of police work including investigation, courtroom procedures and criminal law with a special emphasis on protecting a person's rights during an investigation. The course included 320 hours in actual training.

All of the men will now return to regular police duties.

First runnerup was Cindy Strike of Utah with Catherine Day of Michigan second runnerup.

Miss Gorgol received a $2,500 scholarship as well as a $1,000 national scholastic achievement award presented in preliminary judging.

For her talent presentation, Miss Gorgol played a piano solo she had composed especially for the pageant.

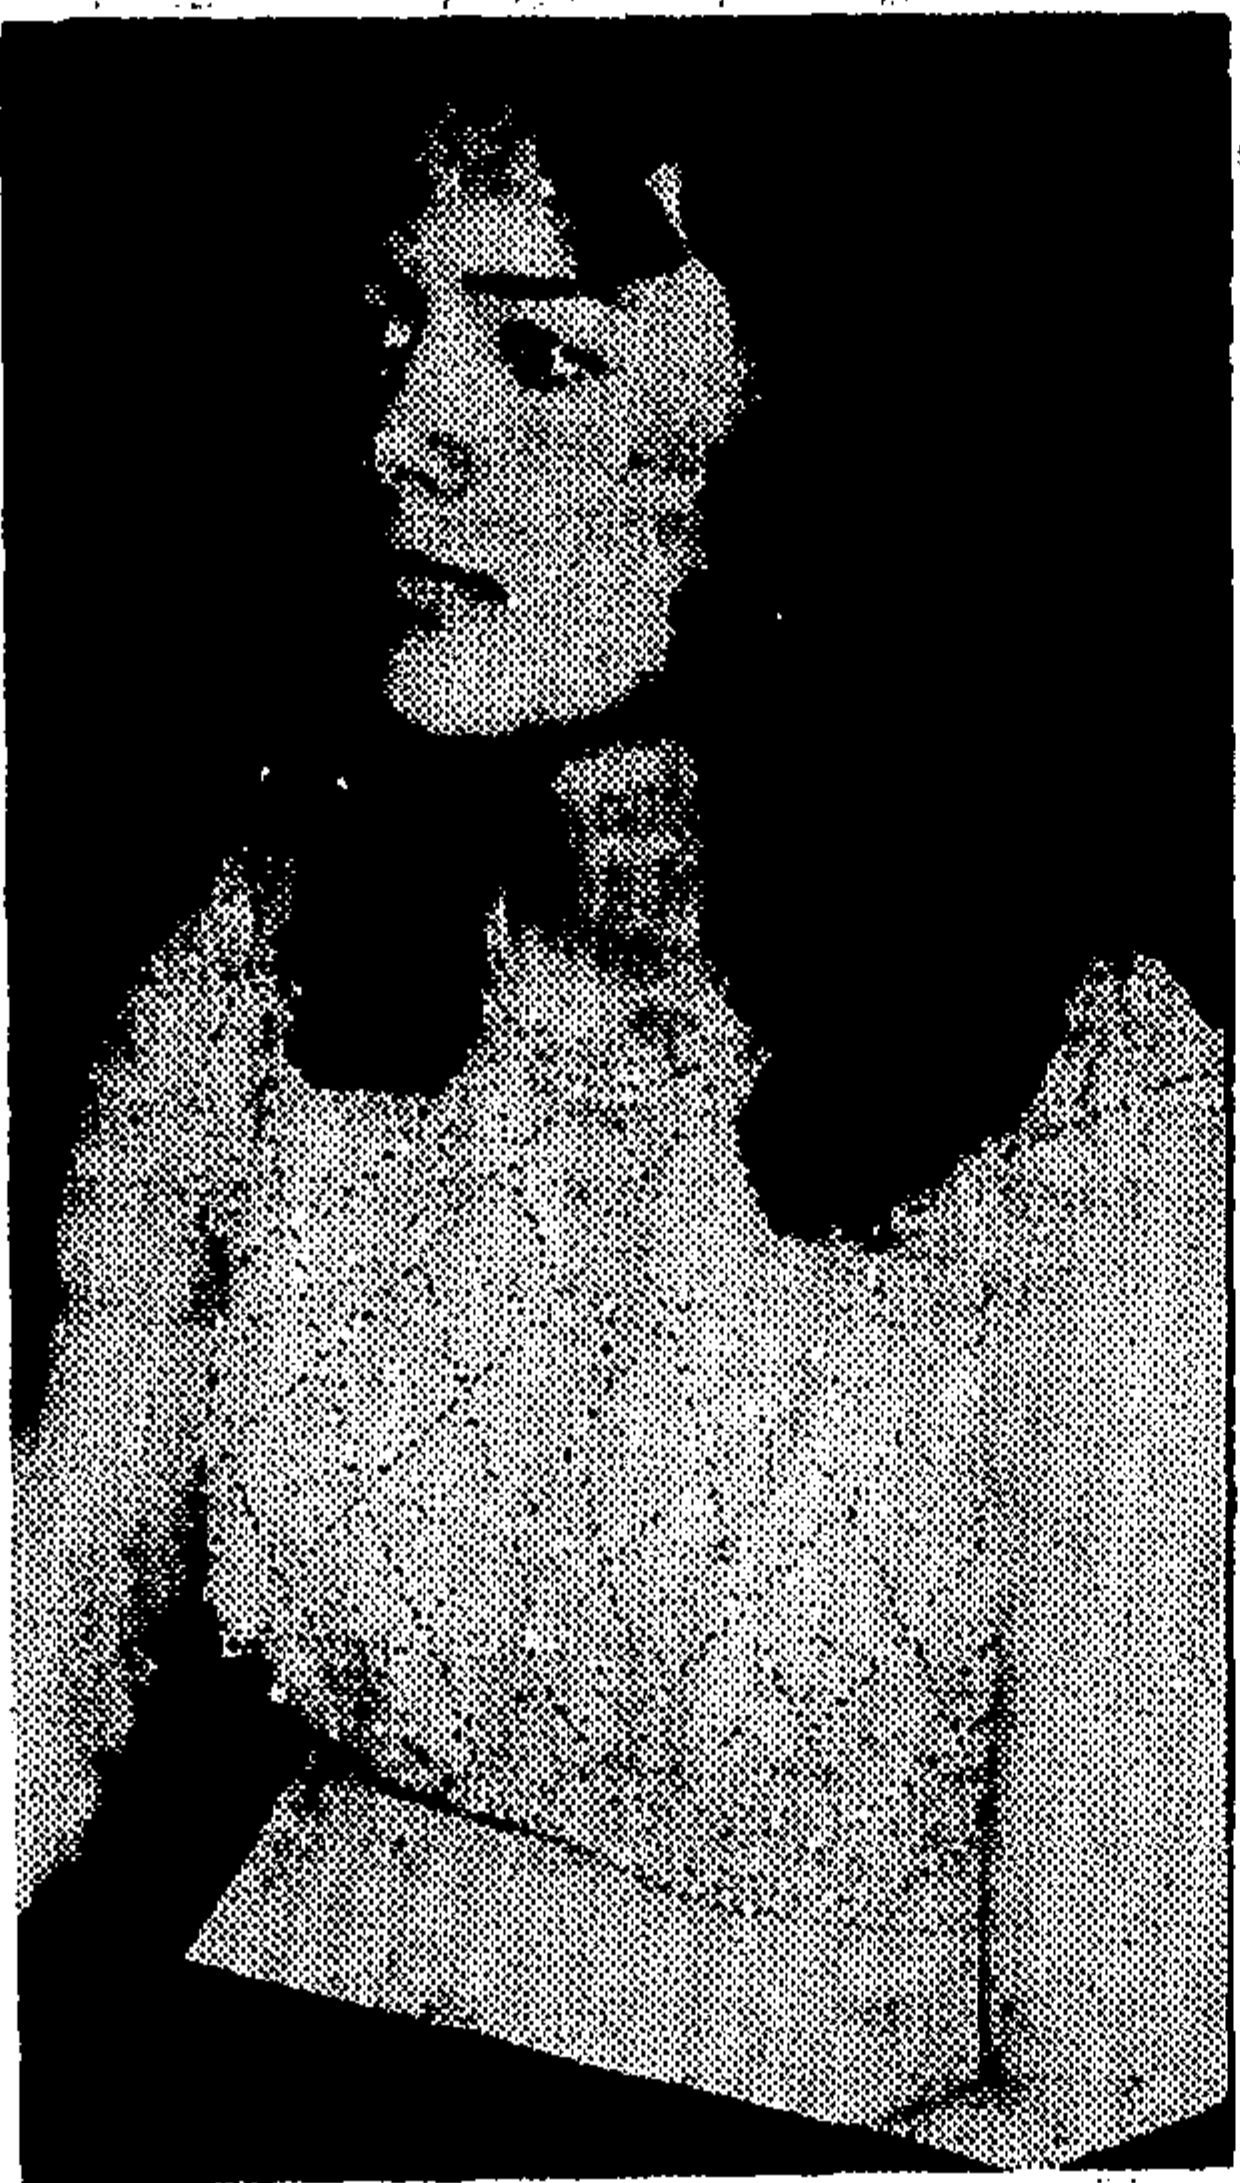

Representatives of Paddock Publications presented flowers to Miss Gorgol when she arrived at 4 p.m. yesterday at O'Hare Airport aboard Eastern Airlines Flight 242.

ARLENE STENS, of Woodlyne, N. J., America's Junior Miss of 1971, crowned her successor at the climax of the Pageant in Mobile's Municipal Auditorium. Miss Stens is a freshman at Glassboro State College in New Jersey, where she is majoring in education.

Judges for this year's Pageant were Celeste Holm, actress; I. William Hill, associate editor of the Washington Star; Debbie Meyer, triple gold medal winner in the 1968 Olympics; Arthur Gordon, novelist and staff writer for Reader's Digest; and Bob Clayton, host of NBC-TV's "Concentration."

The 50 contestants, one representing each state, were selected from among more than 80,000 high school senior girls between 16 and 18 years of age who competed at the local and state levels across the country.

Last fall Miss Gorgol was named as one of two Paddock Publications' Junior Misses in the locally sponsored pageant. She received a $500 scholarship and a chance to enter the Illinois Pageant held in Berwyn in late December. The Maine East High School senior won the state title along with a savings bond of $1000. SPONSORS OF THE national pageant this year were the John H. Breck Co., Eastman Kodak, Kraft Foods and Scott Paper Co.

The Junior Miss Pageant has been conceived as something more than the conventional beauty contest. Judging emphasizes character, intelligence, personality, achievements and personal ambitions. To even be eligible to enter, girls have to have grades of a B average or better.

More than $500,000 in college scholarships and other awards will have been presented to this year's Junior Miss participants at the local, state and national levels.

Woodfield Photo Test Judges Named

Three experts in different fields of photography have been selected to judge entries in Woodfield's first photo contest to be held May 19, 20, and 21.

They are Larry Cameron, director of photography for the Herald; Carla Romeike, teacher at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts; and Priscilla Henricks, associate merchandising editor of Harper's Bazaar.

The retail complex in Schaumburg is considered the world's largest enclosed shopping center. It may well become the world's most photographed center, since entries must relate to the center in categories of human interest, architectural design or creative techniques.

May 12 is the deadline for contest entries. Judging will be divided into two classes, professional and amateur. Exhibitors may submit five prints, black and white or color, maximum size 16 x 20 inches.

The five best prints in each class and category will receive $25 Woodfield Gift Certificates, making a total of 30 to be awarded.

All entries marked with the name, address, phone number and category of the entrant should be in the Woodfield management office before Friday, to allow time for display.

There is no entry fee, however, all prints submitted will become the property of Woodfield.

Winners will be displayed in Woodfield's Grand Court. During the festival, leading camera and photography equipment manufacturers and distributors will display products and technical and service experts will be on hand to discuss problems and answer questions.

Scenic Rivers Bill Killed By Senate

by BOB LAHEY

Little hope is seen for passage of legislation to protect some 335 miles of river shoreline in Illinois before a new Legislature is elected and returns to Springfield next January.

A Senate committee this week dammed the Scenic Rivers Bill, which would have established restrictions on land use of certain unspoiled river banks on 10 major waterways in Illinois.

Sen. John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge, Senate sponsor of the bill, told the Herald yesterday he saw little hope for resurrecting the bill this session of the Legislature. The committee vote against it means the bill is dead unless the whole Senate should vote to discharge the committee and bring the bill to the floor. "I just don't see the votes to accomplish that," said Carroll.

The bill was killed by an 8-3 vote in the Agriculture and Conservation Committee. Carroll pointed out that the nature of that committee probably was partly responsible for the death of the scenic rivers Bill.

"Interests of agriculture and conservation are often at opposites," he declared.

"They simply are not compatible in the same committee."

CARROLL POINTED out that the Senate formerly had separate committees on agriculture and on conservation. The two were combined for the first time in the current legislative session. Carroll said he hoped to see them separated again in the next session.

The Scenic Rivers Bill was passed in the House last summer with relatively little difficulty after a series of amendments were accepted by its sponsors to make it more palatable to private interests.

It sat in the Agriculture and Conservation Committee from June 14, 1971, until its demise Tuesday.

It encountered opposition that ranged from industries which extract sand and gravel from riverbeds to landowners such as Rep. Lester Cunningham, R-Belvidere, who stoutly defended his right to construct fences across the Kishwaukee River, where he owns dairyland on both sides of the river.

Areas that would have been protected by the bill included some on the Fox and Des Plaines rivers, and a two-mile stretch of the Mississippi River, which environmentalists say is the nesting ground of one-quarter of the world's remaining bald eagle population.

Winning Bridge

If you don't approve of North's jump to four spades, we must report that our old friend Y was sitting North and his partner Z South.

Y had watched Z make so many difficult hands for West, Whitehead, Lenz and Foster back in the days of auction that he automatically raised him with any excuse whatsoever.

West made the best opening lead of a

Then he ruffed a club in dummy and led another diamond.

East discarded a heart and Z ruffed again. Now he ruffed a second club in dummy and another diamond in his own hand. East discarded a second heart on that fourth diamond, but it did him no good.

Z simply played his king of clubs. West took two club tricks, but then had to lead a heart. Z went up with dummy's queen and collected the rest of the tricks.

"You get better as you get older," beamed Y. "Could they have found a defense to beat you?"

Teaching Positions Scarce

by BETSY BROOKER

One of the oldest and safest professions in the world — teaching — is slowly but surely being transformed into a job applicant's nightmare.

Teaching jobs still exist. But there are not enough to go around.

Officials in the Illinois education office predict a 7½ per cent increase in teacher graduates this spring, to a total of 18,000. They say between five and ten thousand of the approximately 108,000 fulltime teachers in Illinois cannot find jobs in the profession.

According to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis, "The teaching job shortage has reached gigantic proportions in Illinois."

"Unless something drastic happens to ease the schools' financial situation, we will have a bigger surplus this fall than we had last year," added Darrell Elder, assistant director of teacher placement in the state office. "There is no way all of these teachers are going to find jobs."

The teacher surplus began reaching a national crisis level at the outset of this decade. A recent U.S. Department of Labor survey predicts there will be 4,100,000 applicants for public school jobs in the 1970s compared with only 2,400,000 job openings.

If the present ratio of teachers to pupils continues there will be a surplus of about 700,000 teachers by 1975, according to the U.S. Office of Education.

THE POPULAR THEORY behind the surplus is twofold: a baby boom and budget cuts. Today's younger teachers are part of the baby boom after World War II. Compounding the situation, according to a National Education Association (NEA) study, is the fact that the birth rate dipped in the early 1960s, putting fewer students in the early grades now.

In addition, says the NEA, school boards are often tempted to hire the cheapest and least experienced teachers in an effort to economize in the face of mounting costs and shrinking funds. And when budget cuts come, teaching staff positions are usually the first to go.

Rather than cut out teaching positions, the schools should add positions, say some educators. In "Staffing the Schools," Bernard McKenna recommended a formula of 68 teachers per 1,000 pupils. But the national average is 50.5 teachers per 1,000 pupils.

"If we upgrade our schools to meet Twentieth Century needs," said NEA president Donald Morrison, "then we must fully utilize the highly professional talent now available." With a proper teacher-pupil ratio he believes there would be a shortage, not a surplus in teachers today.

As for budget cuts, Morrison says, "It is deplorable that at the same time higher educational standards are needed, the nation spends more money in consuming alcohol or buying cosmetics than it does on education."

To offset the surplus, universities are raising entrance requirements and improving counseling procedures. Elder reports that the University of Illinois is screening education college applicants with an entrance exam. Other universities are raising their grade point entrance requirements.

"In the long run the students in education colleges today are brighter and more determined," said Elder.

"In the past, teaching was not a firm goal but rather a kind of insurance for a vast number of students," said Louis Deprin, chairman of the Northern Illinois University Elementary Education Department. "This was especially true of the young women who anticipated marriage soon after graduation."

BUT NOW, this type of student is being driven away from the teaching profession by the unfavorable job market. Deprin says it is "not the responsibility of educators to discourage students. But we do have a responsibility to inform them as to what the situation is."

One of the first things a counselor advises a prospective teacher is to choose an unpopular area of teaching. According to Geoffrey Moor, U.S. Commission of Labor statistics, there is still a demand for persons trained to teach math, technical subjects, vocational and industrial subjects and physical sciences in addition to specialists trained to teach the mentally retarded and physically handicapped. The greatest surplus is in the social sciences.

"Teaching opportunities may be relatively numerous in urban ghettos, rural districts and other geographic areas where working and living conditions are unfavorable," added Moore.

The state education office has joined the universities' struggle to find jobs for the teachers in shortage areas. Recently the office cosponsored a job opportunity seminar with the Australian teacher recruitment service. Elder reports that 14 teachers signed up the first night of the seminar and another dozen the next day.

The Australian government is looking for certified high school teachers with 42 semester hours of experience in a given subject. The government gives the teachers a travel allowance, provided they teach in Australia for at least one year.

IF THE CANDIDATE does not want to go to Australia and does not fit into any of the other shortage areas, then Elder says he advises him to work on a master's degree at night and to keep available during the day as a substitute or tutor.

"It's important for the teacher to keep his foot in the door," said Elder. "We tell him to keep trying because it is the persistent candidate who gets the job."

If the teacher can't get a substitute's job and needs a steady income, then Elder advises him to find a position related to teaching — such as teacher aide. If a teacher takes a job completely unrelated to his field then Elder says he is going to have a hard time getting back in.

While the situation may depress many teachers it offers a sign of hope for some public school administrators and university officials. In the long run, they say, the teacher surplus will result in an upgrading of the teaching profession.

Court Fight Over Road May Delay Des Plaines Plant

by LEON SHURE

The City of Des Plaines may have a new weapon to continue its seven-year fight against construction of a $48 million Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant here.

MSD officials this week asked the city to give up ownership of a three-block section of road to clear the way for construction of a huge sewage plant on a west side Des Plaines site. Several city officials yesterday said that a city fight in the courts against vacating part of Wille Road could delay plant construction for years.

The plant, which could process up to 100 million gallons of sewage daily at full capacity, was proposed by MSD to meet the growing needs of the Northwest suburbs.

The plant would receive sewage from a 38,000-acre area, including Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Elk Grove Village and parts of Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

THE CITY has fought the plant because officials have felt it would create obnoxious and unhealthy odors in a 12,000-resident neighborhood that already is subjected to air and noise pollution from O'Hare Airport jets. MSD officials have said "no odors" would come from the plant.

No meeting has been scheduled yet about the Wille Rd. request.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday that the request will be studied by city council committees. The council voted in December to wage a "no-holds-barred" fight against the plant no matter how much legal fees would cost the city.

A spokesman for MSD attorney Allen Lavin told the Herald yesterday that the vacating of Wille is necessary to allow construction of the huge plant. If the city refuses to give up ownership, MSD will be forced to condemn the road, the spokesman said.

According to the two aldermen whose 8th Ward includes the 106-acre Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road plant site, the MSD may not have a right to condemn a street owned by another public body. Wille is needed by the city for proper development of area, said Ald. Alan Abrams (8th).

Wille cuts through the bottom third of the MSD-owned site, which is bounded by Oakton on the north, Marshall Drive on the east, the Northwest Tollway on the South and Elmhurst on the west. Wille intersects Marshall and Elmhurst.

VINCENT FLOOD, MSD assistant attorney, said the plant would be constructed west of a lake on the eastern third of the property. Treated sewage water would be poured into Higgins-Willow Creek, which flows through the property.

MSD wants Wille vacated from Marshall to Elmhurst. Marshall could then be extended to Oakton, to give road access from Wille east of the MSD site, Flood said.

Wille now presents some hazardous traffic problems where it intersects with Elmhurst, Flood said. Traffic turning into Elmhurst or into Wille blocks traffic on Elmhurst, at an unusually congested spot where cars are coming and going from the tollway, he said.

City boundaries end along Wille about two blocks east of Elmhurst and the MSD is now conferring with Elk Grove Township officials about vacating the township's section of Wille.

Flood also noted that the MSD is considering a city request for a storm sewer right-of-way through its property from Oakton. This would be discussed with the city at the same time as the Wille vacating request is discussed, he said.

Ald. Abrams said that vacating Wille would "dramatically affect development of the west side of Des Plaines." Without Wille, no east-west access from Elmhurst to Mount Prospect Road would exist between Oakton and Higgins road, a large area, he said.

FACTORY properties and a proposed $28 million hotel-exposition hall development east of Marshall might be adversely affected by closing Wille. Extending Marshall to Oakton is a "poor solution," he said.

Abrams also said that questions of home-rule power may be involved in an MSD move to condemn city property. The city lost a six-year court battle last year when the Illinois Supreme Court ruled that MSD powers as a special district were greater than Des Plaines zoning authority — which would have forbidden plant construction.

But this decision was handed down under the old Illinois Constitution. Abrams feels that the new constitution, which went into effect last summer clearly allows more power to home-rule cities such as Des Plaines.

Abrams also said that the city is now seeking hearings before the state and federal environmental protection agencies to block grants for the plant construction.

Sam Is 'A Man Again'

Alcoholism Now Can Be Overcome

by MARTHA FRANCIS

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Sam is an alcoholic, one of the more than nine million alcoholics in the United States. But he is different from many of them.

He is working hard at his job. He is active in his church. He is respected by his family and friends. It wasn't always this way.

In 1969, when he was 47, as Sam tells it, he felt he was "the loneliest man in the world." Now — it's been two years since he's had a drink — "I'm living like a man again. Before that I was an animal."

Sam's story — and that of many Milwaukeeans and others around the United States — is that of the De Paul Rehabilitation Hospital and a unique program that involves local industry.

De Paul was started by Archbishop Cardinal Meyer in 1958 as a halfway house for homeless men. It could accommodate 45 then. Today it has grown to be a comprehensive rehabilitation center with inpatient facilities for 102 and outpatient facilities for many more.

It provides hospital care, diagnostic evaluation, and treatment and rehabilitation services for any adult suffering from the disease of alcoholism. The patient, his family and his employer are all integral parts of the treatment.

Very few of the patients — a total of some 2,500 a year — are voluntary. Joseph De Rosa, De Paul's rehabilitation director, says that most are referred by agencies, physicians and the clergy, with the largest single referral by industry.

ACCORDING TO a survey by the National Council on Alcoholism, drinking costs business and industry an estimated $4.2 billion annually. About 5.3 per cent of the nation's work force is alcoholic.

A typical Milwaukee example of an industrial alcoholism program is that of the Allen-Bradley Co., where Sam — not his real name — is employed.

The firm has a three-person team headed by Mrs. Myrian Meyers, director of nursing. Also on the team are Ted Hutton, the company's personnel director, and Mr. K., an alcoholic employee who acts as alcoholism counselor to the firm.

Once an employee has been identified as an alcoholic — usually through a change of work habits, attitude and through various trips to the medical department — Hutton becomes involved.

"We tell him what the company position is and let the employee know that his job will be protected if he will actively seek help," Hutton said.

Mr. K. is then brought in as an "identifying factor" and as sort of an alter-ego to the patient. He takes the patient to De Paul, advises him, and then helps out with his family life and any financial problems.

"If the washing machine breaks down or if a child needs help because of school problems, the wife is expected to call Mr. K., not her husband," Mrs. Meyer said.

"It wouldn't do any good if during a lecture at De Paul, a patient is sitting in the back of the room with his mind on bills and loans instead of thinking of his problem with alcohol," Mr. K. said.

SAM SAID HE realized he was "sick" in 1966. He had problems with his legs and had trouble walking. His doctor gave Sam some pills.

"They were no help. I just kept on drinking," Sam said. "I didn't realize then I was sick. Liquor makes you insane. It's a powerful drug and I was obsessed with it."

Sam said there was one time he tried to stop and succeeded for 16 days. A retirement party was his downfall.

"After two drinks I went back to work and that evening I couldn't wait to get

'Hard' Measles Outbreak Reported Throughout Area

Several dozen cases of "hard" measles have been reported recently in the Northwest suburbs, and Cook County Health Department officials urge that persons receive vaccines against the disease.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the county health department's division of preventive medicine, acknowledged that "an outbreak of several dozen cases" has been noted by the county since the first of the year. She said that 90 per cent of all persons who contracted the disease were not immunized.

According to Dr. Rasmussen, the "hard" measles is being reported, and few cases of Rubella, or three-day measles, have been noted.

The "hard" measles, which Dr. Rasmussen said may have serious complications, has symptoms of high fever and a cough, followed by a rash for at least a week. Rubella is less serious.

She said the increasing number of cases may be due to "some people who were confused about the Rubella vaccine." There are two separate vaccines to combat the diseases, she said "and if there is any doubt, a second shot won't hurt."

A number of children in Elk Grove Village have caught the disease, according to medical officials there. The health department has no breakdown of measles cases among villages, but Dr. Rasmussen observed that "many cases have been teenagers."

Area residents may obtain additional information from the Cook County Health Department District Office in Des Plaines at 827-5188.

Arboretum Tours Now Under Way

Morton Arboretum spring tours, via open-air buses, are now under way.

Leaving from the main parking lot at the arboretum, the bus makes a seven-mile loop through the grounds, passing the rhododendron collection, the crab-apple collection, the lilac collection, and through native woods carpeted with wildflowers. During the 50-minute tour, an arboretum guide explains botanical and ecological features and tells about the history and purposes of the arboretum.

Tours leave at 2 p.m. weekdays and at 1, 2 and 3 p.m. Saturdays. There are no tours Sundays. Each trip can accommodate 30 passengers, and the charge is 50 cents. These tours are intended for families and individuals, not for organized groups. Tours will be canceled in wet or cold weather.

Visitors are reminded that the arboretum entrance and parking fee is now $1 per car.

Offer Jewish Study For Kids

Registration is being accepted for an early childhood center this summer conducted by the Board of Jewish Education of Metropolitan Chicago.

The three- and six-week sessions are open to Northwest suburban youngsters between 3 and 5½ years of age by June 15.

The program will be conducted from 9:30 to noon at the Ivy Hill School, 2211 N. Burke, Arlington Heights.

The center is to involve an educational program based on Jewish studies.

The three-week sessions will be offered on a three and five days per week schedule from July 5 to 21, and from July 24 to Aug. 11. The cost is $85 for three days a week, and $70 for five days.

The six week session will run from July 5 to Aug. 11, also on three and five-day-a-week options. The three day cost is $65; five day, $125.

THE FEES WILL BE reduced 10 per cent if paid in full by June 1. Registration will close June 15.

If there is sufficient demand, an afternoon session may be offered.

Instructors in the summer program hold degrees in early childhood education, and have worked in Jewish studies and taught Jewish nursery schools.

Plans are being formulated for a 10-month program to begin in September.

For additional information, parents are asked to contact Mrs. Marvell Ginsburg and the Board of Jewish Education, 72 E. 11th St., Chicago, or call 427-5570.

Federal Grant For Harper

Fred Valsvil, director of Placement and Student Aids at Harper College in Palatine, has received word from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's office that a federal grant will provide funds for special employment for two Harper students who are veterans.

Valsvil explains that funds will pay $275 per month at 20 hours a week for two service veterans whose responsibility will be to inform other veterans of their benefit opportunities.

"This information," he continued, "would involve all benefits — including those in the areas of education, Vietnam bonuses, health, mortgages, and the availability of the Illinois Veterans Commission."

Funds for the positions were established through the Veterans' Outreach Program, according to Valsvil, because only about 25 per cent of the Vietnam veterans are now taking advantage of benefits available to them.

To be considered for the jobs, applicants must be veterans and Harper College students. They cannot be employed at any other job, either full or part time.

"We will need individuals who are articulate, and who can relate to the veterans," Valsvil said.

Sidewalks are pretty durable but they don't last forever. A rough winter, heavy spring rains both take their toll. Cracks turn into large breaks and loose dirt underneath may wash away causing the sidewalk to settle or break or both.

The result is a sidewalk that is unsafe. Let someone trip over it and you may have a lawsuit on your hands.

If you want to avoid the heavy job of lifting and leveling, then repair cracks as soon as they appear. This will prevent them from getting bigger, will also keep water from getting underneath, which in turn loosens the base.

Enlarge the crack so that it is larger at the bottom than the top. Use a hammer and cold chisel. Clean out loose material. Wet thoroughly and fill with concrete patch.

MAKE THE PATCH slightly higher, then level it. Keep wet for a few days until the patch is thoroughly hard.

If the rest of the sidewalk is smooth, use a wood float to make the patch smooth. If the sidewalk is rough, then use a metal trowel.

When a sidewalk has settled so that it is out of level with the rest of the walk, you will have to lift it and add material under it to raise the level of the base.

Don't try to lift more than one section. Several sections may be in one slab about 12 feet long. If the slab has not cracked at one of the cross lines already, you will have to crack it with a cold chisel.

LOOSEN THE SOIL along the edge and remove from under the walk a strip of dirt the same depth as the sunken slab and a few inches wide. Use a crowbar to raise the edges all around. Don't lift, just free the edges.

Then lift one edge and work a block underneath it. Get it up about a foot or so and prop it with short lengths of two-by-fours.

Use gravel or cinders for fill. Shovel them under the slab and spread and level with a rake. Never reach under the slab. Break up chunks.

Repeat the process all around. For lifting, use a two-by-four with scrap lumber for leverage. If you've done a good job loosening with crowbar you should have little trouble. It's smart however to get someone to help you with the job. And keep youngsters away from the site.

Remember to repair the crack between sections of the slab. You can make a fast repair by sealing the crack with asphalt and sprinkling sand on it so that you can walk over it.

Veterans have experience in dozens of fields. And hundreds of specialties... many of them hard to find. Trade skills. Technical skills. Professional and supervisory skills.

In fact, the Services spend some $3 billion a year on training! And there's over $1 billion more available for training through the GI Bill and the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Gene's Proposals Win House Backing

by BOB LAHEY

Catching up on the mail: Various legislative proposals by State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, have been recommended for passage by various committees in the Illinois House of Representatives in recent days.

Among them is a proposal that would provide state aid for School District 28 in Mount Prospect, to enable the district to provide services for the financially troubled Maryville Academy for dependent children.

Other Schlickman proposals that received committee approval were:

- Scholarships for retraining of teachers in special education.
- Elimination of the sales tax on medicines, drugs and medical supplies.
- Authorization for counties and municipalities to contract with owners of apartment complexes to regulate parking and traffic.

Edmund J. Kucharski

ONE PACKAGE of bills to broaden protection for buyers of new homes was defeated by a 10-8 committee vote, but Schlickman said he would continue to seek passage of similar measures.

Due for committee consideration this week is a bill introduced in the current session by Schlickman, to appropriate $500,000 for a driver testing facility in the Northwest suburbs.

MRS. CHERI KOMAIKO, 9612 Greenwood, Des Plaines, recently was elected North suburban area chairman of the Young Republican Organization of Cook County.

A member of the Maine Township

Young Republicans, she was campaign coordination for Loren Smith's 1970 campaign for the state legislature in the 1st District. She also has been active in campaigns by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, President Nixon, and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th.

COOK COUNTY Republican Chairman Edmund J. Kucharski, candidate for Illinois secretary of state, has reacted strongly to a suggestion by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dan Walker that he resign as a Chicago ward committeeman.

Walker last week said he had asked that Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie ask Kucharski to quit the party post. He noted then that he had asked three Democrats, U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, Senate candidate; Neil Hartigan, candidate for lieutenant Governor; and state Sen. Thomas G. Lyons, to resign their jobs as ward committeemen.

Walker failed to note however that none of the three has complied with his request.

New Safety Standards Set For Nation's School Buses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new safety standard has been issued by the government, designed to protect 20 million children from unsafe school buses and "independent and untrained drivers."

The Transportation Department set new requirements Tuesday for school bus maintenance, driver training and exterior identification. The rule will affect an estimated 256,000 buses and 275,000 drivers, and the states are required to implement it "as soon as possible."

Under the standard, "standees" will be prohibited in school buses, and drivers will be required to wear lap belts.

States also will be required to:

- Set up a single agency "having primary responsibility for pupil transportation."
- Inspect buses "at least semi-annually."
- Require daily pretrip inspection of buses by drivers.
- Tighten school bus driver "selection and training programs."

—Require pupils to participate in emergency evacuation drills at least twice during the school year.

The standard also requires more uniformity among school buses. The words "school bus" must be printed in letters no less than eight inches high. Buses must be "glossy yellow" in color and equipped with flashing red warning signals.

School Supply Costs High: Panel

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois school districts are spending between $7.5 million and $12 million a year too much for supplies, the Illinois Budgetary Commission said yesterday.

And even that figure might be conservative, according to a commission report, because it did not include paper supplies — "a category of great potential savings."

Dr. Mark Chadwin, executive director of the commission, said the report was based on a study of practices and costs in 13 districts.

One of the major cost-saving recommendations of the report is for "three-tier" purchasing system.

THE FIRST TIER would be purchasing under joint state contracts — through the Department of General Services — when advantageous to the districts involved. Chadwin said only 82 educational units, some of them universities now take advantage of this system, which can save from 9 to 14 per cent on some items.

The second tier would be cooperative purchasing by districts not under joint state contracts but where savings would be substantial through quantity purchase. Cooperative purchasing of this type, he said, has cut costs an estimated 25 to 33 per cent in suburban St. Louis and in Oregon.

The final tier would be continued individual purchasing where no other system would apply.

THE METHOD OF purchasing, the report said, is not only of interest to the state but might eventually have a bearing on state aid.

"While school procurement questions are seemingly local community and school board problems," the report said, "in fact, they are already a valid area of concern for state government as well."

Citing the fact state government provided about 37 per cent of the total elementary and secondary education budget for local schools in fiscal 1972, the report said:

"Clearly, where so much state money is involved, the legislature and the executive branch — as well as the local communities and boards — should have an active interest in seeing that it is spent in the most efficient manner."

The report also suggested some other methods of possible cost-cutting, including studies of warehousing, joint purchasing and school insurance, a "bus fair" for mass purchase of school buses and a legislative resolution urging efforts to cut costs.

Job Outlook Improving: Educator

The job outlook for June graduates has turned the corner, says one educator.

The class of 1971 hit a low point in hiring somewhat like the Depression, and hiring is looking up according to Northwestern University's Director of Placement, Frank S. Endicott. He detects an employment increase of 10 to 15 per cent at the bachelor's level, but notes that much of the hiring has been delayed until summer.

Dr. Endicott is appearing this Saturday in a seminar titled "Jobs for June," sponsored by the NU Young Alumni Council to advise undergraduates on job-hunting theory and techniques. With him will be Dean Robert Baker, dean of the Northwestern graduate school, and Dr. Frank Cassell, professor of industrial relations and policy. The seminar will be in Fisk Hall on the Northwestern campus in Evanston from 1 to 4 p.m.

The panel will discuss the impact of a university education on employability. Questions from the floor will be welcomed. The students will then split up for vocational seminars in four career fields: journalism and media, law and public service, business and engineering and education. Prominent Northwestern alumni and some just establishing themselves in their fields are represented on each panel.

Featured in the media seminar are: Sun-Times Managing Editor Ralph Otwell; WMAQ-TV Editorial Director Dylan Smith; Alan Hall, director at WGN-TV; Alvo Albini, Loyola University director of public relations; and Dave Greene, Medill graduate student.

DAN WALKER JR. will represent Northwestern Law School on the Law and Public Service panel, as will Barbara Caulfield and Dr. Frank Spalding, the school's associate dean. Also on the panel are: Richard Devine, Mayor Daley's administrative assistant; Professor Robert Bennett, president of the Chicago Council of Lawyers; and Professor John McKnight, asst. director of Northwestern's Center for Urban Affairs.

Joining Dr. Endicott on the business and engineering panel are: Richard Cole, associate director of cooperative education of NU's Technological Institute; professor of industrial relations and policy Charles Hofer; First National Bank of Evanston's director of communications Wendy Files; and John Hedbrink, a student in the Graduate School of Management.

The education panel will cover all teaching levels with: Ann Scott, Evanston Township High School teacher; her principal, Nick Baziotas; Dr. Mildred Tauber, college supervisor at National College of Education; assistant principal of Beardsley School, Tom Cross; and John Moyer, a graduate student in education.

"Jobs for June" is free and open to the public.

Each group discussion will be followed by an informal coffee period in which students will be invited to discuss their individual concerns with panel members and young NU alums in the audience.

Viet 'Dogface' Never Saw The Enemy

by TOM TIEDE

TRUC GIANG DISTRICT, Vietnam — Alas, some people just never get the word. Take Le Thanh Chi. He's a platoon leader in South Vietnam's Regional Forces (National Guard) but for some reason he has yet to get the hang of this thing called Vietnamization.

For the first three decades of his life, the skinny, berry-brown Mr. Chi was merely a humble peasant here in the Mekong Delta. He knew from nothing about politics. Even less about war. Minimally educated, patch-pocketed, his sole concerns on earth were a one-chair barbershop he ran, a toothless wife and an assortment of children.

Then, in 1962, national duty called, rather insistently. Chi was hustled out of his routine, in mid-shave so to speak, given some hand-me-down fatigues, a World War II rifle, and told he was chosen to help save his political district from the destruction of communism.

Who, me? he said.

AT FIRST, SOLDIER Chi did not take his new responsibilities very seriously. At second, he didn't either. Nor at third. He was assigned to a ragtag unit near his home, given somewhat unimaginative orders about defending to the death, etc., but except for the uniform, and the sudden flush of being part of the historic struggle, Chi's life did not change all that much. He found military duty to be something he could take or leave. So, mostly he left. Whenever he could he returned to his barbershop to carry on as before.

And why not? The Regional Forces, then, were a joke. Mostly misfits who could not qualify for regular army status, they were a defense force on paper only. Figures for the government propaganda machine. A means by which the leaders could say that 250,000, half a million, or however many, "bold patriots" were organized under arms to defend (to the death) the nation's villages and hamlets and citizens.

Le Thanh Chi

Besides, Chi learned, even if some of the RF's were "bold patriots" they were still mostly useless. The United States was taking over the war. Yank troops and guns and money and ships assumed all, or nearly all, of the responsibility. What good was a former barber who couldn't shoot straight alongside an infantry grunt with a rifle that could fire 700 rounds a minute?

SO IT WAS that soldier Chi shrugged his way through the next eight or nine years. Playing warrior. His job was to help defend the Truc Giang District headquarters here and it was a sleepy task. In the big picture, the headquarters was fairly important (on a main route between Saigon and the Delta). In the big picture, there were thousands of enemy soldiers lurking in the region. But soldier Chi never saw the big picture, never saw the enemy for that matter, and at worst was made occasionally uncomfortable by rockets fired around his home.

Then, late in the 1960s, things changed. Or so were supposed to. The new word was the Americans were going to leave, and the Vietnamese were taking over their own fight. Chi was indoctrinated, a little. He was given a new weapon, a new uniform, and from now on, hear this, there would be no more goofing off, gold bricking, wise-assing et al. Vietnamization. That's what it was called. Shape up.

Who, me? Chi asked again.

And so the Americans did leave, for the most part. And the Vietnamese did take over, at least largely. And the bold patriots of the Regional Forces were ordered, this time for real, to defend to the death.

BUT LE THANH Chi, somehow, never really got the word.

The other night here, an unknown force of Viet Cong guerrillas mortared Truc Giang District headquarters with 150 shells. Then they followed up with sapper, hand grenade and small arms attacks.

Soldier Chi was having coffee with a friend when it started. They ran outside to see what was happening and the friend was killed.

Chi got scared. What to do? He decided quickly.

"I could not see anything but fire and smoke," he says, remembering. "The houses were exploding and the people were yelling. There was nothing I could do. I ran down the road to a bunker (a friend's house, a mile away) and stayed under a bed until it was over."

The battle lasted several hours. The district headquarters was overrun twice. Defense, except for some American advisers, was almost nonexistent. Nine civilians and 18 soldiers lost their lives.

Le Thanh Chi has still never seen the enemy.

"I don't ever want to," he says.

HOW THE RICH GET RICHER

It's really very simple. The Rich get richer by letting their money make more money. You can do the same.

You've heard a lot about the successes of the Rich in the stock and real estate markets. Here you can both gain — or lose — a lot of money. If you might need your money in a hurry, you risk having to sell your investments for a lot less than you paid for them. These are good investments for those who can afford to take risks or those who have a substantial base of savings behind them.

But very few of us are rich, or even on the road to being rich. Very likely you are most concerned with keeping the money you've already got and seeing it grow enough to prepare you for retirement or to provide you with extra income.

For people like yourself the best way to put your money to work may be 6% Certificates of Deposit from Palatine Savings and Loan. These certificates combine a high yield with the safety and convenience of a savings account.

Risk? None! Your certificate is insured just like a savings account. And the interest rate is guaranteed for two years or more. Return? 6% per annum compounded daily to yield a high 6.18% yearly — and without costly brokerage charges. That's earnings of $309.15 per year on a $5,000 investment or $1,236.60 on a $20,000 investment, if left in for a full year. Availability? With a 6% certificate you agree to keep a minimum of $5,000 with us for two years. But if you really need it, you can have your money on demand with the loss of only 90 days interest.

Some financial institutions are lowering their certificate rates. We are not. If you have $5,000 or more of hard earned money that you want to put to work, complete the coupon below.

Legislature's Not ALL Bad

In recent years, it has been difficult to find anything good to say about the Illinois legislature. But last week, in a flurry of unabashed bipartisan cooperation, the legislature opted for the public interest — a commendable step.

The legislature passed HB 3636, a bill which places the power to license, for home rule communities, back where it belongs — in the hands of the state.

And Gov. Richard Ogilvie signed the bill, too. That's another plus for the people of Illinois.

If the bill had been defeated again—a similar bill failed to escape a Senate filibuster last year — small businessmen and professionals, ranging from real estate brokers to undertakers to physicians — would have been at the mercy of a hodge-podge of local licensing powers.

Under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, home rule communities would have the right to license professionals and certain occupations. It could set up the following dilemma for a real estate broker, for example:

A broker opens an office and plans to serve the Northwest suburbs. However, before he moves in, the home rule communities of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Park Ridge and Hoffman Estates pass licensing ordinances which will cost him a great deal of money.

Some of the communities establish reasonable fees. Some perhaps act in the manner of the south suburb of Harvey, which recently hiked its licensing fee from $35 to $1,000.

Imagine if a broker, for no particular reason, has gained a bad reputation. Scrupulous villages might place tough standards for the firm to pass, while down the road a less careful community might set no standards at all.

The situation could become ludicrous if a physician, in treating a patient in a community in which he does not have an office, is forced to pay a steep licensing fee before he can treat.

On what basis, furthermore, could a community license physicians? Would the licensing be a rubber stamp procedure, or would a physician be forced to take a medical exam — and would a village government be competent to administer such an exam?

Clearly, the entire process is better left with the state to set overall standards — for home rule and non-home-rule communities alike.

In approving HB 3636, which was authored by Brian Duff, R-Willmette, the legislature responded in part to the loud complaints of real estate brokers and others who might have fallen victim to a patchwork of local licensing. The legislature's action, however, smacks of responsiveness rather than catering to one special interest group.

Now, if the Legislature can show similar unity and pass other badly needed measures, such as establishment of an interim state board of education, a new era will have begun.

Two-Deck Elevators

It would seem that they've gone about as far as they can go in the elevator business, except maybe take them higher and higher.

But there's a new wrinkle — the double-decked elevator, with two cars, one atop the other, in a single car frame.

Chicago already has three big buildings with such elevators in use or under construction. The 56-story First International Building going up in Dallas will have the first double-deckers in the Southwest. Others are being installed in Boston and Toronto.

In Dallas, the Otis-built double-deck elevators will be grouped in four banks of six elevators each.

Escalators will link the street floor and first basement levels, from which passengers will enter either the top or bottom cars, depending upon which upper floors they want to reach.

Major advantage of the new system is that a single shaft will be able to carry more passengers to more floors more quickly. Computers will be programmed to have an elevator answer calls on adjacent floors with a single stop.

Less space taken up by elevator shafts also means more floor space can be used by occupants, or more of a building site can be developed as an open plaza.

Frankfurt's Hot Dogs

What do they call frankfurters in Frankfurt? "Wiener Wurstchen" — Vienna (little) sausages.

O.K. What do they call wieners in Vienna? "Frankfurters," naturally.

This intelligence comes from gourmet Joseph Wechsberg, writing in the Saturday Review. He personally believes that the pre-

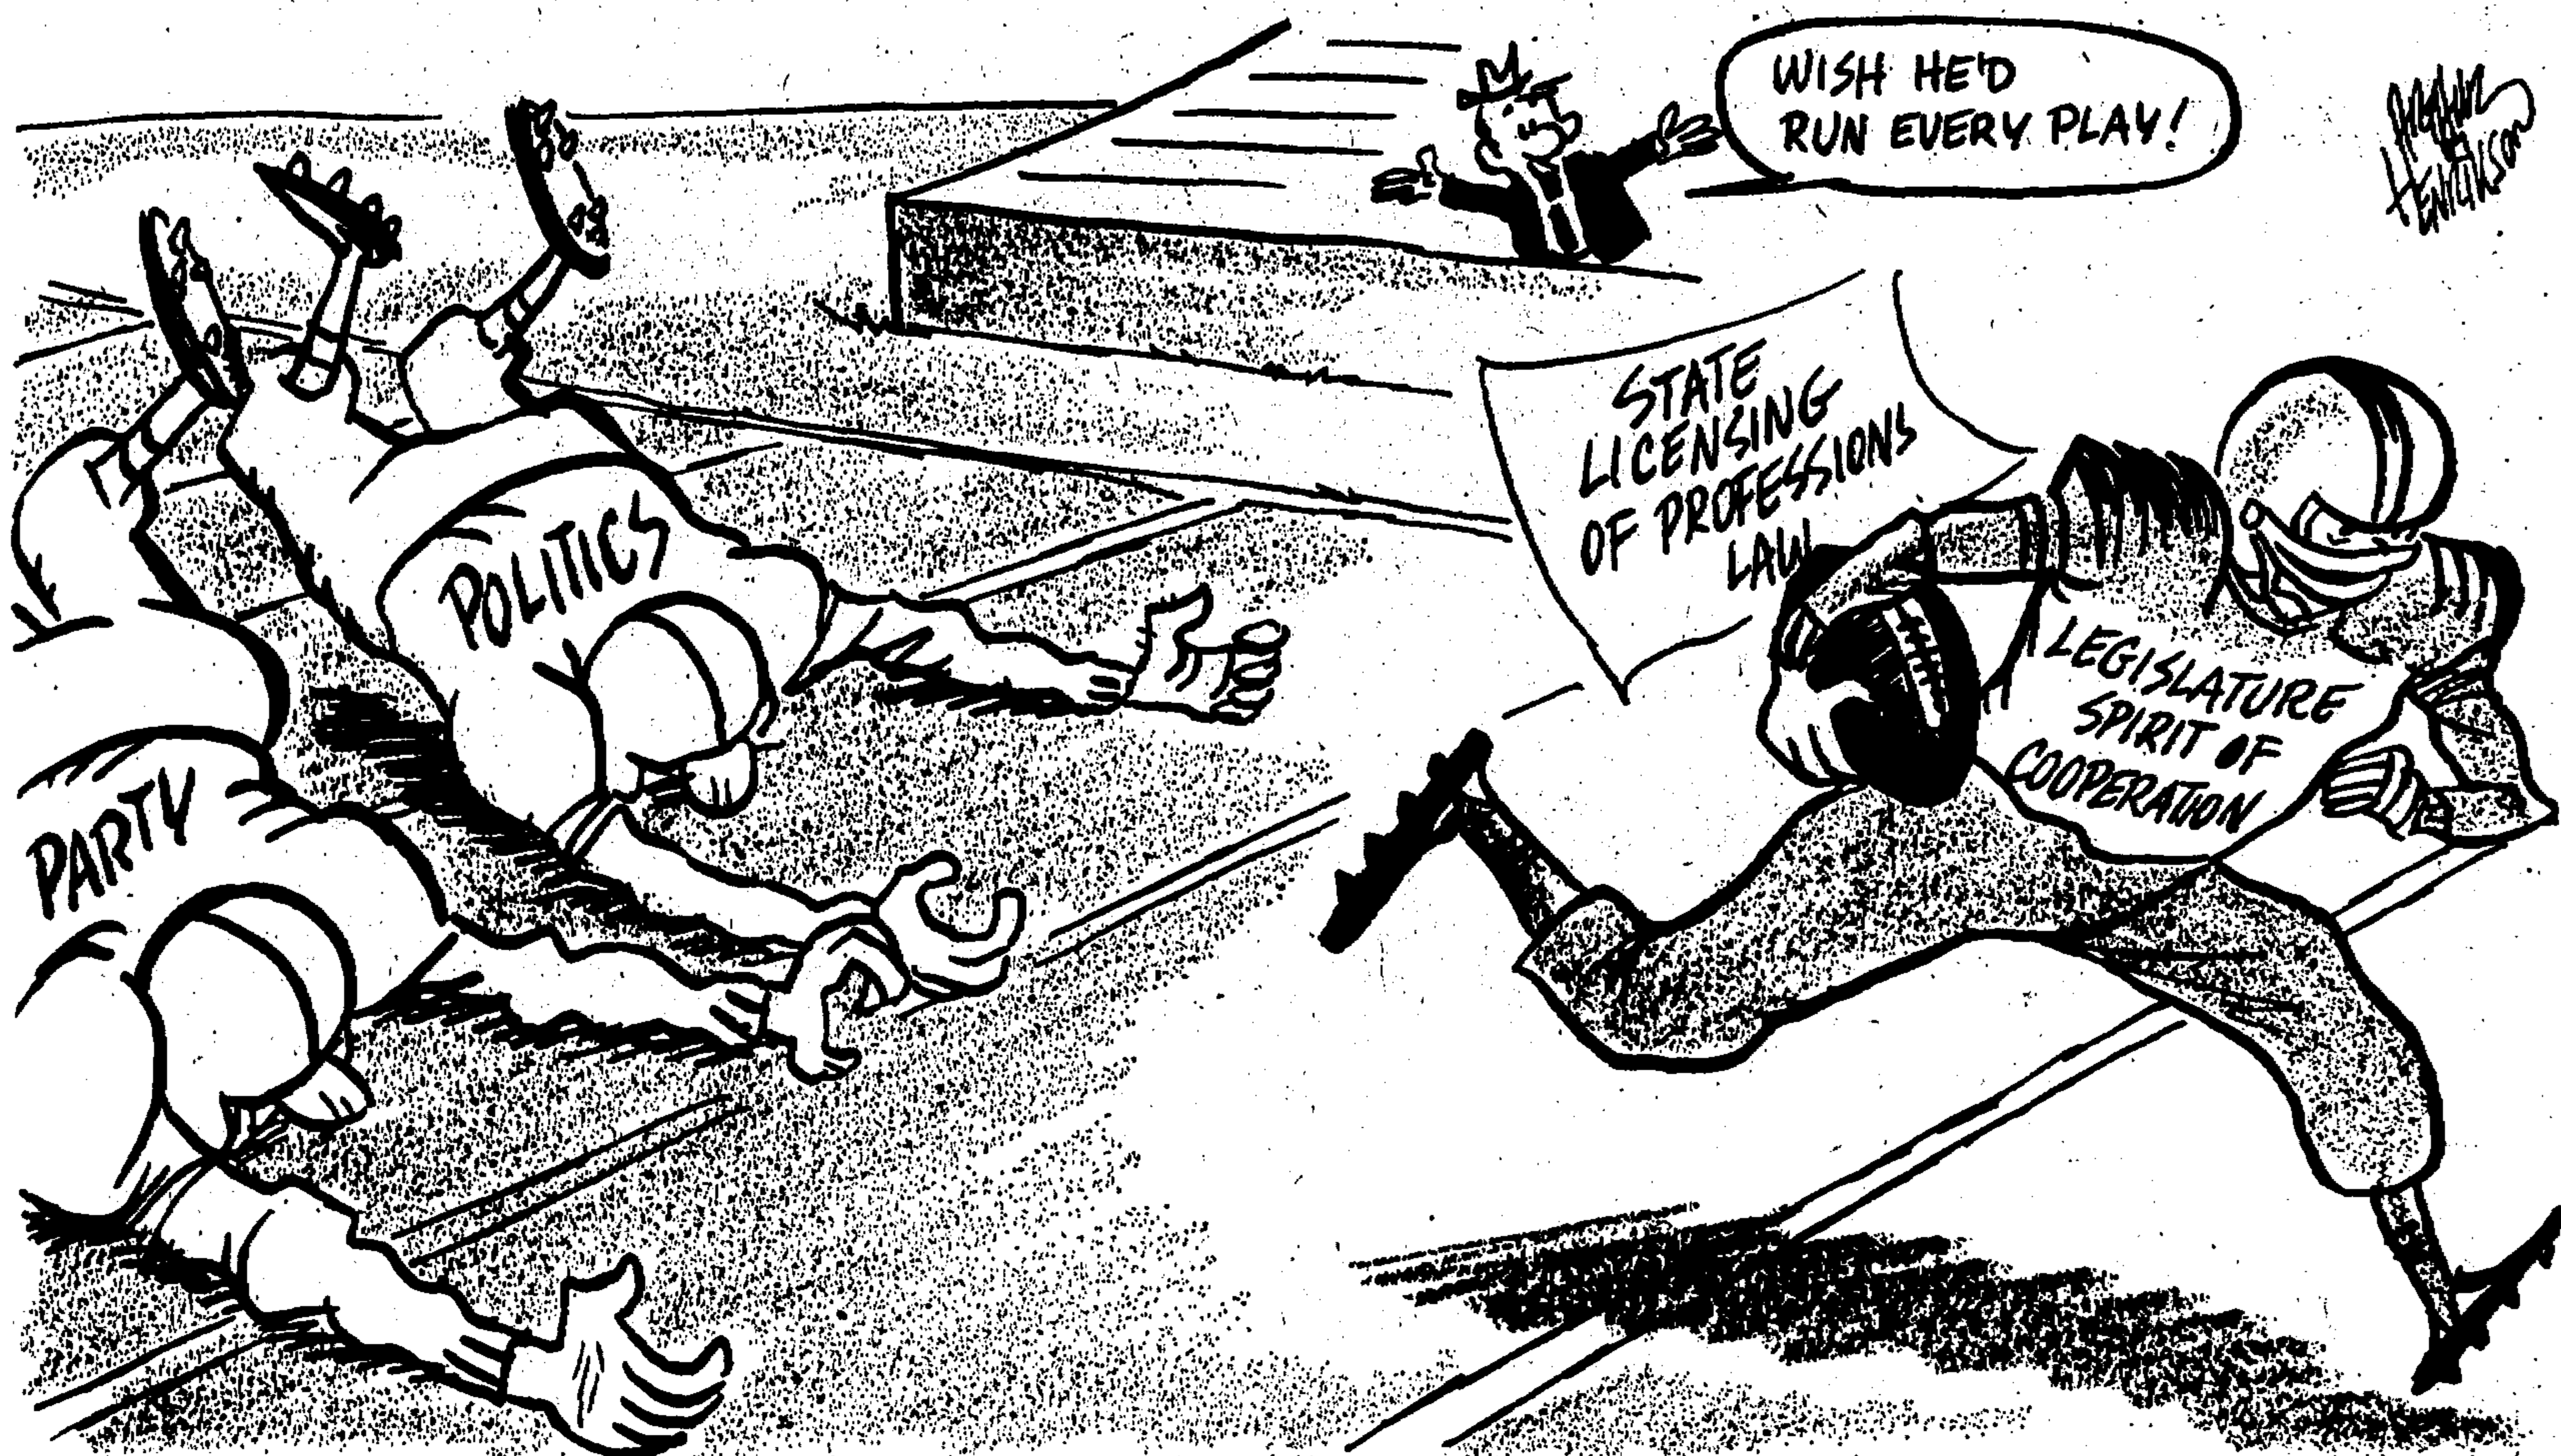

World War II "parky" in Prague were the best hot dogs of all.

If that doesn't give you enough to chew on, be advised that in Hamburg, hamburgers are called "Deutsches Beefsteak."

Which leads to the question, what do they call beefsteak in the United States.

Outsight.

Can Dems Unify Their Party?

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

The sudden void on the Democratic election ticket for the position of U. S. Congressman in the 12th Congressional District may be taken as a microcosm of statewide dilemma of the party.

The 12th District Democrats are at the moment without a candidate, apparently because they failed to provide the logistical support in what their standard bearer, Charles W. Houchins, clearly recognized as a nearly impossible race against Republican incumbent Philip M. Crane.

It is doubtful that Houchins, or any of those who persuaded him to take on Crane, ever entertained any serious notion that Crane could be defeated. But

Houchins, as he said long before announcing his intention to step aside, had no intention of "being a sacrificial lamb."

It was his intention to conduct a creditable campaign and to achieve for his party the best possible showing against an entrenched Republican officeholder.

A number of Democratic leaders in the district have described Houchins, before and after his withdrawal, as "a gentleman." That description fits the manner in which he announced he was abandoning the campaign. Houchins scrupulously avoided any indication that he had been let down by his party leaders.

Others in the district are not as reluctant to point out that he received neither the financial help nor the volunteer manpower to which the role of congressional candidate should have entitled him.

Dan Pierce, state representative from Highland Park and the Democratic state central committeeman for the district, has indicated confidence that a quality candidate will be found to replace Houchins.

That may be. However, in a search for candidates for the race against Crane, and another equally difficult campaign assignment — an opponent for the state Senate against Republican Rep. David J. Regner of Mount Prospect — Democrats hereabouts had to turn to Chester Chesney, Elk Grove Township committeeman, to fill the bill.

Chesney had a major hand in persuading William Rose of Elk Grove Village to take on Regner, and in convincing Houchins to run against Crane.

In the other ten townships of the district, no willing candidates could be found, and it is a sure bet that Chesney is not going to go out and find another one.

The redistricting which created the 12th Congressional District created new relationships between a number of township Democratic leaders, and between for mandatory recognition of public employee organizations by public employers; legislation that would establish collective bargaining procedures; and legislation that would further establish a long-needed state labor relations board to solve public employee disputes.

She Backs Bargaining Legislation

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

The second area of part and counterpart lies with the issue of wages. The pay of public employees, unfortunately, usually reflects what the traffic will bear and what the pressure tactics of the unrecognized Public Employee groups can win from the public bodies. I say unfortunately because ideally wouldn't salaries be decided on the merit and worth of an employee's particular type of work? Collective bargaining could provide a negotiating table where the issues of wages could equitably be decided on a give and take basis — and a governing state labor relations board could lend further insurance to this type of bargaining.

As for the third part and counterpart — grievances: Public employers, far too often, wield threats of discipline as a powerful tool. They, through the instilling of fear, force their employees into submissively recognizing the employer's imperious role in the employee/employer relationship. It is the realization that an established grievance procedure, which would provide for the fair and just handling of grievances, could very likely considerably diminish their control that causes public employers concern and reluctance in this area.

Often the scapegoat opinion voiced by public employers, as an excuse for opposing public employee groups and their right to collectively bargain, is that of the strike. They vociferously expound the opinion that "give the public employee the right of collective bargaining and the public will be faced with the problem of Public Employee strikes." Let me point out that unrecognized groups can and do strike and it is quite often the very issue of the public employer's denial of requested group recognition that precipitates and is the motivating factor in the strike. Public employees do not relish strikes, quite the opposite. To the public employees represented by my husband's organization, a strike is reprehensible. The policemen (to cite one group of public employees) would much prefer, were they afforded the same rights that the private sector of labor has enjoyed for over forty years, to decide on issues affecting their careers in an orderly, cooperative and compatible manner. They are not presuming to dictate every aspect of their career; they simply want a voice in their destiny.

While the afore-expressed opinions are, unfortunately, applicable to the majority of public employers that my husband has encountered in his position as president of the Combined Counties Police Association, he has conversely had the pleasure of dealing with some very perceptive, progressive public employers; men possessive of sensitive leadership ability; men with a realistic conception of what labor relations is all about; men with an eye on the future. It is dealing with men such as these that makes his position worthwhile. It sustains belief that the goals he harbors for policemen, and for that matter for all public employees, are after all, altogether attainable.

The time is now to put aside our rhetoric and embark on a course of action. Let our legislators take heed of the public demand for pertinent and relevant legislation. It would be my hope that newspapers, such as the Herald, would do their utmost to carry this message to the public and legislators alike.

'Special Blessing For Mothers'

On Mother's Day we honor our mothers whether living or dead. We give the living presents gaily wrapped to show affection, and love. To those of us whose moms have passed on, we lay a flower on her grave.

One day a year is set aside to honor mothers. Why one day, when mothers should be honored and given love every day? Love in the form of respect, courtesy and kindness and yes, at times patience.

What is a mother? How may her ways be counted? She is a physician who kisses away the little hurts, she, the one who sits beside the bed when sickness strikes, unmindful of the weary hours, the dragging hours without sleep. She guides the feet of the path of righteousness. She the homemaker. A million and one tasks performed by her, no undertaking too menial, or humble for her to perform for her children. The real name for mother is LOVE.

The most depressing sight is the mother who for various reasons is placed in a home for the aged. Many times sent away to be forgotten.

There is no sorrow as great as not being wanted, unloved, forgotten. What son or daughter can forget the mom whose love is unending? The love that only death can remove from her.

Mother's Day should be every day, for every day she is your mother, not just one day a year.

Those who are fortunate to have their mothers living, thank God for that great blessing. Friends and relations we will always have, but remember God gave us only ONE mother.

May God give a special blessing to all mothers, on this her special day.

To Mom...

Dear Mom:

We all hope you have a great Mother's Day. You are the most loving and considerate mother that takes time for us. We thank God every night for being so lucky to get one as special as you. You've heard this more than a thousand times, but here goes again. We love you very much and hope we can be as good to our children as you have been to us. One quote that we think refers to you is this: "Loving is leaving one's self and going toward others."

Thank you for listening to all our problems, for being our "personal chauffeur," for having respect for our friends and always having them welcome to our home, and most of all for trusting and respecting us.

Love never ends in your heart. Never change Mom. We love you very much.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American public has become increasingly annoyed because of the invasion of its privacy by telephone marketers, an expert in the business said today.

"If irresponsible and irritating practices aren't stopped, we'll be in danger of a hard crackdown by the Federal Communications Commission and state agencies," said Murray Roman, head of Campaign Communications Institute of America, Inc., New York. Roman sounded that warning in a speech to a section of the American Management Association.

"There's no excuse for duplicate and triplicate calls to the same household just because a firm is too careless to screen its lists properly," he said. "It's worse to call people in Los Angeles at 5 o'clock in the morning because the telephone solicitor in New York has forgotten or doesn't know about the time differential."

THOSE ARE ONLY a couple of many abuses developing since telephone marketing became a national business following the introduction of Wats line telephone service. For years telephone marketing was a local business, easy to control.

This year there probably will be a lot of political campaigning by telephone as well as merchandise selling as the presidential races shape up.

If telephone solicitors are careless in appealing to voters they not only will cost their candidates votes, they may get him in trouble with the FCC.

Roman said most irritating practices stem from ignorance and poorly trained callers and supervisors in telephone soliciting companies. He said the industry must police itself because official regulation could be severe enough to kill telephone soliciting as an effective marketing medium. As it is, telephone soliciting is a highly desirable medium. Its costs tend to go down at a time when the costs of other selling methods are rising.

ANOTHER PRACTICE that results in complaints to the FCC is telephone solicitation on Sundays. "In many parts of the country it just can't be done," Roman said.

But the most pervasive sin is garrulousness, wasting the prospect's and the solicitor's time.

"People resent being kept on the phone after they say 'no' politely," he added. The way to prevent garrulousness by solicitors is to exercise tight control over the sales pitches and make sure they are followed to the letter.

"Don't let sales people improvise much. It weakens the sales pitch, in addition to consuming time. Moreover, it can lead to untruthfulness."

Roman said sales appeals should be strictly truthful at all times.

"It's absurd to make claims in a telephone solicitation that you wouldn't put in media advertising or a followup letter."

Zayre Opens Schaumburg Outlet

Sweet 16 And Growing Fast

Employees of Zayre Corp. aren't joking when they say their company is the fastest-growing 16-year-old in the country.

Zayre Department Stores opened its first experimental discount department store in the Cape Cod community of Hyannis, Mass., in June, 1956.

Last Sunday, that first unit's 20th sister store opened its doors in Schaumburg.

Manager of the newest store, located at Rte. 58-Golf Road and Roselle Road, is David Breslau, who joined the Zayre organization in 1971 after 10 years' retail experience with a large discount department store chain. Most recently he has been manager of Zayre's Westmont store.

Assistant manager of the Schaumburg store is John R. Hooper of Hoffman Estates. He has been in retail merchandising since 1965 and began with Zayre in 1970 in the St. Louis area as hardwarehouseware manager of the Ellisville, Mo., store. He also worked in the Jennings, Hazelwood, Mo., and Hanover Park stores.

Zayre also opened a new store Sunday in Round Lake Beach, bringing total outlets in the Chicago area to 25.

When the Hyannis experiment of 1956 proved successful, Zayre opened two stores each year until 1959. Eight stores were added in 1960-61 and since then the chain's growth has been rapid — a total 115 new stores from 1962 through 1969 and another 50 units added since 1970.

ZAYRE EXPECTS to open from 20 to 25 more stores this year and an equal number in 1973.

The firm has been dubbed a pioneer in the growth of the modern self-service discount department store industry. Among its major contributions to this growth was construction of stores specifically designed for modern mass merchandising. Prior to the entrance of Zayre on the retail scene, discount stores were located in converted barns or mill buildings.

The major Zayre distribution center facilities are located in Framingham and Natick, Mass., and New York City with regional centers located in Chicago, Atlanta and Miami. Each center is highly automated and supplies a fresh flow of merchandise to the entire chain. A computer center in Framingham aids in the fast replenishment of merchandise at store level.

Zayre is a publicly owned company listed for trading on the New York Stock Exchange. In addition to the Zayre, Shoppers City and Warwick Shoppers World self-service department stores, the parent corporation operates 100 Bell and Nugent's women's apparel specialty stores; Spree toy, juvenile furniture and leisure-time specialty stores; Beaconway Fabric stores; New York Lace Store, an apparel unit; and the Hit or Miss promotional ladies apparel stores. Sales last year totaled $797 million.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The guardedly bullish Dines Letter sees at least a short-term bear trend, "followed by new highs." It also notes that "the point at which the Dow Jones industrial average chose to turn down is a dangerous one . . . and a major bear market might have already started."

E. F. HUTTON notes that the external developments, "particularly Vietnam," which are currently "dominating the market" will continue to determine the near term course of the market. Encouraging signs include the upswing of the transportation index, and the bottoming of the utility index.

HARRY LAUBSCHER, of Walston & Co., says "the market never changes." He says the drop on Tuesday was very predictable. He forecasts a short-term rally with a good possibility of a "testing of the lows" following the rally.

Average Motorist Spends $13,552

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government estimated Thursday that the average motorist will spend $13,552.95 over the next 10 years to purchase and maintain a new, standard-sized sedan.

The Federal Highway Administration (FHA) said in a publication, "Cost of Operating an Automobile," that the operation and maintenance of a new car for an average 100,000 miles costs 13.5 cents a mile.

"The purchase price is only the first step in a long line of costs that must be paid," the FHA said.

The total cost over the 100,000 miles included: $2,787 for 7,350 gallons of gasoline; maintenance and repairs, $2,147; insurance, $1,350; parking and tolls, $1,800; automobile taxes, $1,319, and an initial purchase price of $4,379. The FHA figured the car would have no trade-in value after 10 years.

The owner of compact cars will pay less to run a new car the same distance and time, the FHA estimated — $10,807.60 or 10.8 cents per mile — while owners of subcompact cars would pay $9,444.03 or 9.4 cents per mile.

Better Business Bureau Plans Consumer Projects

Two new thrusts to serve the consumer were announced in the first annual report of the newly-formed Council of Better Business Bureaus.

More than 70 of the 150 bureaus are now conducting or planning consumer arbitration projects, according to the report. These projects are a prelude to a national program in which disputes between customers and business which cannot be resolved informally by direct negotiation or by mediation by the bureau will be submitted to voluntary arbitration.

"Arbitration affords a large measure of satisfaction both to the businessman and his customer," said the report. "Businesses are precommitting themselves to its use and consumers find the free forum much less frustrating than going to court or simply dropping what they think is a valid complaint."

Retail Sales Up 9%

Retail sales during March, adjusted for seasonal variations, amounted to $36.4 billion — 9 per cent higher than the same month last year, according to the Census Bureau.

The figure also was 3 per cent higher than February, the previous month.

The council also reports a pilot program that offers individual consumers an opportunity to become members of six bureaus.

The annual report, which covers the period from May, 1971 to May, 1972, is highlighted by letters from Elisha Gray II, chairman, former chairman of Whirlpool Corp.; H. Bruce Palmer, president, former president of the Conference Board.

Gray said, "The whole field of consumerism is crowded with a great assortment of people and organizations ranging all the way from the vocal ultra liberal to the stand pat, don't-give-an-inch conservatives. The Better Business Bureau system is a logical gathering point for the interest and energies of many of these groups. We are making a great effort to steer a clear course through these crowded waters, keeping always before us our basic purpose of helping business regain the initiative and credibility with the American public by being truly responsive to its valid concerns."

Dividend News

Lucky Stores Dividend

The Board of Directors of Lucky Stores, Inc., has declared a three per cent stock dividend on the common stock. It will be issued July 22 to shareholders of record June 7. The announcement was made by W. H. Dyer Jr., chairman of the board.

Motorola Inc.

Motorola Inc. reported first quarter record sales were $248,724,369, up 25 per cent compared to $199,581,565 in the same period last year.

Earnings increased 50 per cent to $8,103,469 from the 1971 first quarter, a new first quarter dollar record. Due to more shares outstanding, earnings per share of 60 cents approximated but did not equal a prior first quarter earnings per share record of 63 cents. Earnings for the 1971 first quarter were $5,400,21, or 41 cents per share.

Robert W. Galvin, chairman of the electronics firm, said current estimates are for increased sales and increased earnings for 1972 in all of the company's divisions.

First quarter sales and earnings of the firm's communications division, based in Schaumburg, increased over last year's like quarter. The division ended the quarter in a strong position in terms of new order bookings and backlog.

Alcoholism Can Be Cured

back to the tavern. I got so loaded I didn't know what I was doing."

After his absenteeism and other failures on the job, the company team confronted him.

"They threw a booklet in front of me with a skeleton and two cross bones on it — alcoholism," Sam said. "I was looking for help, but I was ashamed."

A few days later he entered De Paul.

"I didn't know what was going to happen to me. I was sick and I really didn't know what was going on," he said. Sam said that for two weeks he "just went through the motions." Then, the realization hit him.

"I had to learn all over again," he said.

The first phase of the De Paul program is medical treatment — a detoxification process aimed at getting patients free of the need for any medication seven days after their admission.

A physical and general laboratory tests are run. Other physical conditions, some alcohol related, are treated. Dr. J. Brown, head staff physician, said that while the detoxification is important, "it is probably the least important aspect of the total program. To simply take an alcoholic off the street and dry him out is to ask for failure."

Once the detoxification is complete, a counseling team determines the next treatment step.

ONE OF SEVERAL methods is group therapy. The hospital and Alcoholics Anonymous work together. Patients are encouraged to obtain an AA sponsor in their community when they leave the hospital.

"Our group therapy sessions are reality oriented and highly confronting," De Rosa said. "An alcoholic is a crafty, wily person and he has no trouble fooling others about his drinking problems. But he can't fool other alcoholics."

A patient is required to attend 15 lectures covering all phases of alcoholism and related problems. He is told the facts about his illness, its symptoms and its consequences.

The people who do not follow through with AA do not succeed, Brown said.

While the alcoholic is undergoing treatment at De Paul, members of his family become deeply involved.

The hospital's Mental Health Clinic serves in problem areas after the patient is released. It also provides for concurrent treatment of family members who may be having social, emotional or psychological problems.

After the patient's release there is a group called Al-Anon, a counterpart to AA organized especially for the family of the alcoholic.

There are different paths for those released after treatment. Some — like Sam — return to their jobs. A few return to alcohol.

There are vocational programs at De Paul for those seeking different paths.

One, the Sertoma workshop, is aimed at helping the individual realize and attain his maximum personal and vocational potential. It includes workshops and recreational activities.

Jim Rothery, extended services program coordinator, said the major purpose is to "lengthen the time of sobriety, lessen the periods of hospitalization and provide a little happiness and reason for being."

Another program, vocational evaluation, uses diagnostic tests to determine the level, intellectually and psychologically, of the patient and where his interests lie.

ED KURTH, work adjustments training and vocational director, said this program is basically for patients out of a job. Vocational evaluation "strives to stabilize the patient's sobriety, develop his desire to go back to a job and to form good work habits," he said.

Sam, in his off-work time, lectures to AA groups and others. He still has to remind himself he is "only one drink from a drunk."

"Just like a diabetic must have insulin, I must not have alcohol," he said. "That teaches you to be honest with yourself. Alcoholism is not curable, only arrestable."

The Allen-Bradley Co. has referred nearly 100 employees to De Paul since the program began.

"We feel that this has been a very effective program, but it would not have been if we had been unable to use the very unique services of De Paul," I. Andrew Rader, Allen-Bradley president, said. "This hospital does the rehabilitation process of the patient which we could not possibly do in the plant."

"What most employers don't know is how inexpensive and uncomplicated it is to establish an alcoholism program."

It can also save money. Allis-Chalmers reported a savings of $80,000 a year as a result of establishing an alcoholism program for employees in its Milwaukee plant. The absenteeism rate went from 8 per cent to 3 per cent and the discharge rate of alcoholics from 96 per cent to 8 per cent.

Wheeling, Forest View, St. Viator Triumph In District Tourney Play

Wheeling, using nearly the same formula that had brought victory in the first round of its own district tournament, ousted Deerfield yesterday, 5-3.

The win advanced the Wildcats into the championship game, this afternoon at 4:00 against Highland Park.

Opponent errors, timely hitting and a righty-lefty pitching combination proved too much for the Warriors. Leading only 3-2 in the bottom of the sixth, Mike Sarge — the game's batting leader with 3-for-3 — doubled over the center fielder's head. Jim Kass followed one out later with an opposite field single.

Deerfield, expecting a delayed double steal, didn't try to throw out Kass. Instead, the catcher threw toward third to catch Sarge off guard. The wild throw went into left field and got by the fielder for a double error, both runners scoring on the "gitter" play.

Lefty Bill Kozel, making his second late inning appearance in two days, blanked the Warriors the rest of the way to get the save. Starter Mark Griffith, also pitching for the second time in 24 hours, was the winner. The twosome combined for a three-hitter.

Griffith was lifted in the sixth when Deerfield rallied to cut Wheeling's lead to one. Kozel came on with runners on second and third and struck out the last batter.

Sarge's one-run single in the first scored Dave Giles who had doubled.

Wheeling added to the 1-0 lead in the third when Giles doubled in Denny Theriault and then scored on Sarge's double to center.

MONROE BOOSTS FALCONS

Sophomore Larry Monroe fired a three-hitter and struck out 14 as Forest View advanced to the Hersey district semi-finals at the expense of Prospect, 5-1.

The hard-throwing righthander was in control throughout most of the contest, averaging two whiffs per frame and setting down 13 straight Knights during one stretch over the middle innings.

His teammates gave him early support as they managed two runs on just one hit in the initial inning off Prospect starter Scott Rochelle.

After one out, Falcon Bill Millner reached on an error and was shoved to second when Randy Jespersen was hit by a pitch. Joe DiMaggio singled one across and Dale Schoenbeck lofted a sacrifice fly to left for another.

Prospect launched its only threat in the second when Paul Obuchowski walked and Jim Prandini and George Kman followed with singles for a run. Prandini was picked off second, though, and the next two Knights fanned to stymie a budding rally.

Forest View was back in business in the third when Mike Pryor was hit by a pitch. Bill Millner singled and Jespersen sent them both around with a booming triple to straightaway center field.

The winners, who will challenge Arlington for the right to play St. Viator in the Hersey District championship this afternoon, closed out the scoring with a run in the sixth off a walk, a sacrifice, a dropped third strike and a passed ball.

Rochelle limited the Falcons to just four hits and with more support, may have deserved a better fate. The powerful righty walked three and fanned six.

LIONS OUST HERSEY

Mike Cook's pitching and hitting kept St. Viator in their district confrontation with Hersey long enough for his teammates to finally rally around him for a 3-2 victory over the host Huskies Wednesday afternoon.

The contest was a grueling pitcher's duel all the way between Cook and Mark Leonhard. Leonhard was finally tapped for four hits in the top of the seventh to pave the way for the Lion triumph and advancement to the district finals slated for Friday on the Hersey field.

Cook drove in Viator's initial go-ahead run and later connected again to knot things up after the Huskies had opened up a 2-1 lead. In the seventh stanza the guests finally broke up the taut struggle on Jim Bucaro's base rap after Frank Cliggett had doubled.

Both Cook and Leonhard threw over 120 pitches during the contest and both were in and out of trouble on a number of occasions. But both twirlers could be only partially blamed for the early scoring.

The first Lion run came across only after Steve Collins had reached on an error and advanced on a fielder's choice. Then Cook pounded a single right through the box to put his club on top.

Hersey came back to score both their runs in the bottom half of that same inning. Pat Broderick reached on a miscue with one away and Allie Weichers singled down the third base line immediately afterwards.

Broderick then stole third and came home with the tying run on a wild pitch. After another out Leonhard also made it to the bases on a bobbled grounder and Weichers came all the way around to score on the same play.

In the fourth St. Viator knotted things up when Collins walked, was sacrificed to second and darted in on Cook's single to right-center.

The roof caved in on Leonhard in the seventh. He yielded a leadoff single but the runner was cut down trying to steal. Cliggett doubled down the left field line after that and went to third on Ed Helsen's ground out.

Leonhard was then one strike away from getting out of the jam when Bucaro shot a base hit up the middle. Collins added another singleton before the fire was put out but by then the damage had been done.

Conant, Elk Grove Land Mid-Suburban Victories

A five-run explosion in the fifth inning on three hits, three errors and two walks propelled Conant to a 6-4 victory over visiting Schaumburg Wednesday.

The win pulled Conant even with Schaumburg, each at 4-3 in the South Division to Prospect's 6-2 and Forest View's 4-2-1. For the Cougars, it also avenged a wild 11-8 Saxon win in 10 innings last week.

Schaumburg committed four errors leading to three unearned runs. Bill Arkus was the winning pitcher, allowing five hits and five walks and striking out four. Ken Gast took the setback.

Conant led 1-0 on an unearned run in the first which scored on an error before the Saxons jumped ahead 2-1 in the second. Steve Hull hammered a triple and scored on John Gimmier's squeeze bunt. Dave Hill singled, was sacrificed by Gast and scored on Rich Kuchina's hit.

The Cougars put the game away in the fifth when Arkus started a rally on his own behalf by socking a two-run home run over the left field fence after an error. Later in the same frame George Pattee clouted a two-run triple and scored on yet another miscue.

Schaumburg made it interesting with a pair in the fifth. Frank Hannon and Marty Hjerstedt hit bloop singles and after a sacrifice bunt on which Jeff Larson was safe, walks to John Blasco and Dave Merrigan forced in the runs. But Arkus shut the door from there on.

Steve Scholten unloaded a 355-foot homer to left field with two teammates aboard to power Elk Grove to a 5-1 in Mid-Suburban League decision over Glenbard North.

Scholten's shot came after Tony Tringali singled, Bob Chen reached on an error and Rick Hauserman chased one home with another hit. The Grenadiers closed out the scoring in the third on a two-base error and Tim O'Hara's single to right.

Winner Jim Emslie cruised to the decision behind a strong four-hitter that included the Panthers' lone run in the second on a walk, single and sacrifice fly. Emslie walked only three and fanned six in going the distance.

Elk Grove leveled its MSL mark at 3-3-1 while Glenbard slipped to 0-8.

Palatine, resting its regulars and giving little-used boys a chance to play, was no-hit at Niles North Wednesday and dropped a 6-0 non-conference game.

The Pirates committed four errors as Niles got five hits off starter Chris Meyer and reliever Mike Hughes. Hughes shut out the hosts after taking over in the third inning.

Helped by Pirate miscues, Niles North scored five times in the second inning and coasted to the victory.

IMAGINE BEING sought after by many people who are greatly interested in you . . .

Visualize jelling to interesting places each week . . .

Think about eating the best meat at fancy restaurants several times a week . . .

Sound like a jet setter's routine? Maybe. It also is typical week in the life of a much-sought-after high school athlete.

Three such senior stars from this area were Hersey's Andy Pancratz in basketball and Brad Smith in wrestling and Arlington's Terry Ormsbee in football. All three were all-stars and winners.

Together they received over 300 letters from schools seeking their services. The pressures from so many sides began early in the year and continued until each signed his autograph.

"You can't help but to think about it," said Pancratz of the pre-season pressures. He, Smith and Ormsbee were expected to have fine senior years after coming off great junior seasons. They were expected to put out with a five-figure scholarship hanging in the balance.

"I felt pretty much pressure because I got a couple of letters saying 'If you repeat this year again, we'll offer you a full ride,'" recalled Smith. Hersey's outstanding wrestler, not having a team to fall back on like Pancratz and Ormsbee, registered back-to-back championships.

Smith's efforts brought some 40 letters, but it also brought a few ringing headaches, as he explains:

"After the state, I got like two or three phone calls a night."

"Suptertime is THE time to call," remembered Andy. "They figure they'll get you at home. For a while it was every night at six o'clock. It could be irritating . . . but we just took it in stride."

Pancratz led the trio with over 200 letters from both four-year and two-year schools. Ormsbee, who had hoped for a better season than he had, still managed to hear from between 75 and 100.

The three managed to narrow down these sports suitors to a select few. Then came the trips, about a half dozen for each.

"After you visit one or two, as far as I'm concerned, it got to be the same procedure everytime," said Andy. The others agreed.

While at several universities, Pancratz and Ormsbee were promised free clothes, transportation, food and other gifts for attending particular schools. However, neither of these young men let such offers affect their decisions. Both have signed national letters of intent — Andy to DePaul University and Terry to the University of Illinois.

Brad has signed a tender for the University of Iowa. He will probably be signing the national letter soon.

"It's good to get everybody off your back," said Pancratz of the signing. "It's a decision you've got to make, I guess. Once it's over with, you don't really want to look back."

"I really did get mixed up," admitted Smith of the hectic times after the state finals. "I was going crazy and I didn't know what to do. I just hope I made the right decision."

All were unanimous on two points — there were some enjoyable experiences but they wouldn't want to go through it again.

After such a senior year, this trio and many like them can no longer be considered boys. They're men.

Unbeaten In League Duels - Again

Cardinal Netmen Now 56-0 In MSL

by PAUL LOGAN
Tennis Editor

A perfect record and a three-way race for second place highlighted play Tuesday, the last full day of dual meet action in Mid-Suburban League tennis.

Arlington, to nobody's surprise, finished with another undefeated season. This marked the seventh straight year and upped the Cardinals' unbeaten mark against MSL competition to 58-0.

Meanwhile, the formerly five-team rush for runner-up honors was thinned out somewhat with a trip continuing the fight. Elk Grove and Palatine posted shutouts while Hersey was only winning 3-2. The net result — the Grenadiers with second (37 points), the Pirates in third (35) and the Huskies in fourth (34).

Surging Conant surprised Forest View and Glenbard North took one precious point from Prospect in other action involving former second-place contenders.

ARLINGTON 5, WHEELING 0

Although the Cardinals handed the Wildcats their ninth straight loss, the losers could feel good about one match.

Wheeling's Dave McAllister, playing second singles, surprised undefeated Don Rodig in the first set, 6-3, before losing 6-0, 6-1. It was the first time Rodig had been forced to go three sets and only the second time for such a thing to happen to Arlington this year in the MSL.

The rest of the Arlington victories went pretty much true to form with Wheeling winning only five games:

Jim Merkel over Vern Fish, 6-0, 6-1; John Paczkowski over Mark Shiozaki, 6-1, 6-1; Jon Deevy and Dana Morken over John Kyle and Chris Pienta, 6-0, 6-1; and Bob Blomquist and Rex Miller over Tim Havorsen and Dave Neukackatz, 6-0, 6-1.

ELK GROVE 5, SCHAUMBURG 0

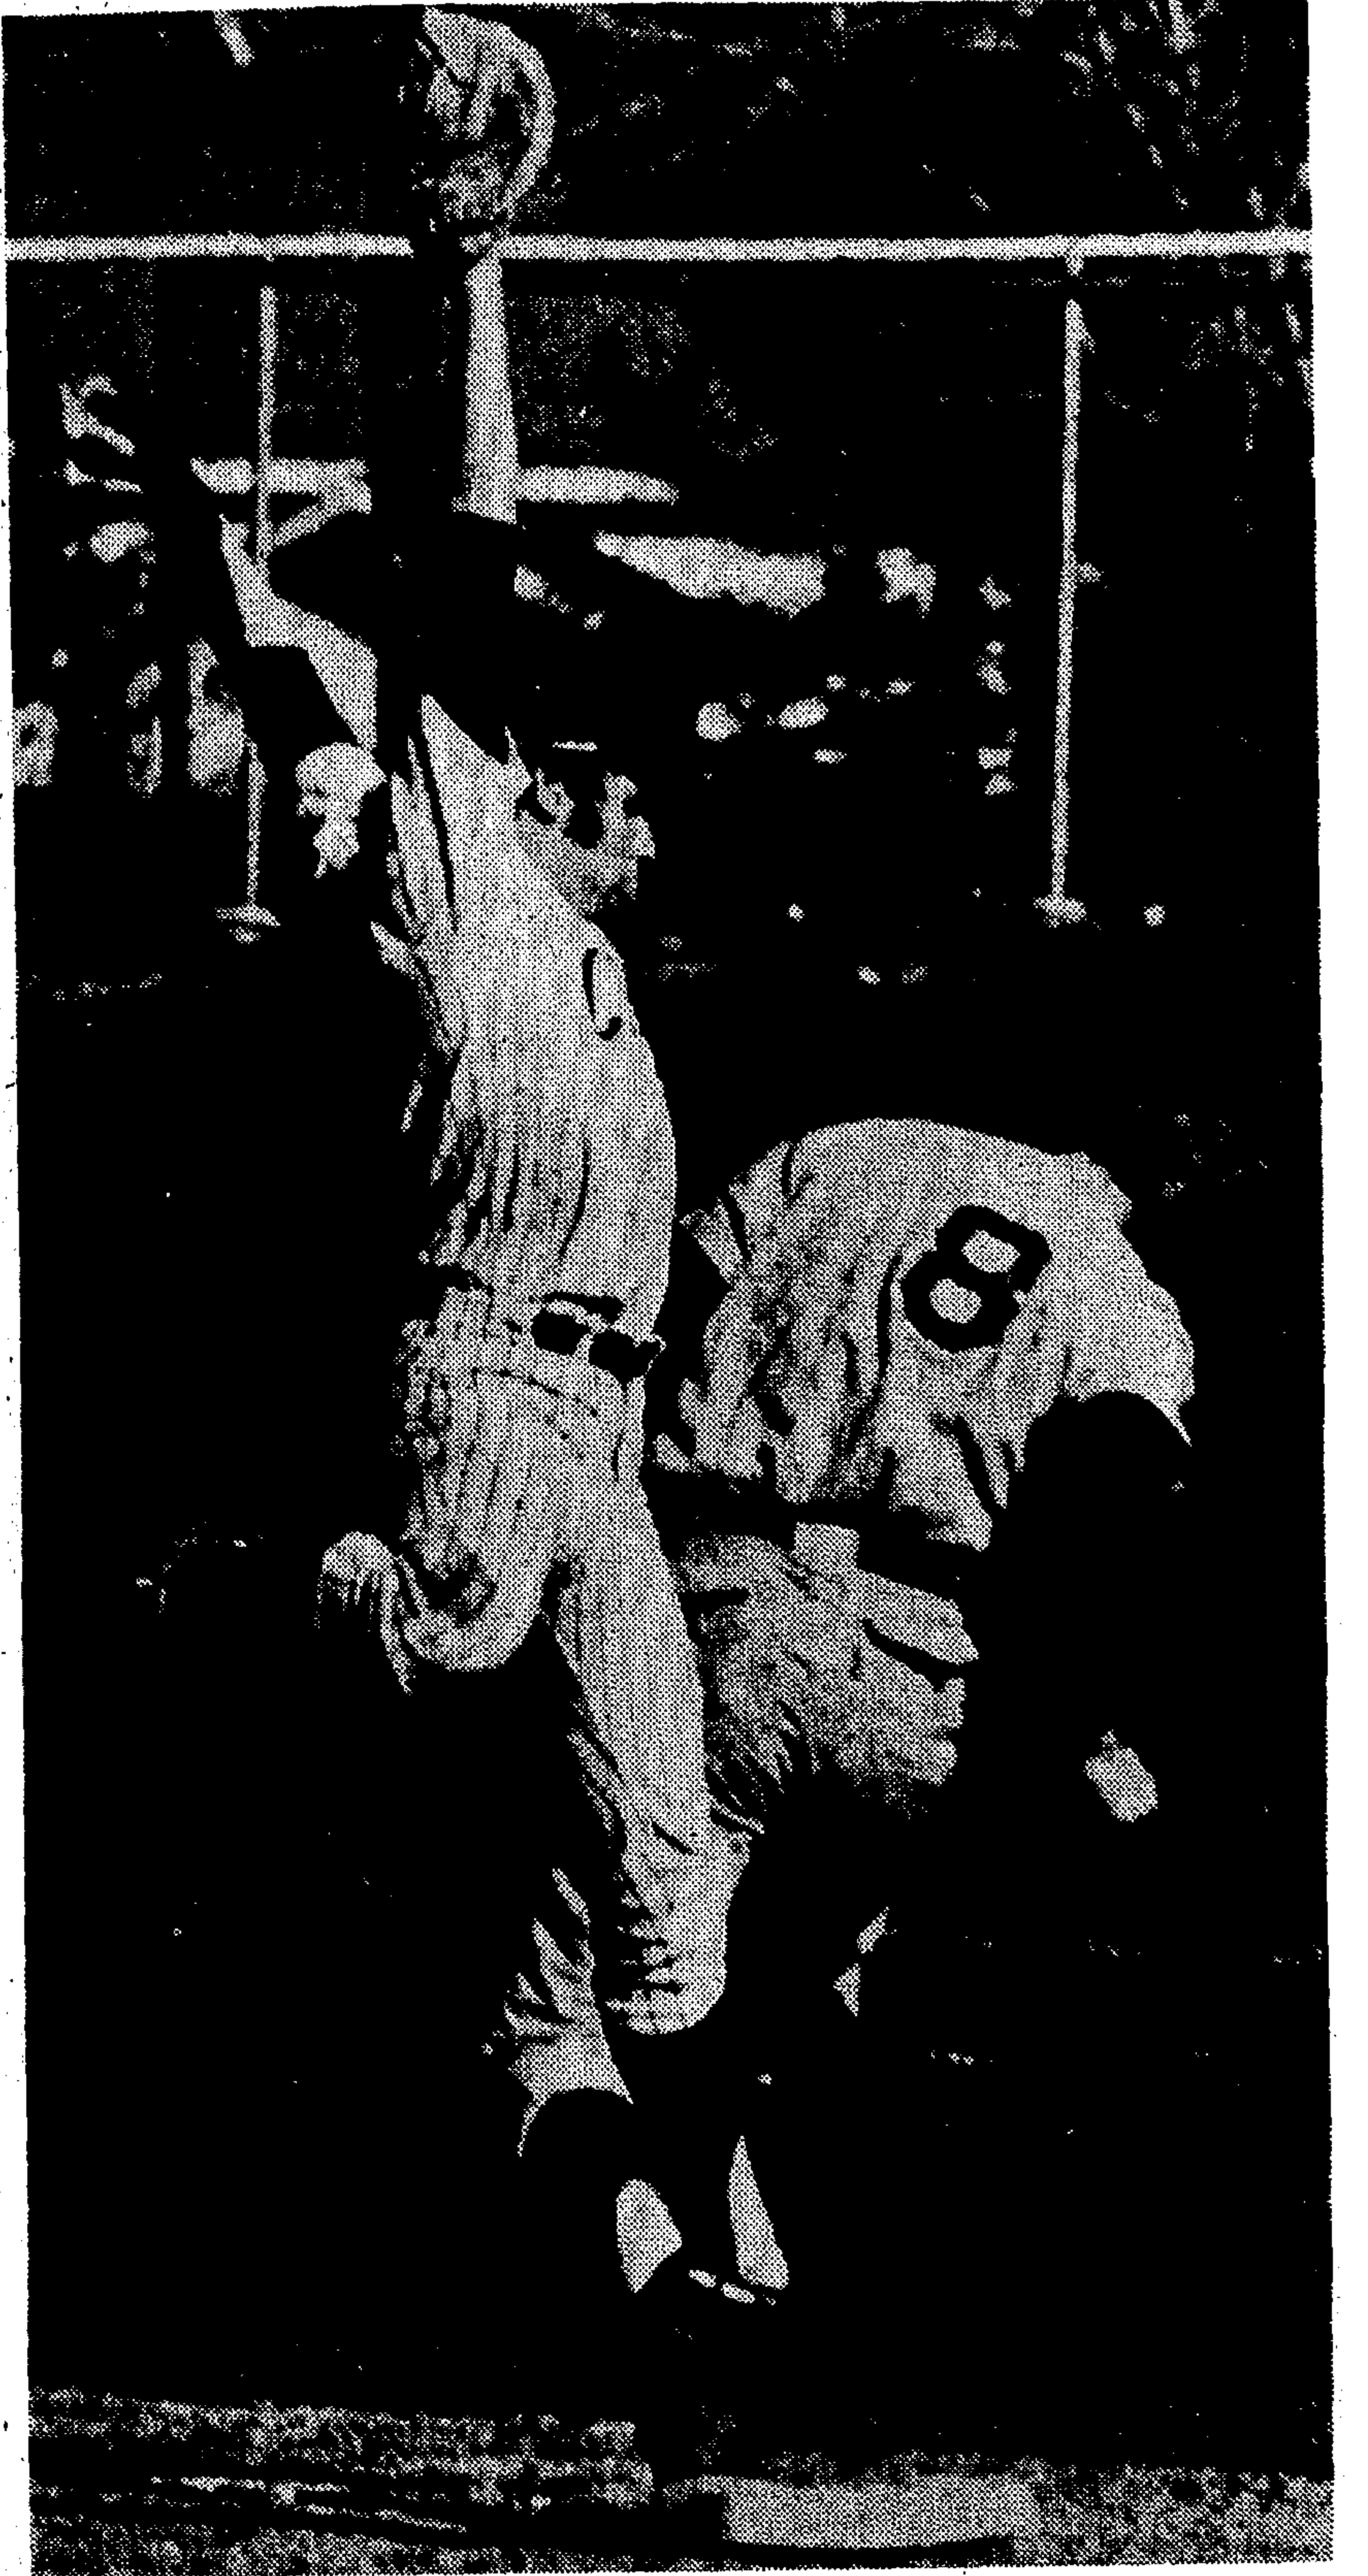

The Grenadiers, enjoying a break in the schedule which didn't have Arlington on it, opened up a two-point lead over the Pirates with its shutout win at Schaumburg. Both Palatine and Hersey were blanked by the Cardinals.

Coach Ken Rundquist's charges won in straight sets:

Mark Greenberg over Bill Hommowun, 6-0, 6-2; Len Greenberg over Dale Fenwick, 6-0, 6-3; Ken Pollitz over Randy Madon, 6-0, 6-0; Mike Smith and Jim Siebold over Larry Willer and Pete Biohl, 6-4, 7-5; and Scott Holste and Bruce Kinn over Rich Reese and Bob Hammowun, 6-2, 6-4.

PALATINE 5, ROLLING MEADOWS 0

The Pirates kept the pressure on the Grenadiers with their victory and also became the first MSL team to crack the double figures mark in victories — 10-3. Despite the whitewash, Meadows made LONG REACH. Conant first baseman Keith Steelman stretches for a high throw as Bill Jarrett of Barrington races across the bag for an infield hit. It was one of just five safeties given up by Chet Pudlosky as the Cougars won, 2-1, to capture the district crown.

Arlington Golfers Shoot Record 152

Golf Editor

Arlington may be peaking at the prime time of the season. As the state district and conference meets loom just around the corner, the Cardinals fired a blistering school record 152 in a double win over Conant's 164 and Elk Grove's 182.

The mark-breaking rounds occurred over Arlington's home course front nine at Palatine Hills Country Club, one of the toughest in the area.

Medallists Chris Marszalek and Jeff Palmer conquered the par 36 layout in one-over rounds of 37. John Gibbel and Steve Sluka were in heavy support with 39's.

Conant's split was derived from identical 44's by Eric Brewer and Kevin Eskins coupled with 42's by Keith Kellogg and Chris Dilger.

Elk Grove's total was the result of Scott Walker's 44, Mark Okuma's 45, a 46 by Todd Gander and 47's by Keith Moore and Ernie Woolard.

The twin triumph boosted the Cardinals over the 500 mark at 6-4 while Conant owns the reciprocal 4-6. Elk Grove is saddled with a 3-7 mark within the Mid-Suburban standings.

The teams failed to change places on the frosh-soph level as well. Arlington carded a 178 to Conant's 197 and Elk Grove's even 200. Card Jeff Cleveland was the medalist with a 43.

VIKINGS WIN THRILLER

Fremd moved into a deadlock with Arlington in the league standings by virtue of collecting a double verdict over Forest View and Glenbard North.

The Vikings and Falcons hooked up in a tense struggle that finally shifted over to Fremd's side of the win column, 171-172. The Vikes parlayed a solid 40 by Craig Falkenthal with Pat Roxworthy's 41, Jim Benson's 44 and Joe Murken's 46.

Forest View dropped the heartbreaker despite Gary Mayer's meet medalist round of 38. Both Chuck Felice and Dave Moody toured Glenbard's home Indian Lakes course in 44 while Todd McDonald nailed down a 46.

The Panthers were easy victims at 215 off Darryl Hayes' 51, Kent Homola's 52, Frank Guthrie's 55 and Vince Erchiello's 57. The Falcons leveled their a fight of it at second singles. Curt Anderson pushed Kevin McNamara three sets before losing, 7-9, 6-1, 6-3. The other matches went like this:

Matt Borman over Stan Hilty, 6-1, 6-0; Scott Dawson over Mark Shannon, 6-1, 6-1; Paul Clapper and Steve Snyder over Larry Pressl and Don Bohac, 6-1, 6-4; and Fred Hoegler and Dave Bals over Gary Chensee and Jim Park, 6-0, 6-0.

HERSEY 3, FREMD 2

The Vikings gave hosting Hersey all it could handle before losing their 13th dual meet of the season, seven of them coming because of an ineligibility.

Fremd's wins came off the racquets of Chris Laffy and the second doubles team of Kim Abbott and Carl Papp. Laffy handled Chuck Oldenburg, 6-2, 6-3, and the Vikings' doubles team took Bob Melches and Carl Bierdeman, 7-5, 1-6, 6-1.

The shocked Huskies managed to take the meet with these victories:

Tom Cassidy over Pat Irwin, 6-4, 6-1; Dave Schunk over John Lawrence, 6-0, 6-2; and Jeff Seeger and Guy Spinks over Rich Courtney and Jeff Leewing, 7-5, 6-1.

These two lost points dropped Hersey from third to fourth in the standings.

CONANT 3, FOREST VIEW 2

The Cougars, paced by once-beaten Buddy Edmondson at first singles, topped a good Falcon team, 3-2. They also served notice on the rest of the league that they'll be heard from in the conference meet.

Losers only once in their last seven meets, the Cougars of Coach Roger McCoy took two singles matches and one doubles for the victory. The wins came like this:

Edmondson over Dick Thompson, 8-6, 6-2; Mary Rohr over Jeff Rud, 6-4, 6-3; and Jim Michaels and Chuck Evans over Charlie Cookley and Chris Phillips, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

Winning for Forest View were the sophomore doubles team of Joe Karwinski and Mike Korth and singles player Art Jones. The two some stopped Bruce Koehler and Vince Kirby, 6-4, 6-3, and Jones beat Eric Burseth by 6-0 scores.

PROSPECT 4, GLENBARD 1

The Knights rebounded from their 3-2 loss to Forest View last week by nearly shutting out the Panthers.

Prospect won all but second singles on the efforts of these Knights:

Bob Zimmanck over Finn Torjesen, 6-2, 6-1; John Waters over Ted Anderson, 6-2, 6-2; Steve McMurry and Chuck Clemens over Glenn Coulomb and Walt Keefe, 6-2, 9-7; and Jeff Risteen and Mark Meves over Jeff Howat and Mark Ables, 6-1, 6-0.

Winning only the fifth match of the MSL season for Glenbard was Ben Homola. He stopped Steve Ristow, 6-3, 6-1.

FROSH-SOPH RESULTS

Just like their varsity teammates, the Arlington lower level team finished the dual season with a perfect record with the help of a 5-0 win over Wheeling.

The only other shutout of the afternoon was turned in by Prospect over Glenbard, 5-0.

Three teams won by 4-1 scores — Hersey over Fremd, Palatine over Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove over Schaumburg.

Conant just got by Forest View, 3-2.

Frase Still Red-Hot

Hersey High School product Bruce Frase continues to impress as the starting shortstop on the Northern Illinois University baseball team. Frase, a freshman on the varsity, had six hits and drove in seven runs in a recent three-game set with Ball State. Northern plays Southern Illinois University this weekend and places their Midwest Conference lead on the line.

Illini Honor Gymnast

The George Huff Certificate of Award for proficiency in the scholarship and athletics was presented to Brad Prochaska by the University of Illinois Alumni Association recently. The award is in recognition of Prochaska's scholastic achievement while earning a varsity letter in gymnastics. This former Arlington High School athlete now has two varsity letters with two more years of eligibility remaining.

2 Area Preps To Western

Jim Leopardo, a standout on Elk Grove's championship football team, and Dave Schneider, a star for Forest View, signed letters-of-intent to attend Western Illinois University on football scholarships.

Leopardo, who averaged 5.1 yards a carry, was "probably the best fullback we've ever had at Elk Grove," according to head coach Don Schanke.

Schanke was outstanding on both offense (fullback) and defense (linebacker) for Coach Paul Jordan's very successful team.

Peters To Georgia Tech

Ken Peters, Arlington's high jumping and hot shooting guard, has received a basketball scholarship to Georgia Tech.

Peters, one of four players placed on the Herald area select team, is believed to be the first scholarship athlete to ever go to the "Rambler Wreck" school.

VonBerg To Eastern

John vonBerg, Prospect's backcourt leader in basketball last year, has accepted an offer of athletic scholarship aid to attend Eastern Illinois University.

"John has the basic attributes of a fine college guard," says head coach Don Eddy.

McGowan To Millikin

Wheeling High School's Tim McGowan will be heading for Millikin University this fall in pursuit of a spot on the football team.

The 6-0, 215-pound tackle was a key figure in Wheeling's 5-3 season. He also kicked 14 extra points.

41. Dan Buck was his team's fifth man with a 42, one stroke greater than Carroll's 41.

McNamara adjusted quickly to Rob Roy's par 35 layout. They've also meshed gears during two tournaments this year in landing the top prize in each. No frosh-soph match was played.

HUSKIES TUNED UP

Hersey primed for their crucial encounter against Palatine and Prospect last night with a brilliant 157-163 triumph over tough Lake Park.

Ray Peterson paced the Husky charge with a sparkling 37 over Buffalo Grove's par 36 layout and got ample support from Al Glaser's 39, Kurt Miller's 40 and Bruce Conroy's 41. Mike Henry chipped in with a 42, Tom Schnell's 43 and Jeff Kallman's 44.

Hersey's consistency was easily enough to stop Lancers Phil Christoff's 38, Brad Brodbeck's 42 Brian Hofeldt's

WILDCATS IN-OFF-NIGHT

Wheeling would just as soon forget it ever challenged host Barrington as it shot a miserable 182 to the Broncos' 167. It was easily the Wildcats' worst outing of the season after previous efforts in the 150's.

Mark Bull paced Wheeling with a 42 while Chris Krolack carded a 45. Dave Mehlberg toured the Biltmore Country Club grounds in 47 while Bob Winter and Jack Kennedy each soared to 48's.

Barrington countered with Jim Arnold's 40, Norm Maher and Mike Curran's 42's and a 43 by Stan Swanson for the decision. The Broncos made it a clean sweep with a triumph on the frosh-soph level.

On Track At Missouri

Cadet Philip Smith of Prospect Heights is a member of the varsity track squad at Missouri Military Academy, Mexico, Mo. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Smith and participates under head track coach Capt. David Arnold.

Athletic participation is compulsory for all cadets at the school for boys in fourth through 12th grades. The program is part of a three-way effort to develop physical fitness along with academic excellence and leadership training through ROTC.

Radzis Tabbed For ISU

Bob Radzis, a 6-4, 225-pound senior at Elk Grove High School, has signed a national letter-of-intent to attend Indiana State University on a football grant-in-aid.

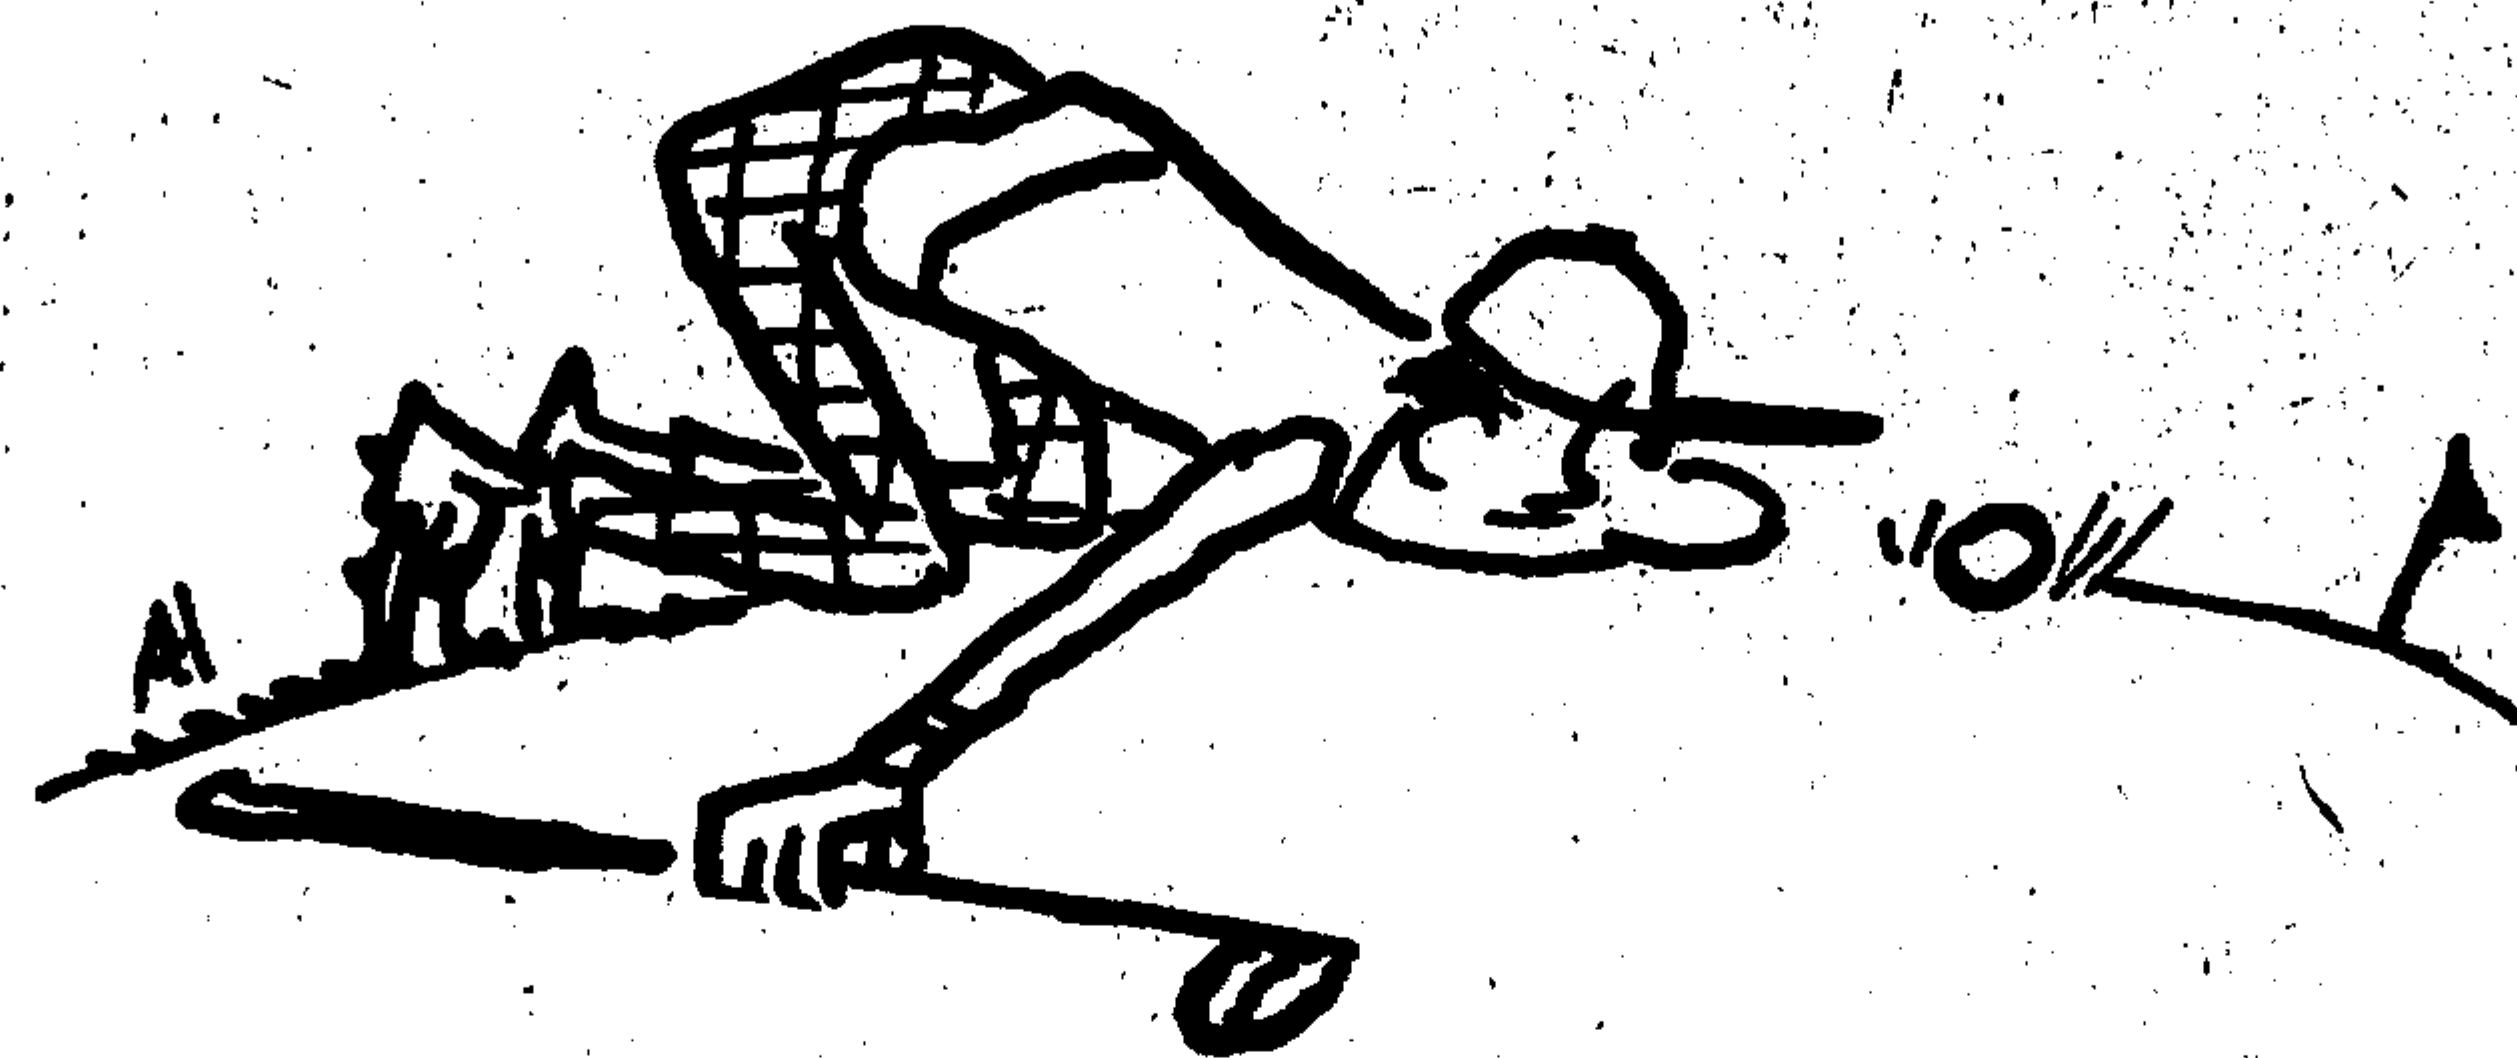

Radzis was an all-conference and all-area selection as both an offensive and defensive lineman and was a Golden Helmet award winner while helping lead the Grenadiers to a 7-1 record and the Mid-Suburban League Championship.

Bob also competes in track at Elk Grove and is a major factor in head coach Jim Wendler's field events of discus and shot. Coach Jerry Huntsman of ISU said Radzis' signing, "We feel very fortunate that Bob has picked us from among the outstanding schools who were trying to recruit him."

Mann Honored

Tom Mann, star wrestler and tennis player at Elk Grove High School, has been chosen to appear in the 1972 Edition of "Outstanding Athletes of America," according to R. E. Klopfenstein, Huntington College Athletic Director. Mann is the son of Mrs. William Mann of 923 Carwell in Elk Grove Village.

Coaches and athletic directors from individual colleges and universities across the nation nominated the winning athletes on the basis of their displayed abilities not only in athletics, but also in community service and campus activities.

Fremd Rules Frosh Meet

Impressive Fremd came up with six first places to four for Schaumburg to overtake the Saxons in the second annual Palatine Freshmen Track Invitational. The Viking first-year squad totaled 67 points to 55 for Schaumburg.

There were 12 teams entered in the meet. Host Palatine finished third with 27 points, Conant was eighth with 12 and Rolling Meadows 10th with seven.

Fremd's individual winners included John Shepulis with 6-0 in the high jump, Jim Galis with 10:16.5 in the two-mile run, and Wilson Fieldhouse with 4:51.3 in the mile run.

Three Viking relay units also were victorious — the two-mile team with 8:46.9, the mile team with 3:41.3 and the 800 quartet with 1:38.0.

Schaumburg's firsts came from Brad Cell with 19-5 1/4 in the long jump, Ken Jaffke with 109-1 in the discus throw, Bruce Mahlig with 10-7 1/2 in the pole vault and the low hurdles shuttle relay with :51.7.

The only other winner from the area was Palatine's Eugene Mollenkamp with :16.2 in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Scotty's Heating jumped into first place in the Hoffman Estates Men's Wednesday Night Golf League with 18 points. The team of Scotty Clelland, Tom Glessner, John Murray, Dave Polancic and Bob Sutton combined for a low net of 192. The individual low net went to Herb Keese and George Davis with 33's.

The individual low net for an alternate went to Bob Wylie while low gross honors were captured by Bob Allen, Bob Powell and Jack Reedy who fired 43's. The league played the Yellow Nine at Golden Acres Country Club.

Palatine Wins Pair; Now 9-3

It was a very productive Saturday for the Palatine tennis team. Going outside the Mid-Suburban League, the Pirates pounded Woodstock, 5-0, and Lake Zurich, 4-1.

Only once did the Pirates of John Carlson allow their opponents the satisfaction of a match victory while racking up their eighth and ninth wins of the season.

This was how they hammered Woodstock:

Matt Borman over Roger Smith, 6-1, 6-0; Kevin McNamara over Rick Goeb-bert, 6-4, 6-0; Scott Dawson over Dave Boehart, 6-1, 6-1; Steve Snyder and Paul Clapper over Boehart and Tim Rachford, 6-0, 6-0; and Fred Hoegler and Dick McNabney over Brad Hamson and Tom Mitchell, 6-3, 7-5.

The four wins over Lake Zurich came like this:

Borman over Jeff Wilke, 6-1, 6-3; McNamara over Tom Schober, 6-2, 6-1;

Dawson over Dave Johnson, 6-0, 6-1; and Snyder and Clapper over Bill Kirchner and Steve Stephanidis, 6-1, 6-0.

Suffering the only setback was the team of McNabney and Hoegler to Gary McGonigle and Don Nieves, 6-2, 6-1.

Lions Beat Don Netmen

St. Viator kept its hopes alive for repeating as the Suburban Catholic Conference tennis champion with its 5-0 victory over Notre Dame Tuesday.

The hosting Lions were pushed just once past two sets in recording their fifth SCC victory against two losses. It was also their 11th win of the season.

Tom Wenzel, St. Viator's fine freshman player, stayed undefeated against varsity competition. Wenzel, now 9-0, had little trouble with Greg Leazer in third singles, 6-0, 6-1.

Mike McMahon stopped Rick Bava in first singles, 7-5, 6-0, and Mike Revnes beat Connie Trela, 6-2, 7-5, in second singles.

The first doubles team of Mark Savage and Tom Meyer posted a pair of 6-1 decisions over Ed Figura and Jamie Zimniewicz. However, Tom Cole and Tom Marshall were pushed the distance against a tough doubles team of John Heubusch and Pat McDonald, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

The Dons salvaged the day with a 4-1 victory over a good St. Viator frosh-soph team.

St. Viator Wins 10th Net Meet

St. Viator's tennis team finally hit the double figure mark Saturday against hosting Wheeling.

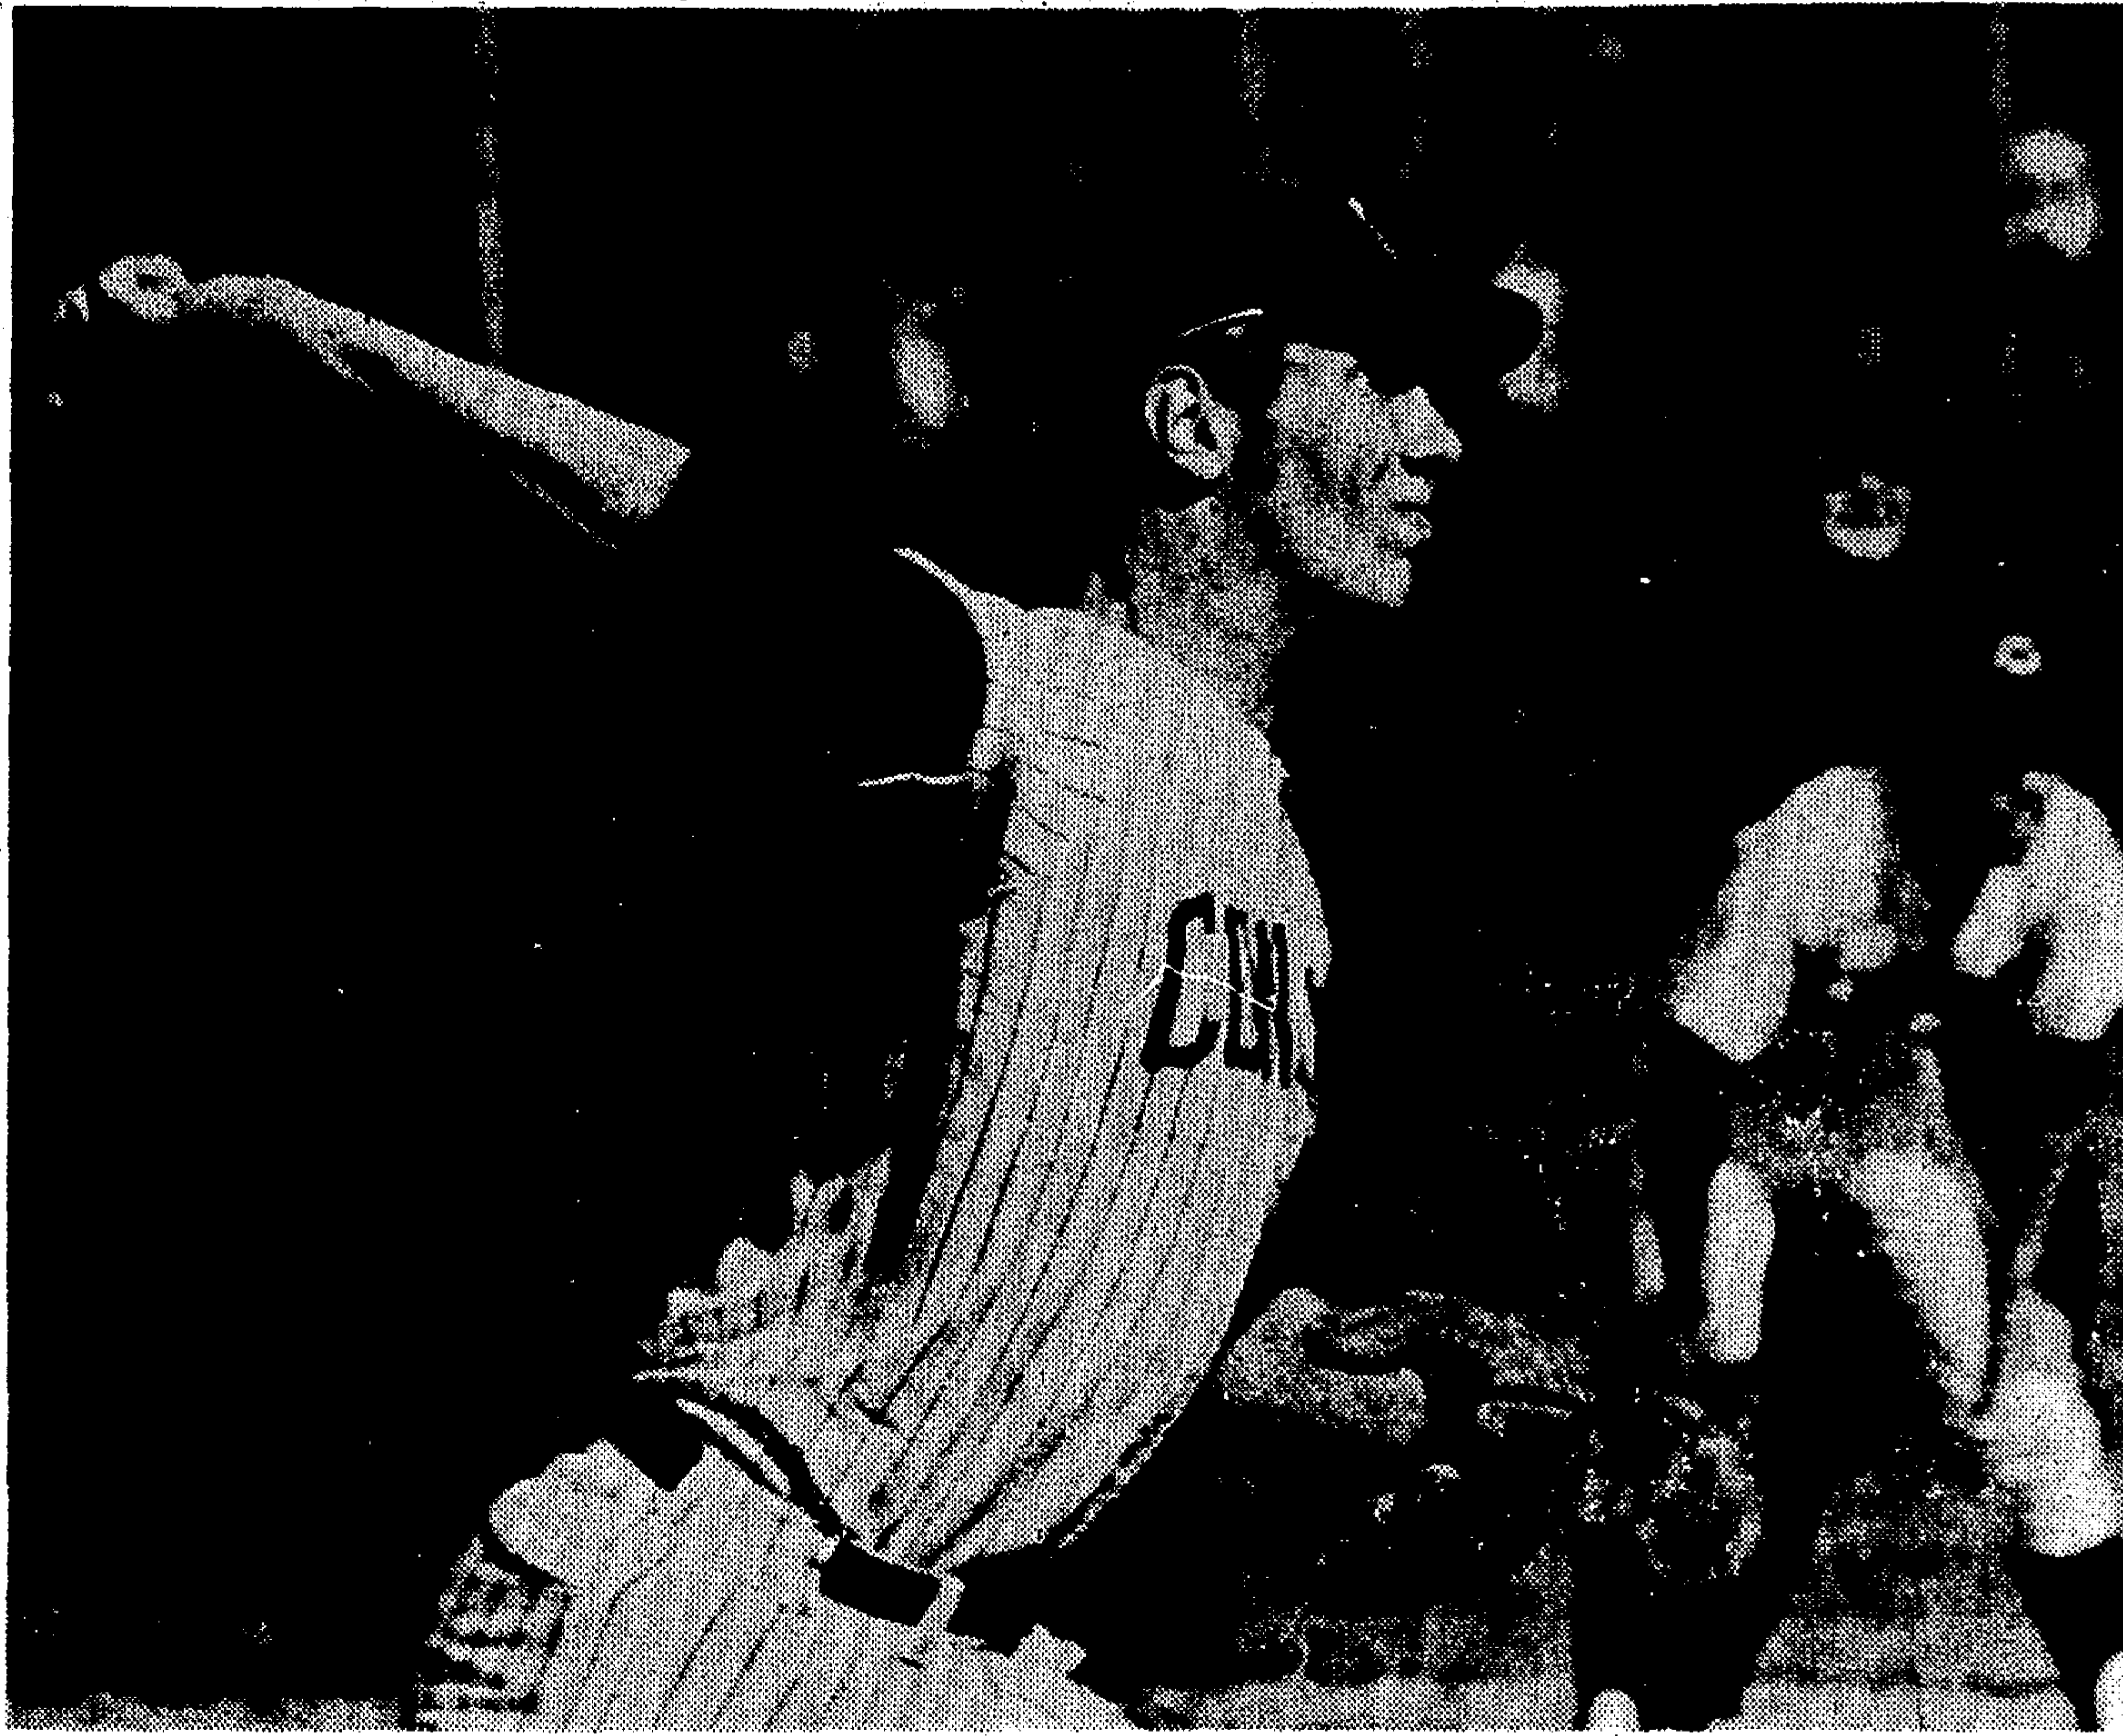

The Lions, losing only in second doubles, romped to a 4-1 victory over the Wildcat netmen. This gave the winners their 10th triumph against just four losses. The 'Cats dropped their eighth in a row and their 10th in 11 tries.

These youngsters accounted for St. Viator's points:

Mike Revnes over Vern Fish, 6-4, 8-7; Mark Savage over Dave McAlister, 6-4, 6-4; Tom Meyer over Mark Shiozaki, 6-3, 6-1; and Russ Fitton and Larry Deger over Tim Havorsen and Dave Neukucatz, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

The team of John Kyle and Chris Pienta handed Tom Marshall and Tom Cole, 6-4, 6-4.

The Lion frosh-soph team posted its eighth shutout of the season, 5-0.

STRONG RIGHTY Chet Pudlosky of Conant delivers en route to his five-hit, 2-1 victory over Barrington Tuesday for the Barrington District title. Pudlosky walked just three and struck out five as Conant won the Barrington meet for the second straight year. The only run was allowed on a two-out double in the third inning before Conant came back in the following frame for the winning score on an infield roller by George Pettee.

Prospect 2nd In Fenton Tennis Quad

Prospect, competing in the Fenton quadrangular tennis meet, finished second behind the hosting Bisons Saturday in Bensenville.

Only the Knights' doubles team of Mark Meves and Jeff Risteen managed to win twice. The twosome stopped foes from Fenton and Elgin.

The other four matches were split decisions. Bob Zimmerman lost to Fenton and beat Proviso West, John Waters lost to Proviso and defeated Elgin, Steve Ristow lost to Elgin and beat Proviso and the doubles team of Steve McMurry and Chuck Clemins beat Fenton and then dropped one to Elgin.

Placing third was Elgin with Proviso bringing up the rear. Prospect coach Jim Wright praised Ristow's comeback victory in the consolation bracket for giving the Knights second place.

New Tax Assessing Practices Told

Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton yesterday released a report from the consulting firm of Real Estate Research Corp. which suggests "a completely modern, progressive, and revolutionary approach to the assessment of real property for taxation purposes."

Cullerton said the new system will assure fairness and uniform treatment for all taxpayers in the county.

The report calls for an established classification system for assessing property. This proposal will formalize the long established practice of the assessor in valuing single-family residences and small apartment buildings at a much lower percentage of value than commercial and industrial properties.

BEFORE ADOPTING the proposed classification system, Cullerton said his office would carefully analyze any proposal to ensure continued consideration for the home owner without disruption of the overall tax base.

Cullerton also said that before any new classification system for assessment purposes was formally adopted, he wanted to hear from all interested citizens, particularly home owners organizations and civic groups with special interest and concern for the problem. To accomplish this, Cullerton announced that public hearings would be held so that all would have an opportunity to express their views.

Cullerton stressed, however, that no new classification system would be adopted which would alter the present system which gives special consideration to the home owners. "I want to emphasize that any new system which emerges from these public hearings and from the studies which we have conducted over the last year should continue my practice of assessing homes and small apartment buildings at a much lower rate than high rise office buildings and industrial and commercial properties," Cullerton said.

The county assessor also said the new system would not have the effect of causing across-the-board assessment and tax increases. This new modern approach to assessment will guarantee fairness to property owners, he said.

AT A PRESS conference, Cullerton said the report outlines the progress which his office has made during the last year in attempting to overhaul and modernize the assessment system in order to make it one of the best assessing systems in the country.

The Real Estate Research Corp. was commissioned in November, 1970 to conduct the first study of the assessor's office in its 40-year history. Since then the consultant has worked with the assessor to assist in the implementation of the initial recommendations for modernization.

The report calls for the eventual reassessment of all 1.3 million parcels of property in the county on the basis of their market values, something that had never been done before in the county.

Cullerton said: "This does not mean all property will be assessed at full market value. Different ratios or percentages of market value will be used to set assessed values for each class of property. But market value will be the basic yardstick for such assessments."

This approach, according to the report, is not only more modern, but will guarantee equal and fair treatment for all property owners.

CULLERTON ADDED that he was authorizing the immediate implementation of the recommendations of the report. These included the continuation of his policy of revaluing the highest valued properties in the county, a policy which he authorized last year and which he said expanded the tax base in order to keep the lid on skyrocketing tax rates.

"Everyone knows property taxes are too high," Cullerton said, "but this action we are undertaking today will go a long way toward assuring all taxpayers that everyone is paying his fair share."

Cullerton said new sources of revenue must be found to relieve the property tax burden of homeowners, many of whom are living on fixed incomes.

Want To Be Reading Tutor? State Program Needs You

Is tutoring in reading your "thing"? Of interest to you, then, should be the Right To Read Effort program being supported by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction in Springfield.

During the month of May the Office, in conjunction with the National Reading Center, will conduct Volunteer Tutor Training programs throughout the state. The tutors that have been trained in these workshops will then return to their local area and train additional tutors. These tutors should be people that have had some experience in working with children and a knowledge of basic educational principles. Former teachers would be ideal candidates.

The program has several complementary facets. It involves training of tutor trainers, the training of volunteer reading tutors, the orienting of classroom teachers who will work with volunteers and the training of volunteer program coordinators.

The two-day workshop being held in Chicago May 15 and 16 is designed to train the tutor trainers. It will include how to use the 12-hour tutor training curriculum which they will conduct in their own area, how to use the 3-hour teachers orientation program, how to use the pre and post tests for the measurement of skills achievement and how to teach the tutor to use his tutor's guide.

Additionally, some time is devoted to instruction in principles of adult education and to the needs and problems related to training volunteers.

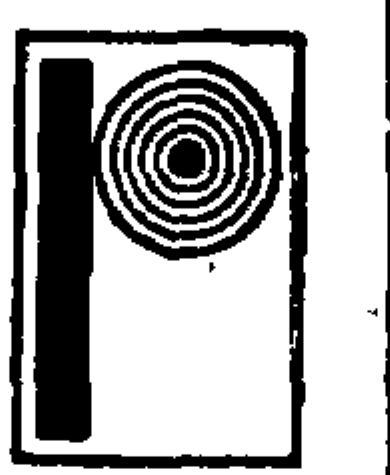

IF YOU ARE interested in this program contact the central office of the Volunteer Service Bureau, now located at Dist. 214 Administration Center, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, 398-1320.

These tutors will in no way supplant the unique skills of the classroom teacher. These volunteers will not initiate the instructional process, but will work under the immediate supervision of the professional teacher.

Volunteers will be used in the School Dist. 25 summer program in Arlington Heights. College students and high schoolers may find an assignment this summer within the district.

Countryside, Clearbrook and Little City — all of which are special facilities for the handicapped — will be conducting summer programs and will utilize volunteers. Countryside Center for the Handicapped is located in Barrington, Clearbrook School is located in Rolling Meadows, and Little City is in Palatine. Hill-top Foundation located in Bloomingdale is a facility for the severely handicapped.

Daley Opposes Third Airport On City

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley said Wednesday he is "unequivocally opposed to building an airport" in Lake Michigan and to a third airport for the Chicago area.

Daley made the statement, his first saying he apparently has abandoned the idea of an airport in the lake, in calling for a full-scale revision of plans for high-rise development along the lakefront.

Daley told a City Hall news conference Midway Airport on the Southwest Side should be revitalized instead of building any third airport. He said Midway could become the nation's 10th busiest airport. O'Hare, on the Northwest Side, is the nation's busiest.

"I am unequivocally opposed to building a third airport. I am unequivocally opposed to building an airport in the lake," Daley said.

"It is obvious that Midway and O'Hare can care for the present and anticipated needs of our city and its people. I have repeatedly stated that there would be no airport in the lake if it adversely affected the ecology of the lake.

"Despite this constant reiteration, there is a refusal on the part of some to accept this fixed policy. I love this city and I love these people and the administration will do nothing to deface our greatest natural resource."

Daley had been criticized strongly for speaking about building an airport in Lake Michigan. Environmental groups also had criticized him for pushing "a wall of highrises along the lake."

Daley said he was taking steps to update a plan disclosed by the city for construction along Chicago's lakefront. Commissioner Lewis W. Hill of the Chicago Planning and Development Department has been holding sessions with Illinois Central Industries, which owns the property on which the highrises were to be built.

Daley said he was appointing Prof. Louis Wetmore of the University of Illinois department of planning to update the plan, prepared in 1966 by the consulting firm of Johnson, Johnson and Roy. Daley said he had directed the plan be ready for submission to the City Council in 90 days and public hearings to be held afterward.

Visiting Poet At St. Viator High

St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights has a poet in residence this week.

Lucien Stryk, professor of English at Northern Illinois University and a contributor to one of the texts currently being used by the English Department, is conducting readings and directing poetry and creative writing classes. His visit to the school was arranged with the cooperation of the Illinois Arts Council.

Bernice McCarthy, an English teacher at St. Viator, is serving as coordinator for the week's poetry and writing activities.

Announce Plan To Lower Small Towns' Bond Costs

A plan that could help lower bond issue costs of many small Illinois communities was announced recently by The First National Bank of Chicago.

The bank said it will bid on general obligation bonds issued by any Illinois governmental corporation under a new policy designed to heighten competition and lower the cost of financing for communities whose bond issues have attracted few bids.

Noting that many municipalities are financially pressed by rising costs and increased demands for services, Robert C. Brown, vice president and head of the bank's municipal bond division, said:

"We believe that some costs relating to capital project financing are higher than necessary because of market imperfections. Some small communities pay above average financing costs due to lack of acceptance of their debt issues by underwriters and investors alike. Not infrequently, they receive only one bid on their issues." Participation of a major underwriter should "greatly enhance the market acceptance of smaller and less known issues," Brown added.

"UNDER ITS new policy the bank will bid on all general obligation issues it is aware of if prevailing market rates do not press against the issuer's legal rate limitation," Brown said. It will offer competitive bids also on most bonds issued by authorities and some college revenue bonds as permitted by law.

"Our policy does not imply a guarantee of these issues nor a bid higher than competitive rates," Brown said. "We believe this undertaking will perform a public service and be profitable as well."

In a letter announcing the policy to other Illinois banks, Brown and William T. Dwyer, vice president and head of First Chicago's correspondent banking division, invited banks to call attention to forthcoming issues in their areas.

The bond department has increased its staff to research the additional issues it will bid in Illinois, Brown said, and will make credit analyses available.

Of the 154 general obligation issues offered in Illinois in 1971, First National bid on 110 or 71 per cent. Par value of the issues offered in 1971 was $893 million and the bank offered bids on $823 million or 92 per cent of the issues it bid, with a valuation of $871 million or 89 per cent of the total bid.

In 1971, First Chicago's bond department sold more than $800 million in municipal bonds issued throughout the United States, up from less than $200 million five years earlier, including underwritings and sales as agent.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

LEASING AGENT Arthur Rubloff & Co. recently announced lease of two and a half floors of the O'Hare Lake Office Plaza in Des Plaines to the General Services Administration for the Federal Aviation Agency. Dennis J. Buren of the Rubloff firm and Chet Walas of Arthur

J. Rogers Enterprises, developer, were co-brokers, representing the lessor. The federal agency will occupy 96,000 square feet of space in the newly-completed, four-story building. The office complex is located on a 60-acre site at Devon Ave. and the Tri-State Tollway.

Young American Is On The Move

Members of the younger generation probably will own three or four — or more — homes during their lifetime, says Jackson W. Goss, president, Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, Mass.

Investors Mortgage Insurance, a subsidiary of Continental Investment Corp., also of Boston, is an organization in the private mortgage loan insurance industry. "Mobility is a big factor — we are a people constantly on the move," says Goss. "The average career manager professional in 1960 could expect to hold three different jobs — make at least three moves. The average now has risen to 4.2 jobs and continues to rise. Each job move — well, that means a new home."

Goss sees a pattern developing, based on recent government and private housing surveys. It starts with about 76 per cent of all newly-married couples living in rental housing — primarily apartments. It progresses on through the first home with the advent of children — a need for more and more privacy.

"We found that many couples, in their first home, look forward to the time when they can move into their next home — one with features and conveniences which they did not have before — and couldn't afford," he adds.

Goss says a survey of 2,000 young couples in their first home indicated 68 per cent of them have at least one child — "most of them expect to have more children." "While 31 per cent reported their current home is adequate for present needs," he says, "more than 55 per cent reported they were actively looking for a larger house."

The trend continues after the move into a second house, Goss notes, citing a survey of home owners in five major markets who were in their third homes. Of this group, 83 per cent moved because they needed — and wanted more space.

"At the same time, 63 per cent said that a more expensive home in a better neighborhood was a better investment — drawing on their experiences in the first two. About 71 per cent reported that promotion, advancement in career and higher income prompted them to move up," Goss says.

A survey of the 45-54 and 55-64 age groups disclosed that 54 per cent of the homeowners in these age brackets have purchased three or more homes in their lifetime. "And 29 per cent either owned leisure homes for vacation or holiday use or as tax shelter," he adds.

Goss noted that 79 per cent of the homeowners in these age brackets had college-age children, and 22 per cent in-dedicated they would be moving to a smaller house after all of the children were gone. "The arrival of children, the departure of children, the desire for more room and privacy are all contributing to multiple-home ownership over a lifetime," he said.

"There really are no complex secrets as to why we are a nation of multi-homeowners. The average family is usually more than willing to move to improve their financial or social position. The opportunity to make a profit on the sale of a home is often cited.

"And, in many cases, a plain, good old-fashioned itch to move for a change of scenery is responsible. These are just a few of the thousands of reasons that people give for buying and selling — for selling and buying," Goss concludes.

MAP TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

SPRING TIME IS HOME SHOPPERS TIME!

Generally speaking, there is really no bad time to sell a home, but it is safe to assume that of all the seasons, Spring is generally considered the most active period for home buyer interest.

Obviously, as the days become longer, the brightness of early Spring brings more home buyers out to look around and see what is available on the home market.

If you are thinking of putting your home on the market, anytime is a good time but Spring time is generally considered the best because of the increased activity in home buying interest. We recommend you do things to help sell your home quickly and economically.

1. Make any necessary repairs to the home including all needed cleaning and minor decorating (this will enhance the value of the home considerably) and . . .
2. Call a M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service Real Estate office for the professional service that assures you of guaranteed satisfaction.

Pekin Enters Condo Market

Ben Pekin Corp., developer, builder and operator of rental apartments based in Arlington Heights, announced its entry into the condominium market with three new developments in Palatine, Wheeling and Westmont.

A total of 2,500 apartments will be built and marketed during the next 24 months. The first 534 units are located in a six building development, Baybrook Park in Palatine.

"After 10 years as an apartment builder," said corporation president Ben Pekin, "we're doing a 180 degree turn and entering the condominium market on an exclusive basis. I have seen the many changes in the housing market which have been due to a combination of rising construction costs, premium land prices and changing tax situations. All of these have changed the home buying market drastically. In spite of the 1,400 rental apartments my company successfully operates on a very competitive basis, my associates and I are convinced that condominium ownership is the only answer for a great majority of today's home seekers in this area."

Pekin went on to explain comparative living costs between owned and rented apartments; tax advantages for all income groups whether they are approaching eligibility for old age exemptions or are battling the estate building road blocks of middle years; and the hedge which real estate ownership affords against inflation.

Baybrook Park on Palatine Road (just west of Rt. 53) will be a cluster of one and two bedroom mid-rise condominium apartment buildings, nearby a public park and surrounding a man made lake.

All the amenities found in luxurious rental apartment complexes — clubhouse, swimming pool, saunas, etc., — are part of the plan for "engineered environment," said Pekin.

The concrete construction fireproof buildings, with a window in every kitchen and a king sized balcony off of each centrally heated and air conditioned apartment, will offer security and luxury generally associated with expensive living.

Model apartment details will be available about May 25 at the rental office.

NOISE-ASSISTED record was set for sound deadening insulation board shipments during 1971. Enough of it was produced to wall off more than a quarter-million average size rooms. The specially made structural product is designed exclusively to absorb noise passing through walls from room-to-room. Overall, shipments of this material have increased 300 per cent since it was introduced in 1964, according to the Acoustical and Insulating Materials Association.

Summer Cooling Advice Offered

A central summer cooling system should be operated like a winter heating system: keep the house closed and instead of turning the unit on and off by switch, let the thermostat control it, says the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The advice is in a new circular, Cooling Systems, just issued by the U. of I. Small Homes Council-Building Research Council in its non-technical series for homeowners and planners.

"If the house is left open until the indoor temperature becomes uncomfortable, it will take a considerable length of time before the cooling system can catch up and there is any noticeable change in humidity and temperature," the circular advises. "Opening windows after sunset allows considerable amounts of humid air to enter the house, undoing all the work of the cooling system." If night cooling by outdoor air is used, the house should be closed in the morning before the indoor temperature rises, the system switched on and the thermostat allowed to control it," the report continued.

The circular tells how various types of coolers work, explains ducts and other systems for central air conditioning, and on sizing advises, "unlike heating, cooling systems should not be oversized because for dehumidification the evaporator must be kept cold. Therefore, the compressor must run almost continuously for maximum comfort."

Copies of the circular are 15 cents each, as are single copies of others issued by the SHC-BRC. A complete set of the earlier 32 circulars is $4.50 or bound into a book for $5. Order from Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, One E. Saint Mary's Road, Champaign, Ill. 61820.

Design & Build Co. is currently leasing 12,000 square feet in the Klefsted Industrial Park on S. Vermont St. The new 20,000 square foot brick building located at 558 S. Vermont should be completed in late August.

Design & Build employs approximately 25 people engaged in the manufacture of special machining and tooling for the plastics industry. The company also has welding and fabricating equipment used to manufacture piece parts for the telephone industry.

Joining Donald P. Post, president of Design & Build (also a resident of Palatine), were Mrs. Marcia Elsner, secretary; Choyce Chadwick, plant manager; John Stehle, chief engineer; and Mrs. Georgia Allen, director of purchasing.

Need A House Detective?

by LEA TONKIN

House hunters, do those "minor repairs" blithely mentioned by the present owner of your dream house give you an uneasy feeling about buying a home in the suburbs? Was there a hint of dampness in the basement when you trekked through the house, or did you have trouble determining the presence or condition of insulation? How about those nasty rumors you've been hearing about termites and dry rot in the foundations?

Well, before you make that final commitment, call in a friendly building inspector. For an average $65 to $70 fee, this "house detective" will case the premises from chimney to cellar.

A written inspection report will be furnished on a day's notice, if need be, according to Paul Waldorf. He is president of the Nationwide Real Estate Inspectors Service, Inc. The New York-based firm has a network of field representatives around the country, available by telephone.

Waldorf said the firm had 10 regional offices including a Chicago facility until about a year and a half ago. Then the business started expanding too rapidly and Waldorf decided to handle all calls for service through a central toll free telephone number in New York.

"We usually find $1,000 to $1,500 in repairs needed on a house," said Waldorf. He noted that new as well as existing homes are subject to defects or maintenance problems. Key areas for inspection are: condition of the roof, exterior walls or attic, checking for leaks or dry rot or excessive condensation; evidence of termites; condition of cellar, wet walls or basement drainage; inadequate wiring of homes built even 10 years ago; condition of plumbing and water pressure; condition of heating and hot water system.

"Wet basements are a particular problem in the Chicago area," said Waldorf. "Also, galvanized plumbing is widely used in the area. It starts corroding and needs replacing much faster than brass or copper plumbing."

Other areas checked on the company's inspection report include ceilings, walls and floors; drainage around the building; insulation; doors, windows, gutters, porches, stairways, storms and screens; ventilation of attic and cellar areas; adequacy of caulking, weatherstripping; garages, balconies, fireplace; general quality of construction; chimneys and fireplaces. Each Nationwide inspector is a licensed professional engineer who has had home building experience, according to Waldorf.

He estimates that the company's load will reach 8,000 to 10,000 inspections this year. Noting that the concept of building inspection is just beginning to catch on in the Chicago area, Waldorf projects a hefty increase in his volume by 1973.

Waldorf has been in the building inspection business 13 years. Single family home inspections make up the bulk of his business. He also sends representatives to check apartment buildings, industrial and commercial developments. Costs range upward according to the size of the structure.

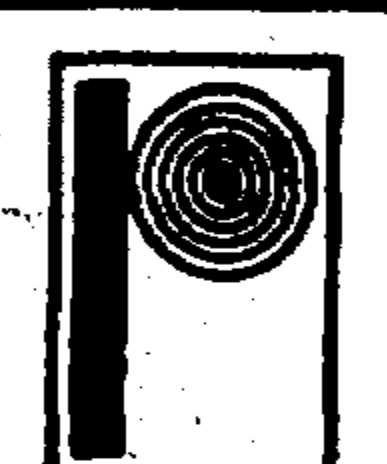

"It's a relatively new phenomenon," said Waldorf of the inspection service. "But people start to realize that they're making the largest single purchase of their entire life without knowing anything about it." He says no written guarantee is given for the inspection report, but adds that the house detective learns how to look for symptoms of trouble.

"We've developed our own field inspection manual," said Waldorf. Projecting the total volume market for building inspection, Waldorf estimates that his firm will inspect approximately 8 percent of all homes sold in the U.S. within several years.

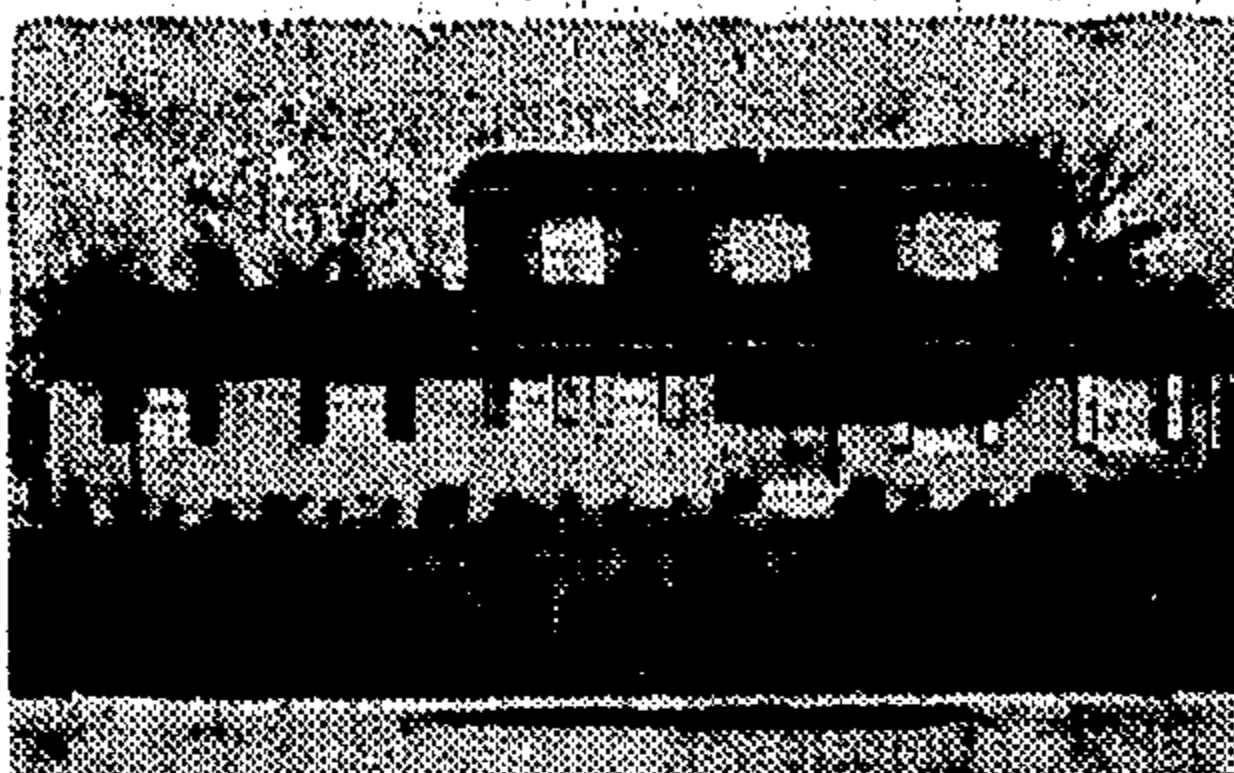

Buyers taking advantage of this service often transfer from one part of the country to another, according to Waldorf. A building inspection eliminates some of the uncertainty in buying a new or used home, he says.

When we first got into the building inspection business, Waldorf expected a large share of his trade to originate with property sellers who could use the report as a sales tool. He found, however, that buyers who want to know what they're getting in a home must pay for this service.

Cite Expansion In Warehousing

Marshall Bennett, partner, Bennett & Kahnweiler, has announced that 18 buildings, totaling approximately 600,000 square feet, have been sold or leased in Centex during the past 60 days.

According to Bennett, this recent activity in the Elk Grove Village industrial park reflects a gradual upward demand for industrial expansion with most of the emphasis in the warehousing area instead of manufacturing. According to Bennett, many manufacturers have increased their production capacity, thus creating the need for additional warehouse space.

Six companies already in Centex have expanded within the park during this period. General Tire & Rubber Co. was the largest and moved into an additional 105,555 square feet; Hanes Corp. moved into 40,500 square feet; Owens Corning Fiberglass leased an additional 19,000 square feet; Commercial Machine, a division of Alco Standard, took 10,000 square feet; Walter M. Carveville leased 20,000 square feet and Eskay Screw Products purchased a 27,200 square foot building on King St., (this is their fourth building in Centex).

Several new companies have moved or are in the process of moving into the area such as Xerox Corp., whose building is currently being completed on Touhy Ave.; Nabisco, World Battery Corp., Humble Oil, Pioneer Electric and Lennox Engineering. In addition to these, there have been numerous smaller deals made throughout the industrial park. These sales and leases do not reflect the fact that a large number of land sales were also completed during this period and will be announced at a future date.

According to Bennett, the activity in Centex during the past sixty days has been much greater than in any of the other industrial areas throughout metropolitan Chicago. He said most of this expansion activity involving warehousing operations has taken place in Centex because of its excellent access to major truck routes, its rail switching facilities and its proximity to O'Hare Airport.

ONE OF FLEXIBLE model homes offered by Welcome shown above. This Countryside model has three bedrooms in the Rolling Hills of Hanover Park project is rooms, two-car garage and recreation area.

A New Rolling Hills Project Is Opened

Following the development of Rolling Hills of St. Charles, Welcome Homes Co., has opened another community planned around the same concept: Rolling Hills of Hanover Park.

Five models are offered, including mid-levels, split-levels, and ranches. According to Al H. Kaufman, director of sales of Welcome Homes Co., the initial selection is only a beginning. "Welcome Homes Co. is actually a merger of two firms, Welcome Homes and Trend Homes. Both of these builders have specialized in offering a high degree of flexibility. We'll allow the buyer to make any structurally feasible specifications he wishes — altering the room arrangement, doors in different places, rooms larger or smaller — anything within reason," he said.

"In Rolling Hills of Hanover Park our prices will run from the mid 20's to the mid 30's. If one of our customers wants a special alteration in the floor plan or architectural style and the cost to us is the same there is no increase in the price." Kaufman added that 1½ to 2½ car garages, 1½ to 2½ baths, gas range, sliding glass patio doors, customized post-formed counter tops, ceramic wall tile in bath area, colored plumbing fixtures, and poured concrete foundations will be standard features on all models.

Streets and utilities are also complete and homeowners in the area can expect to be free of any special assessments in the foreseeable future, said Kaufman.

Construction of models in Rolling Hills of Hanover Park will begin in the near future. The model area will be located just north of Lake St. on Hemlock Ave., one mile west of Barrington Road.

Listing Is Advised By Board President

"Existing homes can be expected to sell readily in the immediate months ahead," Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, said recently.

He commented on information discussed during the May directors meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB). More than 1,500 Realtors from across the nation attended the annual gathering in Chicago from May 3-9.

June, July, and August rank above all other months in volume of transactions, according to Pipenhagen. "May, in consequence, is an excellent month to list a home on the market."

"In addition, mortgage credit is expected to be readily available, with a variety of terms to match borrower needs. There is some possibility that mortgage

Model Homes Are Announced

Ashbury, the newest division in the Lancer Park complex located in Schaumburg, features three new model homes starting in price at $33,500.

The models include the Burke, a three-bedroom ranch priced at $35,500; the Trenton, also a three-bedroom ranch for $33,500; and the Briarcliff, a three-bedroom bi-level priced at $35,800. All models contain one-and-a-half baths, and can be custom designed to include four bedrooms.

The homes include oven and range, dishwasher, wood kitchen cabinets, carpeting and storm windows and screens. Lots will be seeded and improved with a driveway leading to an attached garage.

Ashbury is the third "neighborhood" to open in the Lancer Park community. The homes are primarily aimed at young marrieds with growing families.

Many of the homes are set back on cul-de-sac streets away from the busier thoroughfares. In addition, amenities include a neighborhood park now under construction, containing baseball diamonds, tennis courts, a fieldhouse and a swimming pool.

The new section covers 80 acres and plans call for about 200 homes to be built, according to Al Bercher, vice president of the building firm.

The entire Lancer Park complex spans about 350 acres. Other neighborhoods include Benwick, presently nearing completion; and Carlisle, which is sold out.

Lancer plans to leave almost 40 acres of the development in its natural state for public use and recreation. Ashbury is located on Plum Grove Road, two miles south of Higgins Road.

Early Spring Transfers Posted In Wheeling Twp.

Arlington Heights' 68 property sales topped activity in the early spring Wheeling township real estate transfer report from Cook County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

The report listed the sales of 24 properties in Mount Prospect, 15 in Buffalo Grove, five in Prospect Heights, and 23 in Wheeling and elsewhere in the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document ($1 in stamps for each $1,000 of market value).

The transfers are:

Here's the book that answers the most asked questions about mortgages.

For example:

- What are the different types of mortgages?
- What service charges and fees should you expect?
- How do you shop for a mortgage?
- What are the hidden costs in buying a home?

- What does the length of a mortgage mean in dollars and cents?
- How much home can you really afford to buy?
- Why is it wise to have a lawyer when you buy a home?
- Exactly what is included in a monthly mortgage payment?

And every question is answered in plain, simple English!

We'll also give you a valuable source of information for any other questions you may have about home financing.

Curb Appeal Is Among Criteria

Design 72, the first home design competition in the Chicagoland area inaugurated last year with Design 71, is being judged by members of the Chicago Chapter, American Institute of Architects, and representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

Sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland, under the auspices of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago of which it is a division, the Design 72 competition in December invited builders in the greater Chicago area to submit entries for consideration in five divisions, according to housing type and including a new category, land use-total environment. Entries of homes of all types and in all price ranges have been submitted from a six-county area.

Preliminary judging took place last week and final judging is scheduled this week.

Members of the jury representing the architects are: W. R. Hasbrouck, executive director, Chicago Chapter, American-Institute of Architects, who is acting as jury chairman; Walker Johnson of Holabird and Root; Laurence Booth of Booth & Nagle, Architects; and Ed Hall of Norton & Hall, Architects.

Judges representing the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry are Mrs. Adelyn Jewell of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.; Mrs. Muriel Van Waning of John M. Smyth & Co.; and Hal Bergdahl, management consultant.

Criteria for judging include curb appeal — overall exterior design including relationship to land site; interior floor plan; basic quality of materials and construction; use of new ideas; and total value for the dollar — this involves relationship of value of total package to sales or rental price considering location, size of home, workmanship, etc.

The objectives of the competition are to direct attention to the new designs in homes available today in the greater Chicago market; to provide individual builders and architects with recognition by their peers; and to focus attention on the progressive trends and contributions of the entire Chicago area home building industry.

Winners of the Design 72 competition will be announced and presented with plaques at a special Gold Key Awards Dinner to be held on Thursday, May 18, at 6 p.m. at the Sheraton Oakbrook in Oakbrook.

Research Plots Success Course

When most homebuyers move into their new homes, they have been preceded by a progression of surveyors, landscapers and carpenters. But when their home is built by The Larwin Group, it's likely that a marketing research professional laid the groundwork before a single nail was hammered.

Larwin, the national housing producer and real estate development subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp., has produced more than 28,000 homes in 56 communities nationwide since 1948, and marketing research has come to play an increasingly important role in the development of the Larwin product.

"Marketing research suggests the type of community to develop, and how to make our homes appeal to the potential homebuying family," commented Dean Dillman Jr., director of marketing of the Illinois Region of Larwin's single family housing division.

More than 25 skilled professionals staff Larwin's marketing research department. An IBM 360-40 computer system and an extensive research library enable Larwin's marketing researchers to gather reliable information about its homebuilding activities, both present and future. "We insist on the accuracy and quick response of our own staff and seek only a minimum of outside services in this area," Dillman said.

The responsibility of Larwin's in-house marketing researchers is twofold. Consumer research enables Larwin to build better homes with more desirable amenities; market analysis helps Larwin to discover where its product will fill the greatest need, said Dillman.

"Consumer research determines what the homebuyer or apartment resident wants most in the way of style, floorplans, amenities, and other features," said Richard L. Earlix, Larwin Co. vice president and director of the marketing research department. "Market analysis is a research discipline that precedes even land acquisition or product design. Larwin's executive management is briefed on the feasibility of developing a new housing program, an apartment community, or a recreational community in any area under consideration. This enables Larwin to design its community to each new region," Earlix continued. "We think this is one way that a major housing producer can ensure that its communities are well planned and suitable for areas of expansion."

Questionnaires, interviews, analysis of economic data and electronic data processing convert the bulk of raw information into specific answers to questions about feasibility, profitability and program design. Of more than 100 in-depth studies completed each year by the department, less than 25 per cent are finally approved for development.

"Within the last three years," Earlix said, "Larwin has expanded into multiple family and urban housing, recreational communities development, real estate investment trust management and new areas of single family housing. The success that we've enjoyed in these areas can be linked in large measure to the success of our marketing research efforts."

In 1971, Larwin marketed 7,783 homes and apartments nationally. Its revenues increased to $188 million, with pre-tax earnings reaching a record of $25.9 million. Larwin is currently marketing its 1,000-acre Greenbrook Country in DuPage County, featuring three architecturally distinct villages as part of one overall community plan.

The Larwin Group has major divisions in single family, multiple family, and urban housing, recreational communities development, mortgage banking, real estate investment trust management, and commercial development.

Observe Realtor Week

Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, announced national observance of Realtor Week during May 21-28. He said the theme of this year's activities is, Call your Realtor — he sells America first — everyday.

Arthur W. Pipenhagen

tor Week during May 21-28. He said the theme of this year's activities is, Call your Realtor — he sells America first — everyday.

Pipenhagen listed the schedule of events through Saturday as members of his board join about 100,000 Realtors nationwide in calling attention to the positive attributes of our country and the services rendered by Realtors.

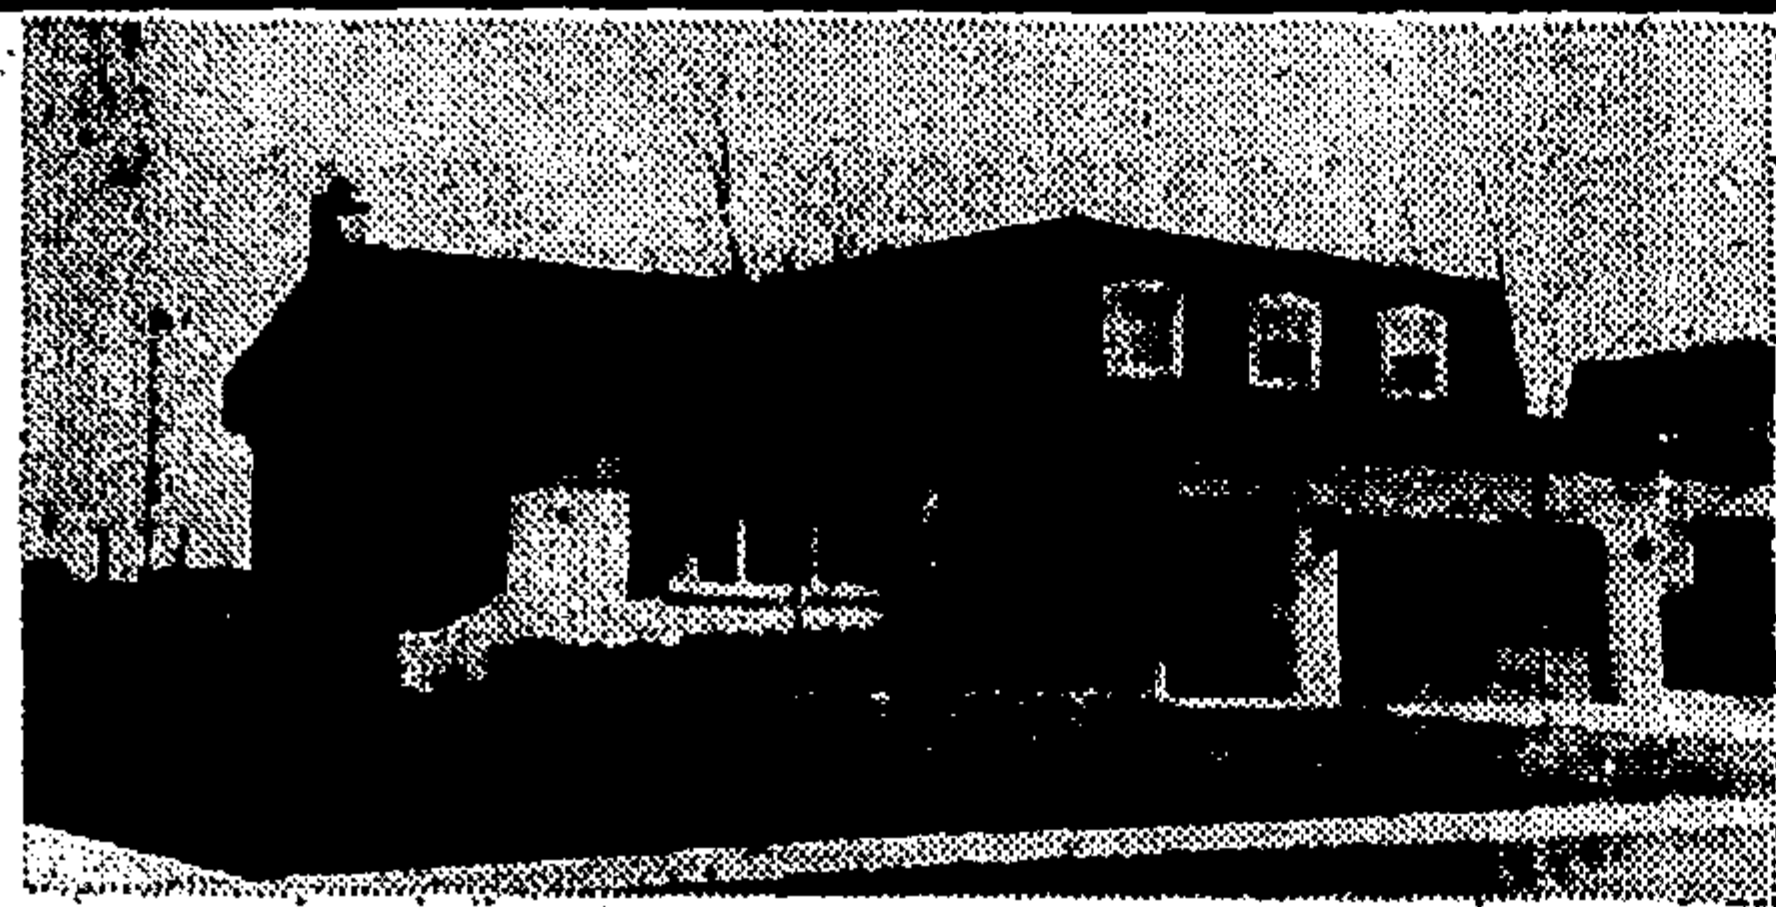

"We have heard enough of the cynicism and unfounded complaints about America and our free enterprise system," Pipenhagen said. "We have read and listened to a variety of vocal people, many with questionable motives, condemning the way of life which has given us the most prosperous, the most envied, the most powerful nation in history, with a maximum of freedom for every citizen. It's time to sell America first in every philosophical and social discussion."

"In addition, most economic predictions say that 1972 will be a period when economic factors stabilize. We foresee a banner year for anyone buying, selling, or investing in real property," said Pipenhagen.

Pipenhagen explained that a Realtor subscribes to a strict code of ethics. "As a Realtor," he continued, "he is someone with special qualifications who is a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and one of the 1,600 constituent boards." In addition, he has access to educational facilities at local, state, and national levels, Pipenhagen said.

"The code of ethics was one of the first such codes adopted in American business. Under its 30 articles, Realtors pledge fair treatment and their complete knowledge to the public and to both the buyer and the seller," said Pipenhagen. He said Realtors help more than two-thirds of the families in America own their home.

"We know of the problems which exist, but rather than complaining or tearing down a system without a responsible new method, we are trying to improve where changes are required," said Pipenhagen. He cited such areas as obtaining im-

Ivy Glen Condo Project Opened

A colonial Williamsburg theme is the hallmark of the new Ivy Glen condominium development now under construction in Aurora.

Ivy Glen, which is located on N. Randall Road, between Illinois Avenue and New Indian Trail Road, will consist of 174 two and three-bedroom condominium homes.

When completed, the development will include 42 four and five-plex buildings on the 16-acre site.

Ivy Glen is a development by Building Systems Housing Corp., a subsidiary of Building Systems, Inc.

The Williamsburg theme at Ivy Glen is carried through the names of the seven exterior designs now under construction — Raleigh House, Alexander Craig House, Braxton House, Draper House, Pitt-Dixon House, Hartwell House and Blair House.

Each Ivy Glen home has its own private entrance and garage with very adequate storage space. Walls of each home have been sound engineered to protect owner privacy.

Included in the purchase price are the newest General Electric appliances — oven-range, refrigerator, dishwasher and disposal — wall-to-wall carpeting and central heating and air conditioning.

Each living room, merges with a well-defined dining area in an L-shape.

The kitchens are equipped with wood cabinetry and counter space.

A range of colors is available in the shag and plush carpeting provided for each Ivy Glen home.

Prices range from $17,950 for a two-bedroom home to $20,500 for a three-bedroom home.

The Ivy Glen display center and model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Opposes Strikebreaking Bill

Rudd Hits State Supt.

I would like to take this time to make a few comments about House Bill 2516 which you supported in your April 27 editorial.

The reason for this bill was made clear last year when Dr. Bakalis suggested that he would like to enter salary negotiations in School District 54. At that time it was the correct legal position of the Board that, although the new State Constitution gave primary responsibility for education to the State, this did not give the State Superintendent the right to usurp the powers of a local school board without legislative implementation. This position was fully backed in Dr. Bakalis' legal defeat in the Decatur school litigation.

Giving strike-breaking power to the State Superintendent of Education is, at best, a dangerous proposition. This country has always had local control as a cornerstone of its educational system. To remove this control is to make a drastic alteration in our educational system as it now exists. We are altogether too eager to change the fundamentals of our educational system without giving due regard to the consequences of a "lost generation" which it may create.

There are other reasons, of course, for not giving the State Superintendent this power. Historically, the State Superintendent's Office has been filled with political wonder boys having political charisma, but totally lacking in a working knowledge of what is necessary to provide an adequate education for children.

Boosters Thankful

The executive board of the Maine West Music Boosters want you to know how much we appreciate your help in publicizing the musical, Mame.

Ruth Reinhardt, our excellent newspaper publicity chairman, told the board of how helpful and cooperative the staff of the Herald were to her.

Thank you again.
Rita Swanson, Secretary
Maine West Boosters

especially in the elementary systems. Even when the rare time comes that a knowledgeable person fills the State Superintendent's Office, the decisions as to which district to enter and what strike to break will always be left to the State Superintendent's lieutenants which have always been educationally un knowledgeable political hacks completely dominated by the patronage system, the present Administration being no exception. We are not, therefore, talking about giving the State Superintendent as an individual the enlarged power, but rather talking about giving it to a handful of politically dominated people, most of whom have no experience in the education field.

The centralization of power in the State Superintendent's Office will eventually lead to a state teacher classification which will effectively place teachers in the status of Civil Service personnel and will make no distinction for cost of living in the various areas. This will be disastrous to areas such as the Northwest suburbs. Teachers, rightfully so, will probably refuse to buckle under such a power grab.

Strikes, of course, will not last for any significant length of time if the local school boards show that they are committed to financial responsibility. A short strike may sometimes be the only way to settle fundamental differences. A school board, however, should never sacrifice educational soundness for financial expediency. The point resolves itself to the fact that since local school boards are fundamentally more efficient in all matters than their big brother, the State, then local school boards, properly assuming their financial responsibility, will be far more efficient in stopping a strike than will the state. Furthermore, if the power is passed to the state, local boards may decide to hide behind the protective shield rather than face the issues.

A final point that I may make is that throughout the discussion on the enlargement of the State Superintendent's powers, the State Superintendent and the Legislature seem to be totally ignoring the Serrano (California) decision and the Rodriguez (Texas Federal Court) decision which are most certainly going to completely change the financing of schools.

Most legal scholars now readily agree that the State is going to assume the cost of education. When this occurs, it would seem most logical that the man who is chiefly responsible for the budget, namely the Governor, be able to designate the man or the conditions under which the major school expenditures are to be made, namely the outlay for salaries. If we increase the powers of the State Superintendent without taking into account that the financial responsibility falls upon the shoulders of other people, then we will eventually run headon into the Constitutional wall which prevents inequality.

It would, therefore, be my opinion that the giving of strike-breaking power to the State Superintendent is untimely and educationally unsound and undesirable.

'Marchers Ignored Lenin'

Upon reading Walter Gates' letter (April 20) regarding "Earth Day," I could not help but think that he must commemorate Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov's birthday every April 22. The majority of people have a difficult time even remembering relatives' birthdays, no less someone born 102 years ago and dead for 48 years.

I could not find anything in the Elk Grove Herald on April 17 pertaining to "Earth Week," but the April 18 issue stated that 2,000 persons were expected to "Hike For Your Neighbor" on Sunday, April 23. If this has anything to do with what he is referring to, it seems that they missed "Nikolai Lenin's" birthday by one day. If their main purpose was to celebrate, they certainly would have had it on Saturday.

Isn't it just the most un-American thing you've ever heard of that last year about three or four different organizations sponsored thousands of dumb, stupid, uneducated adults, teens and young children who walked for miles to raise money for starving people on the birthday of a man whose father was a school director and whose mother was the daughter of a medical doctor. What is this world coming to?

I would like to know what positive proof Mr. Gates has received that "Earth Week" and last year's hunger hikes were meant to commemorate this birthday. He stated that they were marching under the banner of "Humanism" and that few (I doubt any) were even remotely aware of this fact. I find this slightly contradictory when he is accusing these people of celebrating something that he admits they were not aware of. Of course, I (and I'm sure many others) find many of these contradictions in all the asinine letters sent in by members of the John Birch Society and to be truthful I'm sick and tired of even seeing them in the paper. A society such as this would find a communist or socialist's birthday any day of the year if they are opposed to whatever their fellow Americans are doing that day.

They may deny that they even belong to this society (which is entirely their privilege) but you can spot them a mile away. I have a suggestion for all of them: "If all you can do is condemn the government and the people of the United States of America and find fault with everything they do, get out!"

'The Right To Oppose Abortions'

As one of the "minority" who believes it's government's responsibility to protect the right to life — even of the unborn, I wish to reply to the May 1 letter of Mrs. Marianne Wittzak and to her fellow-travelers who challenge our stance.

Putting aside the moral, legal and medical reasons which are open to interpretation because of the emotionalism of the subject, the fact remains that I and others, as American citizens, have a right to influence legislation in those areas on which we feel strongly regardless if it is a popular position or not.

The type of fuzzy thinking demonstrated by Mrs. Wittzak in this regard reveals that those who would disregard the right to life of certain individuals (e.g. unborn children) based solely on the quality of that life certainly would not hesitate to infringe on less basic rights such as freedom of thought, speech and expression if it were to their interests.

Until the day this type of "majority" thinking becomes a fait accompli, I, for one, will not give up voluntarily my right to protest that which I feel is wrong, nor will I succumb to the "herding instinct" of populism.

literally have no obligation to people unless by some kind of hand vote we decide that they are worthy of our help? There are some people of Judeo-Christian background who may not agree with you. I hope you will grant them at least that much.

I am not suggesting that we can maintain anyone's existence or sustain their every need, I am saying that maybe, just maybe, we can create an environment in which people can maintain themselves with dignity.

Mrs. Pizzuto may or may not be a pseudo-liberal, but apparently you are the self appointed guardian of every person's rights, and frankly that scares me, just a little.

Librarian To Get 'Warm Welcome'

The hiring of a head librarian for the Elk Grove Village Public Library as reported in the Herald (April 27) deserves some comment, it seems to me. While Miss Clark's qualifications appear to be adequate, her experience is limited and her "capacity for leadership" is yet to be assessed. Even were she to present a considerable amount of experience, a salary of $17,000 is somewhat excessive for the size and scope of a community library such as we have in Elk Grove. I would think that $12,000-14,000 per year would be ample for this type of position in a small non-technical library, and would more accurately represent what the taxpayers in this community are able to afford.

The Elk Grove Village Library Board is to be commended for its own efforts to find a librarian. However, the hiring of the Chicago Sun-Times librarian, Mr.

William Sannwald, at $100 a day plus expenses seems unnecessary to me. Particularly in view of the fact that Miss Clark was found in Mr. Sannwald's own library at the Sun-Times, it would seem that his $350 fee could have been saved. We have a Library Board in order to facilitate such hiring of necessary personnel, and I would hope that it could indeed function responsibly in this area without the need for extra "consultants."

Despite my reservations, however, Miss Clark can expect a warm welcome from both regular library patrons like myself and my children and from an exceptionally capable and helpful staff. Our library is always neat, attractive, and cared for. The bulletin boards and displays are excellent, both aesthetically and educationally, I think, and the children's section is especially delightful. My children and I have hardly been aware of the lack of a head librarian because the library has always seemed to function well, and the librarians have been invariably friendly and courteous. The people who have worked so hard for the past ten months to keep everything going deserve our thanks, and I certainly hope that when Miss Clark assumes her position at our library she too will appreciate them.

'Questions' For Hoffman

I guess I'm one citizen naive enough to think that the current construction taking place in our home town should regard and consider the tax-paying, voting citizens . . . the residents, present and future.

But when our Plan Commission Chairman unilaterally recommends to the Village Board that certain building plans be OK'd without first having them reviewed by the Environmental Concerns Committee, I begin to wonder.

I ask myself many questions: What is Hoffman Estates, the citizens or the builder?

After the construction is completed, who leaves and who stays?

When is the best time to review and solve construction and environmental problems, before or after the buildings and neighborhoods are completed?

Who is stuck with the future repair bill caused by hurried construction and planning . . . builder or citizen?

Why was the Environmental Concerns Committee formed, to be stereotyped flower planters or to help protect the environment . . . the total environment?

Are there any other committees not allowed to see the plans?

Is there something the Environmental Concerns Committee is not supposed to see? Or is it just a power play?

Will this set a precedent for future development?

Nine Residents Laud Larsen

Jack Larsen has left the chairmanship of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee to assume new responsibilities. The job he has done; the work he has begun constitute a record of solid achievement for which he can be justifiably proud. As people who have worked with him, met with him, exchanged ideas with him, even disagreed with him, we take this opportunity to say, "Thank You." We wish him well and although the work he does for Schaumburg will concern other matters, we hope he continues to wear the badge he has earned — Jack Larsen, Environmentalist.

How delightful to see the front page story this morning, May 2, about the Dominican Sisters at Our Lady of the Wayside.

It was beautiful to see a Sister not ashamed to wear her habit. Our Sisters insist on equating themselves with the lay people — being relevant.

Recently an announcement was made in Rome pertaining to the Sisters wearing a habit as a sign of their dedication to God.

In the Chicago Archdiocese this proclamation has not been put into effect as it has been in most dioceses. The reason: Our fashionable Sisters would rebel against such a decree from Cardinal Cody as they have in other places — leaving the diocese.

Father Mackin can be justly proud of his parish and the real dedicated Sisters at Our Lady of the Wayside.

Amnesty Opposed

A recent editorial in the Herald, "We Support Taft's Plan," seeks to apparently bring pity and forgiveness to those who fled our country when needed. I oppose amnesty in any form for the deserters and draft dodgers. They made their choice . . . now let them pay the price for their foolish act.

A recent poll conducted by the Chicago Sun-Times asked, "Should draft resisters be granted amnesty?" According to the published result of that survey, a majority vote of 56 per cent were AGAINST amnesty. The public spoke out, not only in Chicago, but from all sections of our nation where similar polls were taken. The majority were against amnesty in any form.

There must be no amnesty, no pity, no regrets, to the cowards who fled across our borders to seek sanctuary in another country.

To grant amnesty to those who fled their obligation is nothing more than a form of reward for desertion and draft dodging.

Whether or not they believed in the moral aspects of the Vietnam war is immaterial. There was a duty to perform and THEY DID NOT DO IT! Our country is governed by laws and to allow each individual to determine which laws should be obeyed is to invite chaos.

The freedom we enjoy today is a "gift," a gift that was earned by the blood of many patriots who preceded us. Freedom is never gained for all time. History has shown us this to be a fact. Each generation, it seems, must win it anew and stand forever ready to defend and fight for it.

Let's not stain the memory of those who gave their lives in defense of freedom in America's wars by offering amnesty to those who think America's cause is not a just one. Communism is trying to take over the masses of Asia just as it did in Eastern Europe. Our country has committed itself to aiding South Vietnam from falling to this cancerous spread of Communism and this is our obligation whether we like it or not.

If the pro-amnesty group is so concerned about the welfare of the deserters and draft dodgers, then they should be more concerned in helping the returning Vietnam veterans who did not shirk their duty when called upon to serve. Definitely, no amnesty to the cowards. Hail to our returning heroes!

Housing Debate Still Simmers

In reply to Mr. Perkins letter of April 21:

I don't agree with you, Mr. Perkins, God hasn't separated us from animals and neither has Mrs. Pizzuto. He has given us the equipment to rise above animal instincts, unfortunately it is infrequently used, consequently it grows rusty from inactivity.

Concerning justice, you ask justice for whom? I say justice for all, not only the taxpayer and homeowner, but also those who can't afford to own property. Don't they have the same needs we do? You say you would rather live in Lake Forest or Barrington Hills but can't afford it? Well I can't afford it either, but even if I could I'd stay here because I happen to like Des Plaines with or without public housing. Your suggestion that Mary Pizzuto move to the south side of Chicago is a bit unfair. She seems pretty well adjusted to where she lives now.

In quoting the ten steps for socialization, Marx advocates the "Abolition of property and application of all rents of land to public purposes." To set the record straight, no one is talking about abolishing private property, we are talking about moderate income housing in addition to private ownership, not instead of private ownership. For you to imply that adequate housing for all our citizens has something to do with the philosophy of Marx is a kind of guilt by innuendo. As a matter of fact, it is a technique used regularly by organizations such as the John Birch Society.

It is interesting you should quote Pope Pius XI concerning the sacredness of private property; why didn't you quote Pope Leo XIII, who, in his encyclical, states, "The earth, though divided among private owners, ceases not thereby to minister to the needs of all." Or his statement concerning justice, "Justice therefore, demands that the interests of the poorer population be carefully watched over by the administration, that being housed, clothed and enabled to support life, they may find their existence less hard."

You say tyrants buy votes by taking property rights away from people and giving those rights to people who don't own property. Are you suggesting that only people who own property have the right to vote? Send me your list of tyrants. Who will they include, Mary Pizzuto, Judge Austin, me, or will it simply be a list of people who do not agree with you? You say it is not the function of the government to preside over the ethics of the people, but to secure to each citizen his God-given rights and to protect him from the illegal acts of others including government itself. Are you seriously questioning the legality of government?

providing housing for poor people? Are you suggesting that we should have license to be unethical? What are these God-given rights other than owning a home? Do they apply to all people, or to just you and me? I am interested in your suggestion that perhaps these people may not want to live in subsidized housing; that maybe we shouldn't deprive them of a choice. I agree with you. Why don't we ask the people who are employed in our city if they would rather live here, or be bused back to the city after work. Or could we ask some of our Spanish speaking people who already live here about their housing needs?

This concept at the end of your letter concerning "free men not being equal or free under communism," puzzles me. What does communism have to do with housing? Are you saying that groups like the CMCC are somehow engaged in a conspiracy? The most curious aspect of your logic comes when you state, "No man has a right to an existence which imposes positive obligations upon others to maintain his existence. Such arrangements must be undertaken on a voluntary basis." Do you mean to say that we

Few Flags Flying

Wednesday, April 19, was Patriot's Day and I read with interest your column giving some background information about this special event. I wonder how many other readers noticed this article. Certainly the only flags I saw flying on Patriot's Day around Arlington Heights were those outside public buildings.

And so I urge fellow Americans to fly your flag proudly on every occasion. Let us see a return to that patriotism which made our country so great.

Judge Hoffman - Man Of Integrity

by PAMELA REEVES
CHICAGO (UPI) —Federal Judge Julius J. Hoffman sometimes thinks he has more trouble with beautiful women trying to influence his decisions than he did with Jerry Rubin or Abbie Hoffman at the Chicago Seven trial.

But the women, Hoffman said in a rare, two-hour interview, used slightly more subtle tactics than the Yippie leaders who disrupted his courtroom for five months and put him in the national spotlight.

Settled in a black leather chair in his federal building office, the 70-year-old judge, now completing his 25th year on the bench, recalled all his adversaries with no little amusement.

His career as a judge, which started in 1947 on the state Superior Court, was highlighted by the 1970 conspiracy case in which five of the seven defendants were convicted of crossing state lines to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Hoffman, in a controversial decision still on appeal, gave them all lengthy contempt of court sentences at the end of the trial.

He has drawn more than his share of hard cases to try.

In 1965, the judge presided at the second-longest trial on record, the nine-month krebiozen cancer cure case.

"We stopped the sale of krebiozen even though all the defendants were acquitted," he said.

HE HANDED down the first federal court school desegregation in the North in the 1968 South Holland, Ill., case, and he presided at the tax trial of Chicago crime syndicate chief Tony Accardo. The prosecutor in the Accardo case was Richard B. Ogilvie, now governor of Illinois.

It was in 1970, however, that the "woman trouble" cropped up. It came during the less well known trial of businessman Patrick Hoy, a handsome Chicago socialite charged with fraud.

"I tried him for three weeks," Hoffman says. "The government rested and then he pleaded guilty. Now, Pat and I were on a first name basis for many years. But we had to impose a sentence."

"I couldn't go out socially before, during or after that trial without being besieged by women, for the most part very good-looking women, who would ask, 'What are you going to do to darling Pat?'" he said.

Hoffman shook his head at such a lack of manners.

"It is strange how some otherwise intelligent and fine people are presuming enough to discuss a thing like that when you're out socially."

HOFFMAN SENTENCED Hoy to two years in prison, surprising those who had expected the sentence to be probation. Afterwards, the judge says, acquaintances would comment gruffly, "Pretty tough on Pat, weren't you?"

Hoffman frowned.
"Now judges are human beings," he said, "and all human beings vary. Some, I imagine, find it difficult to resist doing courtesies for friends. I've never had that difficulty."

"But I dislike very much being introduced as a person of unflinching integrity as though unflinching integrity as though a man is entitled to a gold star for not stealing. I don't think anyone should be given any credit for being honest."

He is, invariably introduced as "a man of unflinching integrity," and his office is full of mementoes which testify to the respect he owns as a jurist.

His office chambers are furnished with upholstered couches and chairs in a style fit for the corporate vice president which Hoffman was at the Brunswick Co., before he became a judge.

Born in Chicago into a "comfortable" family, the judge, son of a "merchant," decided in high school he didn't like to sell things.

So he attended Northwestern University and graduated from its law school.

"When I was a young lawyer," he says, "the very expression federal court or judge of the federal court was awesome. For a considerable number of years thereafter my knees shook when I appeared before certain judges."

WORD HAS it that the quick-tongued Hoffman, appointed a federal judge by President Eisenhower in 1953, elicits from some of today's young lawyers the knee-knocking experienced before such as Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, a personality so powerful he was able to give baseball men the shakes when he was baseball commissioner.

"One of the most rewarding things there is in my job," he says, "in fact it's the only real compensation that I have, since I can't keep much of my salary — ($40,000 yearly) is the respect that fine men have for me, and the public at large, that part of it which is in a position to know and judge."

The Hollywood Scene

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Dick Van Dyke has become something of a recluse since moving to Cave Creek, Ariz., away from old friends, the Hollywood treadmill and smog.

He and his wife, Marjorie, live in a contemporary 17-year-old house that sits in the middle of 180 acres of rangeland. Cave Creek itself runs through their arid property giving it more greenery than most of the acreage in the vicinity.

To give the place a feeling of the genuine West, Dick has stocked his "ranch" with five steers, a cow and two horses.

He doesn't do much horseback riding himself, but his daughters, Carrie Beth, 10, and Stacy, 17, enjoy riding around the ranch. Dick's sons no longer live at home. Christian is married and Barry, 20, works as a production assistant on his father's weekly TV show. He lives 40 miles away in Phoenix.

MARJORIE HAS furnished the house to conform to the rugged country. Everything is simple and serviceable.

The floors are all tile and require no rugs or carpets. The walls are free of bric-a-brac except for Indian artifacts Dick has dug up on the property. The four-bedroom house has a connecting apartment in which Marjorie's parents live.

Because Marjorie and the girls do the cooking and housekeeping it is unnecessary for the family to hire even a cleaning lady.

Almost all of the walls in the house are made of glass, taking advantage of sweeping vistas of mountains, deserts and the cottonwood trees and shrubs along the creek. Another view provides a breath-taking panorama of mesas, buttes and mountains.

DICK HAS had an old bunkhouse converted into an office for himself. The outstanding piece of furniture there is a battered roll-top desk where he works on his scripts.

Few outsiders have seen Van Dyke's home—inside or out. He has conspired with the town folk not to tell tourists where he lives.

"So far not one of the local people has linked on me," Van Dyke said happily. "We seldom go out anywhere at all. Why should we? And I can't remember the last time we had anyone in for dinner."

There is a swimming pool on the property which the entire family enjoys. It is one of the few marks of modern civilization on the ranch.

WHEN THE Van Dykes seek company—which is infrequent enough—they visit the Cave Creek Corral, an oldtime western saloon in the little town. It's a hangout for cowboys and prospectors, most of whom have never heard of Van Dyke because they don't watch television.

The Cave Creek Corral is the social center for the area. Van Dyke has attended weddings there.

Dick and his father-in-law have a small garden where they plant tomatoes, onions and radishes. Rabbits and squirrels eat everything but the tomatoes.

THE NEAREST motion picture theater is 40 miles distant, so the Van Dykes content themselves with television.

Both Marjorie and Dick are amateur archeologists and constantly prow and dig around their property for remnants of the Hohokam Indian tribe, which once inhabited the area. So far Dick has found pots, bowls and ax heads.

Van Dyke, in boots and jeans, is a man at peace with the world. He drives eight miles to Southwestern Studios in his jeep to work each day and straight back home again at night.

The Search For Mental Health

Generation Gap? No, But Communication's Tough

(This is a weekly column presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines. A fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Communication between parents and children—especially with adolescents—has traditionally been a difficult task. A Chicago psychiatrist who specializes in the treatment of adolescents believes this problem stems from an unwillingness to listen and ask questions.

In a recent lecture, Dr. Daniel Offer, associate director of the Institute for Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Research and Training at Michael Reese Hospital and author of "The Psychological World of the Teen-Ager," said adults are afraid to ask questions and they don't listen to their youngsters.

"Adults don't want to appear out of context with today's world as represented in music, art films and dress—they often try to imitate the young and the young have similar feelings toward their elders. What is needed then for successful communication is to be able to admit ignorance and ask questions."

DR. OFFER thinks the development of trust is crucial for maintaining open communication. "For communications to take place in either direction a minimum amount of trust, likeability and respect has to exist. Communication with adolescents becomes difficult because adults have many preconceived notions about youth—besides being jealous of them for their youth and envious because of their possible escapades, they don't ask questions to find things out."

He also dispelled the notion of a generation gap. "It does not exist—it's a myth. Though the young don't agree with their elders, their basic value system is the same but the rigid system of values is questioned. The ability to listen is a mark of wanting to help—empathy, not sympathy is needed. Communications with adolescents does not mean identification with adolescents. Open and flowing communication can occur only when there is a willingness to empathize with each other's position, which creates the potential for growth through learning."

Dr. Joe King, director of adolescent services at Timberlawn psychiatric hospital in Dallas, told the audience about his research into the communications among adolescents. He also found that attentive listening was ranked high among adolescents as an important communication factor.

"I want the person to whom I am talking to listen to me and accept me for what I am even if they disagree with my beliefs, values, ideas, wishes or thoughts," Dr. King reported what one of his interviewees said. "I'd like for them to try and understand me."

Dr. King added that the interpersonal feeling of warmth and tenderness is an almost universally sought after quality reported by adolescents and the quality of responsiveness on the listener's part was also considered most important.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For a while there, everything was coming up lady's slippers for the women's lib movement. Sexist barriers were falling right and left and the long-sought equal rights amendment finally was cleared for ratification.

Then Cosmopolitan magazine had to go and spoil it all by doing something stupid, like featuring a male nude in the centerfold of this month's issue.

With that blunder, Helen Gurley Brown, the magazine's editor, lost all the ground that feminists had gained in her book "Sex and the Single Girl."

History likely will record Ms. Brown as the Pandora of women's lib—the overly curious female who released the forces that caused the movement to falter.

WHY DOES MS. BROWN think we men kept our beautiful bodies covered when women started disrobing in strip joints, go-go halls and topless shoeshine parlors?

And why does she think male editors refrained from printing double-page photographs of naked actors stretched out in Playboyish poses?

We did it for a very good reason—the protection of womanhood.

We knew that if the male anatomy were put on public display, women would lose their heads and go completely gaga.

THE TIME SPENT in campaigning for equality would be squandered in awe-struck adoration of the masculine physique.

And so, to avoid undermining the liberation movement, we retained at least some semblance of vestiture when in front of the cameras or frequenting public places.

But now Ms. Brown has done it. Opened the lid of the forbidden box, so to speak. Let free to the publishing world the peralicious plague of male nudity.

Soon any periodical that hopes to retain its female subscribers will have to display an expanse of masculine epidermis in its centerfold.

MALE NUDES in Reader's Digest, Male Nudes in Better Homes & Gardens, Male nudes in U.S. News & World Report. The mind boggles.

It may be argued that in 19 years or so women will retain control of their emotions and will be able to view a photograph of the male body without flipping.

At which point they will be temperamentally qualified for equal opportunity in business, political, sports, warfare and other male-dominated fields of endeavor.

Maybe so, and maybe not. Meanwhile, the "lib" in women's lib stands for libido.

Collecting Coins

Farouk's Coins Up For Auction

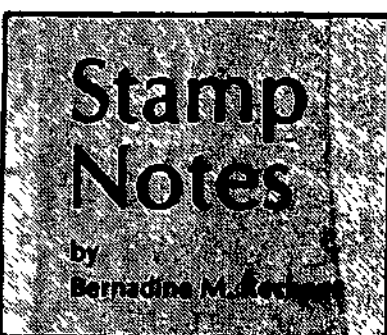

The American Auction Association, Inc., will conduct perhaps its most interesting auction of coin rarities on May 19 and 20. Among some of the rare specimens on the table will be pieces from the collections of such notables as King Farouk, composer Jerome Kern and Dr. Hewitt Judd.

King Farouk was an avid collector until his exile and many collectors over the world have tried desperately to acquire at least one item from his confiscated hoard. Certification of authenticity will accompany each piece sold.

One of the rarest coins in the auction is the 1876-CC (Carson City) Twenty-cent piece formerly owned by the noted composer, Jerome Kern. There were only 10,000 pieces of this denomination and date struck, and R.S. Yeoman's "A Guide Book of United States Coins," 25th Edition, lists the 1876-CC at $16,000. With the present trend in coin investments, the auctioned price realized is not expected to go below the Red Book value.

AN EXTENSIVE offering of silver dollars includes two of the rare 1896 issues, one 1896 (rare) and several pieces from the Carson City mint dated from 1870 to 1873. Representative specimens from 1875 to date make up the balance of the silver dollar portion of the sale.

A superb Proof of the 1893 restrike silver dollar illustrated here will be among the rarest of the early silver dollars. It was made contemporaneously with the famous 1894 silver dollar, but has appeared much less frequently.

by BERNADINE M. RECHNER

The U.S. Postal service has published a book designed to introduce the non-collector to stamps and stamp collecting.

"Stamps & Stories, the Exciting Saga of U.S. History Told in Stamps" illustrates stamps in color and provides capsule stories about great moments of American history. It was prepared by editors of Scott Publishing Co and uses Scott identification numbers together with values of each issue from 1947 through mid-1972.

About 2,000 stamps are reproduced in the 224-page book that measures 4 1/4 by 7 1/4 inches. Included is a chapter on "How to be a happy stamp collector" and a glossary of philatelic terms. Stamps issued by the Confederacy and those of the United Nations are also reproduced as well as a sampling of foreign issues. The book will not replace the loose-leaf publication that reproduces stamps in black and white.

Two editions are available from major post offices or by mail from the Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20006. The paperback sells for $2 each plus a 50 cent handling charge per order. A hard-bound edition in the same size for $5.95 plus the 50 cent handling charge. Customers should allow four-weeks for mail order delivery with the first shipments expected in mid-June. Post office sales are slated to begin in mid-May.

The United Nations World Health Day Souvenir Cards were sold out on April 7. The total number of cards in circulation is 158,934.

Somewhere, someone in the New York postal system must know the number of first day covers cancelled for the CARE stamp Oct. 27, 1971. So far I've talked to nine very nice, helpful people and one not-so-nice person (a telephone operator who hung up!) but without success. This week we start with the postmaster!

Four new United Nations denominations are slated for release June 5 to coincide with the Conference on Human Environment which meets in Stockholm.

The stamp, being issued in 8 cent, 15 cent, F.S. 0.40 and F.S. 0.80, incorporates the Human Environment symbol and was designed by Robert Perrot of France. The following quantities will be printed by Joh. Enschede on Zonen of the Netherlands:

8 cent	2,000,000
15 cent	2,100,000
F.S. 0.40	2,300,000
F.S. 0.80	2,100,000

Further details on these stamps later.

The PTA commemorative stamp will be issued September 15th at San Francisco. Wildlife Conservation, a block of four stamps, will debut September 20 at Warm Springs, Oregon. Chicago will host first day ceremonies for the commemorative honoring the mail order business, slated for release September 27. The Tom Sawyer stamp will be issued October 13 at Hannibal, Missouri and the Pharmacy adhesive will be released November 10 at Cincinnati. Details on designs will be published at a later date.

Other scarce and rare pieces will include gold issues of the 1796 quarter eagle with no stars; the 1848 California gold quarter eagle; the rare 1876 $3 gold piece; the 1886 (pattern) Flying Eagle cent and an 1879 Colored Hair $4 gold "Stella" of which only 10 were struck in gold.

Interested readers may obtain a profusely illustrated catalogue prepared by Bowers and Ruddy Galleries by writing that firm at Suite 310, 6022 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90028. The price of $3 includes an itemized list of the prices received for each piece sold. This will be mailed to each catalogue recipient after the sale.

Artist George L. Osborn known for his black-and-white renderings of the six United States Mints, is offering a 4" x 6" print of the famous United States Mint at Carson City 1870-1933, free to anyone sending him a stamped, self-addressed business size (9" x 10" long) envelope.

The Doctor Says

Some Medications Halt Sex Drive

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you tell me what you think about a man with high blood pressure that stays at 200-120? He takes tablets daily for his blood pressure, plus tablets for water, and takes 15 aspirin daily (on his own) for pain from arthritis, plus vitamin pills that he gets here and there. I have asked him to change doctors, because it seems that this medicine takes away his sexual ability. He wants to, but he isn't able. I find this very nerve-wracking and it has been going on for three years since our marriage.

Dear Reader — This is a very difficult problem. Many medicines that are used to treat high blood pressure have this side effect. If your husband's pressure is at the level that you state, despite all of his medications, he obviously needs the medicine he is getting. Without the medicine he might have very serious difficulty. Put plainly, his medicine is lifesaving to him. So, it is not a question of sex or medicine, but a question of medicine or death. It is sometimes difficult for people to realize that illnesses sometimes mean they cannot do all the things they would like to do.

Changing doctors won't help, but I would advise you to have your husband discuss this problem with his doctor to see if there is anything he could do to help relieve the side effects. But I would not be optimistic that this would be the case.

I know that it is difficult for you, but if you really love your husband, you will be able to adapt to this problem. After all, you know, marriage is for "in sickness and in health."

DEAR DR. LAMB — I noticed your column with the request of the lady whose husband was losing his hair, and who was quite perturbed about it and your answer was very good, but it didn't go "far" enough, I think.

For a number of years my wife and I fought dandruff, itching and falling hair from my head with shampoos that anyone and everyone had tried, even prescriptions, but to no avail. I finally got my wife to quit all soaps and detergents, shampoos and just use plain hot water and I mean hot — just so it wasn't uncomfortably hot. After several weeks we began to see an improvement. After months of that method we have no more head problems except those inside, so I thought you might be interested in knowing our remedy for falling hair. Wish I had tried it a number of years ago. I might still have a good head of hair though at 83 I still have plenty.

Dear Reader — Thank you for your remedy. Congratulations on saving your hair and also for having your heart in the right place. Perhaps other readers will suggest what successful remedies they have used to prevent falling hair.

Questions? Address Dr. Lawrence Lamb, Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—May I withdraw my insurance dividends which I left on deposit with VA?

A—Yes. You may withdraw all or part of your dividends at any time.

Q—I, am married, have two stepchildren who live with my wife and me, and I attend school full-time under the GI Bill. Will I have to adopt the children to draw additional allowances for them from VA?

A—No. But to qualify for the additional allowances, you should submit to VA the birth certificates for the children showing names of the parents, and proof of your marriage to the mother of the children.

Q—Does VA pay dividends on paid-up life insurance?

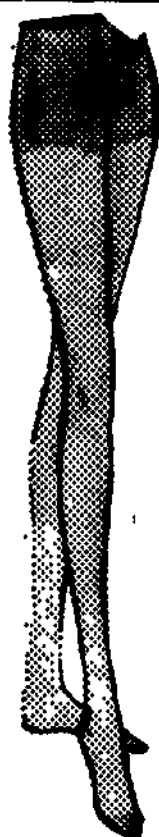

A—Yes. However, when a policy is surrendered for reduced paid-up insurance, dividends will be based on the reduced amount. When limited payment policies such as 20-payment life have all premiums paid-up, they continue to draw dividends.

Q. I KNOW MY social security student payments stop with the month I'm 22. I will be 22 in September. Must I still fill out and return the end of the year report for students?

A. Yes. Be sure to show on your report whether you will return to school in the fall. If you plan to continue in school after you're 22 and your earnings don't go over $140 a month during July and August, you will still get checks for the months of July and August. If your earnings will exceed $1,680 for the year and $140 in July and August, you may not be eligible to receive a check for these months.

Q. WE HIRED a college girl last summer to take care of our children at our home. We did not realize at the time that her wages were covered by social security so we did not withhold any money from her $40-a-week pay. Are we responsible for paying both her share of the social security contribution and our own?

A. Yes. You, as an employer, are responsible for deducting 5.2 per cent from your employee's pay. If you fail to do so, you must pay both her share and your own share yourself. This amounts to 10.4 per cent of her wages. The report of wages paid last summer (July, August and September) was due by Oct. 31, 1971. You may also be assessed interest and penalties for your late report.

Q. MY SISTER'S 17-year-old daughter died last January following a car accident. She had a social security number and had worked part time at a drive-in for nearly 2 years. Could her mother get a social security death benefit toward her daughter's funeral expenses?

A. It's possible. A person who dies in his teens or early twenties needs only six quarters of coverage, about 1½ years of work under social security, for a death benefit to be payable. Your sister should call any social security office for more information.

Q. I AM 62 years old and get monthly social security benefits as a widow. Will Medicare help pay any of my medical expenses?

A. No. Medicare only helps to pay hospital and medical bills for people 65 or older. If you can't pay your medical expenses, you may be eligible for Medicaid. Medicaid helps pay the medical bills of individuals at any age based on their need. Call your local welfare office for more information about the Medicaid program.

Q. MY MOTHER, who was 68 years old, died last month. Since I paid some of her doctor bills, could I receive any payment from Medicare for these bills?

A. You could receive partial reimbursement. You should ask the doctor for a receipt showing you paid the bills in full and the date, place, charge for, and description of each service. Call any social security office for help in completing a claim for payment.

Q. I'M ENROLLED in both parts of Medicare and I need new dentures. Will Medicare pay for them?

A. No. Medicare does not cover such items as dentures, hearing aids, or eye glasses.

Beef Sirloin Tip Roast

Season a 5 to 6-pound beef sirloin tip roast with salt and pepper. Place the roast, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan.

Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb reaches the center of the thickest part, being sure the bulb does not rest in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees) until the roast meat thermometer registers a temperature of 150 to 170 degrees depending upon the degree of doneness desired.

To estimate how long it will take the roast to cook, the homemaker should allow 30 to 35 minutes per pound for roasting beef sirloin tip. Smaller roasts, 3½ to 4 pounds, will require 35 to 40 minutes per pound.

Mustard Spread

- ¼ cup prepared mustard
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- ½ to 1 teaspoon dill weed

Blend mustard and mayonnaise. Sprinkle dill weed over top. Yield: 1 cup.

Catsup Spread

- 1 cup catsup
- 2 to 3 tablespoons sliced or chopped pickles, if desired

Stir pickles into catsup. Yield: 1 cup.

Horseradish Sour Cream Spread

- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped green onions, if desired

Blend ingredients, reserving portion of chopped onion to put on top, if desired. Yield: 1 cup.

Beef Springs With Ideas!

Beef Kabobs Waikiki

- 2 pounds round steak, cut 2 inches thick
- 1½ teaspoons dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon ground pepper
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 6 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons oil
- 8 cherry tomatoes
- 8 wedges green pepper
- 8 whole fresh mushrooms

Slice round steak into strips ¼ inch thick and place in shallow pan or dish. Combine mustard, ginger, pepper and garlic powder. Mix soy sauce, lemon juice and oil and add this mixture to the seasonings. Mix well. Pour marinade over steak strips and allow meat to marinate for at least 4 hours. Thread steak strips on metal skewers, accordion-style, alternating cherry tomatoes, green pepper wedges or whole mushrooms between every second fold. Brush with marinade and place in broiler 4 inches from heat. Broil 3 minutes on first side. Turn, brush with marinade and broil 3 to 4 minutes on second side. 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Round steak may be chilled or partially frozen for ease in cutting ¼ inch strips.

Tropical Fruit Salad: Drain the following fruits: one can each pineapple cubes (13 ounces), reserving juice, mandarin orange segments (11 ounces) and green grapes (8 ounces). Combine lightly with a sliced banana and a peeled and sectioned avocado. Turn into lettuce lined bowl. 8 servings.

Pineapple Dressing: Combine one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one egg, slightly beaten, three-fourths cup pineapple juice and one-fourth cup lemon juice. Mix well. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cool before mixing with salad fruits. Yield: Approximately one and one-half cups.

Chicken Supreme For Every Season

It's spring and time for a joyous salute to tulips, robins, and trees garbed in lacy new leaves. Just a few decades ago we would have included spring chickens in our tribute, for this fine food was once a seasonal treat. But today the spring chicken is as obsolete as the dodo . . . and the contemporary broiler-fryer is for all seasons.

The disappearance of the spring chicken results from improved poultry nutrition. Formerly, the birds could thrive only in the spring and summer. That's when chickens could absorb enough vitamin D from the sun through their combs to keep them healthy, the National Broiler Council points out. When vitamin D and other essential nutrients were isolated and included in feed, broilers could be raised indoors and a giant step was taken by the industry. Formerly a seasonal luxury, chicken became a democratic meat available to all anytime.

But that's no reason not to cook a chicken or two to celebrate the rites of spring, for chicken tastes so great it just naturally turns up at festivities. We combine the bird with other goodies that also used to be seasonal and that appear anytime now in canned or frozen form. Chicken Supreme begins with simmered chicken and the diced cooked meat combines with artichoke hearts and asparagus spears.

Cheese sauce, chicken and vegetables are alternated in layers in the casserole, topped with grated cheese, and baked for 15 to 20 minutes. It's easy to make, tastes as light and fresh as is appropriate for the shiny new season.

Chicken is economical, too, a factor that looms large right now with most families. The cost of chicken is so modest, in fact, that many families are serving it twice a week to keep the budget in line and the family well fed. With chicken so reasonably priced, many different ingredients, even some fairly fancy ones, can be cooked or served with chicken and still keep the meal comfortably within the budget. And while chicken is low in cost, it offers high nutrition. Chicken offers a plentiful supply of the quality protein that contains all the essential amino acids . . . the chemical of which proteins are made. This complete protein is essential in the diet to build tissues, muscles and cells.

Chicken has a low fat content and provides B vitamins. The livers contain iron and riboflavin and they're rich in vitamin A as well. And for waistline watchers, chicken is most excellent for dieting, offering only 115 calories per three ounce portion of skinless broiled chicken breast. Even with the skin, the calorie count is only 185.

The versatile broiler-fryer has replaced the spring chicken . . . but chicken is still a most happy choice of celebrating the advent of spring.

CHICKEN SUPREME

To simmer chicken:

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, whole or cut in serving pieces
- 3 cups water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon Ac'cent
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2 celery tops
- 2 bay leaves

Place chicken in a deep kettle. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth and measure. If necessary, boil broth rapidly until reduced to 2 1/2 cups. Refrigerate chicken and broth at once. When chicken is cool, remove meat from bones; dice.

Chicken Supreme

- 1/4 cup flour
 - 2 1/2 cups chicken broth
 - 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
 - 5 cups diced cooked chicken
 - 1 can (15 ounces) artichoke hearts, drained
 - 1 can (1 pound) asparagus spears, drained; or 1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears, cooked
- Blend flour with 1/4 cup of the broth in a saucepan; gradually stir in remaining broth. Place over medium heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add cheese and stir until melted. Remove from heat; stir in chicken. Alternate layers of chicken mixture and vegetables in a 3-quart casserole. If desired, sprinkle additional grated cheese on top. Bake in a 375 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.

The Hands That Rock This Cradle Built It

by FRAN HECKART

The swimming pool in the backyard is about the only project Mrs. Robert Herdegen started and never finished herself.

Virginia Herdegen did manage to move enough dirt one day, a few years ago, to leave her husband no alternative but to call professionals and have the pool finished.

"Actually, my husband is very tolerant of all my projects," said Virginia, who prefers building to needlepoint. "I had dug a big circle about 12 inches deep, but Bob was willing to get equipment to have the job finished."

"After all," she laughed, "how many husbands would react so calmly if they came home and wife said, 'Hi, honey, here's where I'm digging the pool?'"

The swimming pool is just one example of Virginia's hobbies. Building a bar, constructing a bridge, paneling the basement, refinishing furniture, upholstering and painting are just a few of her undertakings.

IT ALL STARTED shortly after Virginia was married. When she decided that rather than buy a new sofa, she could remodel the old one, Virginia simply borrowed a saw and cut off the end.

"It wasn't ruined," she said, "because we used it for five years. But anyone who sat near the amputated end had to hang on or fall off."

Today Virginia is probably handier with a hammer and saw than a lot of men.

She nonchalantly talks about how she ordered "two thousand" bricks and built the patio in the backyard. A deck around the completed swimming pool is another project to her credit.

Although Virginia is enthusiastic about all her projects, she also says she seldom does the same thing twice. She's always looking for something new to try. However, once Virginia gets a new idea and starts the project, she never stops until it's finished.

"SOMETIMES I GO to bed with a headache because I have so many ideas and not enough time," she mused.

Many old broken down pieces of furniture have been transformed into attractive antiques in Virginia's basement. Building or rebuilding excites her, she said, but furniture history leaves her cold.

Her high school age son who has taken shop classes acts as her consultant when any construction problem arises.

Knowing that Virginia has the ability to remodel old furniture, the neighbors always call on her before they junk anything.

"If the neighbors and relatives can't sell something and the garbage men won't take it, I usually end up with the pieces," laughed Virginia.

One of Virginia's favorite pieces is a cradle she made from an old rocking chair donated to her.

ANXIOUSLY AWAITING the arrival of her first grandchild (due in about two months) she had been looking for an old-fashioned cradle. One morning she awoke about 4 o'clock with the idea of turning the rocking chair into the cradle.

By 6 a.m. she was down in the basement dismantling the rocking chair, and two weeks later the cradle was ready and waiting for the expected occupant.

"There really wasn't any hurry, but if I get the bug I just do it," said Virginia. Her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Swedo, is the expectant mother.

Many of Virginia's projects arise from necessity. When her daughter was married, Virginia paneled the basement and built a bar to accommodate the reception. She also built a free standing wall around the water reservoir in the basement.

SHORTLY AFTER the Herdegens moved into their home on a woody lot in Palatine, it became evident they needed a bridge across the stream that runs along back.

Undaunted, Virginia salvaged some poles from a neighbor and constructed a bridge. She built it in the backyard, then recruited about eight people to carry it to the creek.

"It was like building a boat in the house and not being able to get it out," she laughed.

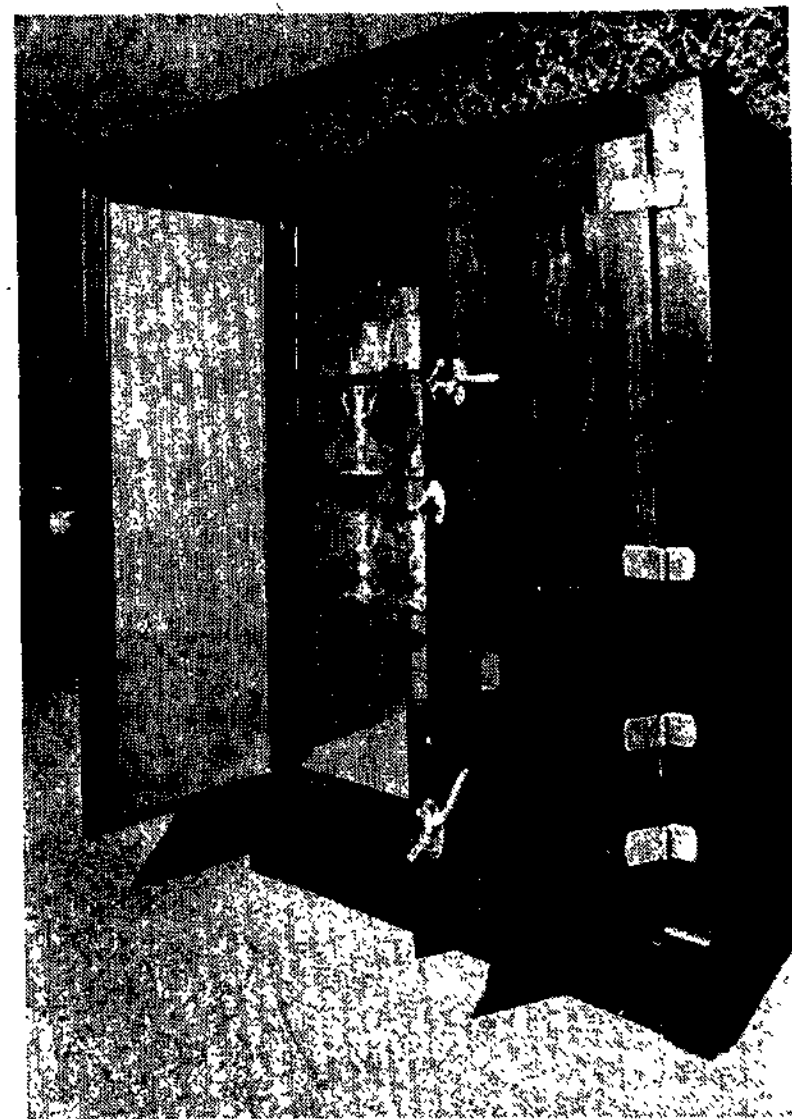

There is only one rule that Virginia's husband demands she follow. When the basement begins to fill up with restored furniture, she must get rid of some of it.

The first finished project was hard to part with, according to Virginia, but now she tries to use everything in her home before selling it. Every now and then she has a garage sale to clear the stock of refinished tables, chairs, love seats, tables, secretaries or whatever she's been working on.

THE SALES USUALLY bring in enough money for Virginia to carry on her hobbies.

Dark stains are used on almost all of the restored furniture. Virginia said that she always thought it would be exciting to find a treasure tucked away in some old upholstery but so far she's only found an old newspaper. This find "delighted" her.

Now, whenever she re-upholsters, she covers nickels and pennies with cloth for upholstery buttons. Just so the next person "crazy enough to rip it apart will find a little surprise."

GRANDMA WOULDN'T recognize the old wooden ice box that Virginia Herdegen remodeled and transformed into an attractive bar unit. She used a dark stain for the exterior and lined the inside with red felt. Glass shelves replaced the metal refrigerator grates. Virginia also installed a mirror and electric light to highlight the interior.

One of this craftswoman's creative efforts is a bar she made from an old wooden ice box. She stained the outside and lined the inside with red felt. The grates were replaced with glass shelves and a mirror installed in the back. To add a special effect to the interior of the cabinet Virginia installed an electric light. Brass hinges accent the dark stain on the exterior.

VIRGINIA SAYS that she's in between projects now, resting up to start her garden. She very modestly refers to her hobbies as "putting" but likes to keep active.

"Most hobbies for women are sitting ones," she said. "I prefer to be active." Whether or not Virginia ever builds another bridge, bar or cradle, chances are, she'll be creating something new. At one time she belonged to women's groups, tried needlepoint, bridge and "everything homemakers do."

"I just belong to my family," she smiled. "That's my most important project."

ROCKING CHAIR TURNED CRADLE. When Virginia Herdegen couldn't find a suitable cradle for her first grandchild, she simply made one from an old rocking chair that had been sitting in the basement. Virginia's daughter, Mrs. Leslie Swedo, is expecting her first child in about two months but the prospective grandmother is already prepared.

BUILDING THE bridge was easy according to Virginia Herdegen. The only problem was moving it to the stream after she constructed it in the backyard. Recruits were called in at a family gathering and the bridge was moved to the creek. According to the builder, it has withstood seven years of footsteps and minibikes and the only things missing are the rope handles.

AAUW Consumer Guide

Save Your Sucker Money

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Had television trauma lately? Or car repair blues? If you haven't had one of those common consumer ailments, perhaps you've been tempted and burned by one of those "absolutely free" offers of merchandise? Or been strangled financially by a warranty loophole?

What happens to consumers includes a lot more. The nearly incredible fact of a spender's life these days is that some authorities estimate $30 of every $100 the average consumer spends is wasted as "sucker money."

"Exactly everything" that a wise consumer should know is what the American Association of University Women had in mind when it started putting together its "Guide for the Responsible Consumer." It's out now — a slim 12-page newsletter-style pamphlet that really seems to tell all, including where to go for help when you've been gyped.

THE "WHERE TO TURN for help" section covers complaints in the following categories: mail, food and drugs, advertising, appliances, automobiles, airlines, money matters, professional services.

Another section advises writing to your congressman and senator, asking them to keep you informed of pending legislation to protect the consumer.

In the complaining department, it is recommended, you call the action line of newspapers and the action departments of radio stations to air the gripes. When all else fails or you want to add a little clout to your complaint and hope for fast action, write to Virginia Knauer, Office of Consumer Affairs, New Executive Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20506.

But don't send her carbons of complaints already directed to other parties. The AAUW people tell why, saying: "TO INSURE action, write directly to Mrs. Knauer, do not send carbon of complaint."

Sleuths at the Federal Trade Commission say there are six sure signs a salesman is trying to lure you with the deceptive game called bait and switch. Listed in the AAUW Guide, among hundreds of other useful bits of information, the six signals include:

— "He refuses to show, demonstrate or sell the advertised merchandise you wish to see."

— "He disparages the advertised item."

— "He lacks enough of the advertised item to meet reasonable consumer demand."

— "He won't take orders for the item at the advertising price."

— "The advertised merchandise is defective or impractical for the average user's purposes."

— "HE ACCEPTS a deposit on the advertised merchandise, then tries to persuade you to buy a similar item at a higher price."

The point about the guide is this: It tells consumers how to protect themselves. If it is true that $30 of every $100 spent doesn't buy anything, then the 35 cents for the Guide will be like a little oilwell; it will save you $30 out of every $100 by the time it turns you into a smart consumer.

You order the guide from the AAUW Sales Office, 2401 Virginia Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037. All orders must be prepaid. The price includes the mailing charge. There are reduced charges per copy for bulk purchases; 51 and over, for example, cost 20 cents apiece.

The AAUW also recommends the Consumer's Golden Rule — "Do unto business the way you want business to do unto you."

Diamonds Create A Romantic Mood

Perhaps it was working in a jeweler's shop where diamond rings are big business that put Carol Bayle and Michael Cipolla in a romantic mood. The pair met while both were employed part-time at Frank's Jeweler's at Randhurst, and on April 29 they were married in St. Emily's Church, Mount Prospect.

Carol, daughter of Mrs. Loretta Bayle, 783 Timothy Lane, Des Plaines, is a '68 graduate of Maine West High School. She also studied at the University of Illinois and Northwest American Beauty School. She is now a hairdresser at the Empress Room, Palatine. Michael, a '67 graduate of Mt. Carmel, is a pipefitter for Economy Mechanical Engineers, Skokie.

For her marriage Carol chose an ivory gown with lace trim, bishop sleeves with lace cuffs trimmed in pink and a cathedral train. Her long, mantilla veil was edged in lace roses.

DIANE HODOROWSKI, Des Plaines, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Carol's sister, Jean, and the groom's sisters, Mary Therese and Cheryl. Nancy Colechil, 8, Des Plaines, was flower girl. All wore old fashioned gowns in pink with ruffled trim on bodice bibs, and cuffs trimmed with pink lace and ivory ribbon. They carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Thomas Ripp, Arlington Heights, was best man and ushers were the groom's brothers, Bart and Pat Cipolla, and the bride's brother, Jim Bayle.

A dinner reception for 150 guests was held at the Casa Royale, Des Plaines, following the 2:30 p.m., double ring service.

The newlyweds spent a weekend honeymoon in Wisconsin and now are residing at 2819 Stuart Drive, Arlington

Married On Iowa Campus

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Atherton

A romance on the Buena Vista College campus in Storm Lake, Iowa, was culminated in marriage April 29 for Michael James Atherton of Hoffman Estates and Rita Sue Farnell of Rockwell City, Iowa.

Mike is a graduate of Buena Vista now teaching instrumental band at the high school in Lytton, Iowa, near Storm Lake. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Atherton of Hoffman and attended Conant High School.

His bride, daughter of the Ralph Farnells, is a senior at Buena Vista.

The couple planned their wedding and reception for Lakeside Presbyterian Church in the college town. Buena Vista's Phi Mu Alpha Music Company played background and dance music for the reception in the church hall.

SEVERAL COLLEGE friends of the bride and groom were among their attendants.

Peggy Kruse of Schleswig, Iowa, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids included Karen Ashbaugh, Rockwell City; Kathy Beving, Wellsburg, Iowa; and the groom's sister, Patti Atherton.

Jon Ellithorpe of Hoffman Estates served as Mike's best man. Three other friends, Bill Mathinsen of Hoffman Estates, Denny Miller of Harcourt, Iowa, and Burt Zank of Storm Lake, were groomsmen for the double ring rites.

The wedding guests were seated by the bride's brother, Duane Farnell; Jim Vorland of Northwood, Iowa, and Jim Jensen of Lytton.

AS THE BRIDE was given in marriage by her father, she wore a long gown of white, Mara-Caine jersey with a border of pearl braid on the high slit neckline, cuffs of the long sleeves and the Empire waist. She wore a matching Camelot cap trimmed with pearls and a bouffant elbow-length veil.

Rita's only jewelry was a pearl bracelet that has been handed down through the generations in her father's family. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow, green and white daisies.

Her attendants wore floor-length mint green dresses with yellow shoes, gloves, picture hats and daisy chokers. The hats were accented with yellow and green streamers.

Each of the girls carried a white wicker basket filled with yellow daisies, baby's breath and greens.

Club Gives $400 To The Library

In observance of Book Week the Arlington Heights Woman's Club has contributed $400 to the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. For the last few years the club has earmarked the money to be used for reference material.

Harold J. Ard, executive librarian of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library said, "The Arlington Heights Woman's Club has assisted us in developing one of the finest reference collections in the entire metropolitan area, evidenced by its many users and the long distances which they are willing to travel in order to use our fine resources."

The first home of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, founded by the Arlington Heights Woman's Club in 1894, was located at 310 N. Dunton. The club has continued to be an important moving force in the improvement of the community's library system through the years," said Ard.

The Rolling Shed

by Mary B. Good

So what if you don't have the Garden of Eden in which to grow flowers and vegetables?

If you are an apartment dweller, a home renter, if you move a lot, or simply prefer not to grow plants in the ground outdoors, consider container gardening.

From one clay pot, or a punch-and-grow, to hanging baskets, wooden tubs, strawberry barrels, dish gardens, terrariums, window boxes, old pails, milk cans (I've even commandeered a step ladder set against an outside wall and the rungs turned up to accommodate alpine plants), any of these can be transformed into a "mini-garden."

First decide what you want out of your garden: Will it be flowers to pretty up the place, foliage plants to add drama to your interior decorating or down-to-earth vegetables for eating?

THE SOIL MIXTURE will depend on what you want to grow; obviously African violets and herbs will require entirely different mixes. Check with your plant supplier on planting medium.

Nowhere can potted plants be used to better advantage than on the patio or terrace. Many of the newer suburban apartment buildings come equipped with such a spot where you can barbecue your steak and water your salad at the same time.

Growing tomatoes on the patio is almost traditional for anybody who has a pot big enough to accommodate them. And why not? The ones you grow yourself always taste better than the bot-house supermarket specials. A cherry-type tomato, such as the new Small Fry VEN, is a snap to grow in a pot. Other vegetables suitable for growing in containers include parsley, radishes, onions, lettuce, string beans, kohlrabi, eggplant, for your patio farmers.

How about a few herbs for the kitchen? There's sweet basil for spaghetti dishes, soups, stews, pot roasts, ragout! And chives to use in salads, sauces, with cottage cheese. Or rosemary — nice in roast pork, veal, chicken, fish, egg dishes. Use mint in iced drinks, sauce for lamb, jelly and for flavoring peas and carrots.

GET YOURSELF some cup hooks and hang up a pot or basket for unique charm. Wire baskets or redwood slings, haltered by copper wire (to prevent rust) give years of service. Line with wet sphagnum moss, Black Magic potting soil and then lantana, moss roses, Petunias (for a hot spot) or lobelias, bellflowers, geranium, begonia (if the hanger gets some shade). Some of the avant-gardeners are using the glass conductors taken from old electric poles and hung with a leather thong as the "in fad" hanging baskets for little nothings.

The most lavish hanging baskets around are sold already planted or potted to your order at C & L Gardens on Rand Road in Arlington Heights. You might even want to visit their greenhouse to "steal ideas" about which plants look best in hanging baskets.

FOLIAGE PLANTS which are used just to make your home look classier include dracaena marginata (my favorite — makes a Rolling Meadows living room look like Inverness), Norfolk Island pine, dieffenbachia (dumb cane — may reach three or four feet), fiddle-leafed fig (easy culture), schefflera, Monstera (also called Swiss Cheese plant) and nephthytis (thrives in bathrooms). (The greenhouse at Klehm Nursery in Arlington Heights has a big display of giant foliage plants. Just ask the parrot to direct you.)

Did I forget to mention what you could grow in a portable plant box? Putting on the dog? Try bird-of-paradise, a tree rose or a rhododendron! Iris and pansies go well together in a modular plant box. Things to consider: cattleya or moth orchids, bonsai or ivy. When the ivy gets big, you can do like the North Shore matrons do, and train the ivy to grow around a piece of chicken wire sculpted in the shape of an animal.

REMEMBER, THOUGH, if you want to use delicate plants on your patio, wait until all danger of frost is over.

If you want beauty of a here-today, gone-in-autumn type, consider ageratum, geraniums, mums, marigolds, lantana, petunias, zinnias and other annuals.

Surely you have a tiny spot for a bit of living thing — food for the soul — wherever you live!

A Reminder To Brides

As of Jan. 1, 1972, new wedding story deadlines are in effect at the Herald offices. Full information about the new deadlines is printed on the new forms available from the Herald offices; however, a few photographers still have the old forms with outdated wedding deadline information.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions and a listing of attendants) wedding information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption. And white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make the selection for you. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available at the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

What's New

To Make Living Easier

A game plan for the presidency? More or less, that's what one gets when one buys "Want To Be President?" It is geared for teenagers and adults and amounts to a battle of strategy between two or four players. Candidates advance or retreat in the face of decisions and frustrations that confront actual candidates in real life. The game is described as an excellent refresher course for boning up on politics.

So you think mattresses haven't changed in years? Wrong. Among improvements in the new line of one major mattress maker are fashion-styled tickings, quilting instead of tufting, foam upholstery, plastic-impregnated insulators, entirely tempered innersprings.

(Spring Air Mattress Co., 868 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, Ill.)

A new rocker for juveniles has what the manufacturer describes as "jet-age" design. What this appears to mean: everything is rounded on the seat as well as on the open steel frame, eliminating any sharp edges which might injure a child. The rocker base is extra wide to eliminate the chance of tipping. The seat is strong and tough, says the manufacturer, adding: It is made of the same durable plastic as used in professional football helmets.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Ever since reading about the many uses of activated charcoal granules I've tried any number of stores in our neighborhood and nobody stocks it. Can you tell me what type of store would be most likely to have it? Perhaps others would like to know, too.—Mrs. A.R.

This is as good a time as any to warn those looking for activated charcoal granules not to let anyone talk them into buying activated carbon which comes in a powder form. Activated charcoal granules are treated to absorb odors. Many houseware departments of department stores and good hardware stores carry this product. The best place, however, is a well-stocked pet store which usually also carries it in bulk — not only cheaper but handier for the purposes we've mentioned.

Dear Dorothy: After I cut away the meat from the bones to make stew, I put the bones in with the stew to cook. Not only are they delicious to nibble on, but they give the stew a richer taste.—Diane I.

Dear Dorothy: I like to make meringue pie shells but always have trouble with them sticking and breaking when I cut them into pieces. I tried buttering the pan but still no luck. Is there some little trick I'm not aware of?—Mrs. Marcella Byrne.

Checked with those who make meringue shells and they say the pan should be more than greased — it should be well greased.

Dear Dorothy: Why not use canned heat cooking fuel to singe your chickens? I find it most efficient.—Constant Reader.

Why not, indeed? It just hadn't occurred to me. Thanks for the suggestion.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Moms, Offspring Study Together

Can a mother and her son or daughter share an educational course and enjoy the experience?

The staff of Greenerfields Unlimited believes they can so it is offering, for the first time, five summer courses for parents and their high school and/or college aged students to attend together. The courses will also be open to individuals.

Classes will be held at Greenerfields, 318 Hupp Road, Northfield, Mondays beginning June 19 and ending July 31. Registrations are now being taken at the school's office, or by calling 446-0525.

Greenerfields, a continuing education center for women, provides participants with mind stimulating courses without exams, term papers, or grades to worry them. This summer's courses include "TNT-Teilhard 'n' Tillich," "Cinema: Art Form Or Entertainment," "Family Dynamics," "A Week of Creative Art and Gestalt," and "Beginning Yoga."

A "Gestalt Weekend" is also scheduled from July 7 to 9, conducted by Mrs. Jane Levenberg, a marital, family and group therapist. This session is especially for young adults 16 to 25 years old, who are interested in personal growth and in deepening their inter-personal skills.

Clubwomen Reward Talented Youths

Seven area high school youths received scholarships in conservation, art and music at the May meeting of Mount Prospect Woman's Club.

The two top winners, Carol Shaler and Sue Crom, were given $200 each toward their college education. The others received awards to attend summer workshops in art, music and conservation.

Carol Shaler ranks first in her class at Prospect High School. She plans to enter St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., in fall, majoring in Spanish and then hoping to use her language proficiency in social work.

Sue Crom, a Hersey High School senior, will enter the University of Arkansas in fall to study personnel management and public relations.

THE FIVE other awards went to Leslie Ann Lenz, Rick Destree and Janis Jones, all Prospect High School students, and to Bobbie Oxford and Cynthia Trudeau, both of Hersey High.

Leslie Ann Lenz is a junior at Prospect and will attend Allerton Park Art School near the University of Illinois this summer. Last summer she studied at the young artist school at Chicago's Art Institute.

Rick Destree will take part in Northern Illinois University's conservation program this summer. He recently attended a conservation workshop at Western Illinois University on a scholarship from the Mount Prospect Junior-Woman's Club.

Janis Jones, a junior at Prospect, has been invited to attend music camp at the University of Illinois. She has studied piano for 10 years and played at the woman's club luncheon last spring.

Bobbie Oxford will attend the conservation program at Western Illinois University this summer. She plans to major in conservation in college.

Cynthia Trudeau, a sophomore at Hersey, is among those invited to a summer music camp at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington. She specializes in voice.

NOT ONLY DID awards go to the high school students but also to some of the woman's club members who have given outstanding service during the past year.

The 7th District of Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs have cited Mrs. Paul Berg for heading the home life department, Mrs. Fran Haller for support of Illinois Cottage at Park Ridge School for Girls, and Mrs. Roy L. Duda for the most unusual publicity in any media during the year.

Also at the May meeting, new officers were installed. Mrs. William Wilcox is president; Mrs. Jan Hanson, first vice president; Mrs. George Hietanen, second vice president; Mrs. R. H. Doyle, recording secretary; Mrs. F. H. Dwyer, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. David Crockett, treasurer. Mrs. Charles C. Smith is program chairman.

A new book presents an eminent child psychiatrist's blueprint on toilet training children without trauma. The directions are from Dr. Jose Graham Selzer. He is on the staff of the New England Home for Little Wanderers, the Beth Israel Hospital, and teaches psychiatry at Harvard University. Written with the staff of the Boston Children's Hospital Medical Center, the guide consists of, among other things, two stories to be read aloud to the child. "After listening to the stories and looking at the bright, simple pictures, the toddler will realize why he is being put on the toilet or potty," says Patricia Nelson, director of health education at the medical center.

"No More Diapers," a Delacorte Press-Seymour Lawrence Book, written with the staff of the Boston Children's Hospital Medical Center. $4.95.

A new trash compactor has added features for increased practicality and convenience, the manufacturer says. To coordinate or contrast the compactor with other home appliances, the unit is available in avocado, autumn gold, copertone and white. An optional decorator trim kit is available for adding decorator panels to match kitchen decor. The manufacturer reports that the compactor's removable round bucket holds an average week's accumulation of compressed household trash. The cylindrical-shaped mass fits into a standard round 20-gallon trash can.

Spots, spills, stains add up to a sartorial headache when they land on a man's tie. Now there's a development to lessen the worry of such grooming crisis. It's Scotchgard protector for ties. One can take care of a dozen ties. Once a tie is coated with the device, it's protected from water spills, oily stains and coffee drops, says the manufacturer.

ZPG Picks Nina Koif As Mother Of The Year

Mrs. Nina Koif, Arlington Heights, was chosen Mother of the Year in a contest sponsored by Northwest Suburban Chapter of Zero Population Growth. She and her family will be honored tonight at a dinner in the Arlington Heights Elks Club where she will receive gifts and a weekend at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

Of the many nominees submitted, Mrs. Koif was chosen because she is "truly one of the special mothers of this world," to use the words of the family who nominated her. Mrs. Koif and her husband Martin have three children of their own, all born before there was any talk of over population.

When they decided to enlarge their family, they looked toward adoption, especially toward adoption of "hard-to-place" children. They have since adopted three black children.

In addition to being a full-time mother, Mrs. Koif holds a number of positions in family-oriented institutions. This year she was elected president of the Open Door Society, an organization of 300 families in the Chicago area who have adopted across racial lines and have worked for the adoption of all children without families. She has also been invited to sit on the board of the Child Care Association and she is a member of the Adoption Information Service committee.

Liver Is Considered Best Source Of Iron

Remember having liver served and being admonished to "eat it because it's good for you?" Indeed, it was good for you then — and it's good for you now, because it's our best source of nutritionally important dietary iron. Research shows that iron from animal sources is superior to iron from vegetables origin because it's much more readily absorbed.

And nutrition studies show that most of us simply are not getting as much iron as we need, he noted. This is particularly true for young girls and women because of lower average food consumption, and because women have a greater physiological need for iron than men. In fact, surveys indicate that iron deficiency anemia — characterized by paleness, listlessness, shortness of breath, dry skin, gastric disturbances and dizziness — is the most prevalent nutritional disease we have today.

Iron is important in nutrition because it teams with certain amino acids in protein to build and maintain the hemoglobin of blood which carries oxygen to body cells.

The findings regarding nutritional iron deficiencies in girls have been further substantiated by research studies conducted by Dr. Hilda S. White, Associate Professor of Home Economics, Northwestern University, working with a Meat Board grant.

Of nine young college women who cooperated in the project, only one was found to have adequate amount of bone marrow iron, and only one other had a trace. No discernible trace of bone marrow iron could be found in any of the other seven. As a result of her studies, Dr. White reported that, in many instances, girls and women need to double their usual intakes in order to meet recommended dietary allowances for iron.

Actually, the intake of iron in today's average mixed diet may be decreasing. There is evidence that changes in processing, packaging, handling and home preparation of foods have reduced the amount of dietary iron available for adequate absorption.

RESEARCH EVIDENCE points to a precarious balance between the store of iron in the body and the body's daily need. This becomes evident when we note that the human body has a limited capacity to absorb and store iron. Therefore, a constant need exists for adequate iron in the regular daily diet. But since there are relatively few naturally iron-rich food sources, how do we go about getting it?

Though medical iron supplementation may sometimes be necessary, meat is our most important source of readily available dietary iron. Research shows that iron from animal sources is superior to iron from vegetables origin because it's much more readily absorbed into the system. And meats — particularly organ meats such as liver — are high in iron content, a fact that adds to their importance in any well-planned diet. A 3½ ounce serving of liver, for example, can furnish the entire recommended daily allowance — needed by young women and men under 18 years of age, and as much as 180 per cent of that needed by men over 18 years of age. "Beef, pork, lamb and veal liver are all exceptionally good sources of essential food nutrients in addition to iron," says Dr. Sherman. "They are unusually high in vitamin A and in riboflavin. And they're also rich in protein, niacin, thiamin and ascorbic acid — and low in calories," he continued.

Throw Food Out If You Doubt Safety

UPI—Food poisoning symptoms don't necessarily alter the taste and appearance of food, says the National Safety Council. Contrary to folklore, molds are harmless, although ugly and unpalatable. Meat that smells bad is decaying but putrefaction doesn't cause food poisoning, the council said. Regardless of the appearance and odor of food, if you've doubts about its safety, throw it out without tasting. The financial loss is minuscule compared with doctor bills and suffering incurred as a result of food poisoning.

Virginia Hardy Writing Contest

A short story writing contest is being sponsored by Virginia Hardy's Oven, a national chain of stores specializing in fresh pies and breads baked daily on the premises.

An unusual prize in the national short story contest is that the six best stories will be printed on the firm's pie boxes now imprinted with short stories by O. Henry. According to the company, over 1¼ million boxes were used by the chain last year.

In addition to having their stories printed, winners of the national contest who are students from fourth through twelfth grade will receive special prizes of $100 savings bonds in each of the three different grade levels: fourth through sixth, seventh through ninth and tenth through twelfth. First prize winners will also receive 50 free pies, whether they are students or adults.

Local prizes will also be awarded in each Virginia Hardy's Oven location. First prize for students is a $50 U.S. savings bond; second prize is 25 free pies; third prize is 10 free pies.

Rules and contest entry forms are available in this area at Virginia Hardy's Oven store, 1588 S. Busse Road, Mount Prospect.

Stories must be submitted for local contest to Virginia Hardy's Oven operator by June 15. Entries submitted after June 15 and before July 15 will be considered for national prizes only.

ALL THE PREPARATIONS for Chicken Salad Pie can be done a day ahead and assembled an hour before serving according to Mrs. Harold Fendius. The luncheon specialty consists of a baked pie shell filled with a chicken salad and topped with a mixture of mayonnaise and whipped cream.

Chicken Salad Pie Stars At Spring Luncheon

by LOIS SEILER

If you're partial to chicken, you'll enjoy the recipes shared with us today by Mrs. Harold F. Fendius of Arlington Heights.

A favorite that Nancy Fendius likes to make for spring luncheons is an interesting Chicken Salad Pie. This consists of a baked pie shell filled with a chicken salad and topped with a mixture of mayonnaise and whipped cream.

"All the preparations can be done a day ahead, with the pie assembled an hour before serving," Nancy said. She cuts it in wedges and accompanies it with spiced peaches and hot rolls.

Another of her specialties for a luncheon or buffet supper is a Company Chicken Noodle Bake. This delightful dish could be likened to a chicken lasagna.

A member of the Arlington Heights Nurses' Club, Nancy's recipe appears in the club's new cook book. Easily doubled or tripled, it is ideal for serving a large crowd.

Assembled in layers, the dish consists of lasagna noodles, a creamy cheese mixture dotted with olives, onion, green pepper and parsley, cooked chicken and mushroom soup. It can also be made a day ahead.

Baked until bubbly, it must stand at least ten minutes before cutting.

"IT IS SOFT yet firm, and will slice nicely into squares," Nancy remarked.

For a luncheon, she often decorates the top with pimiento stars and serves relishes on the plate for color.

A tossed salad or avocados with grapefruit sections topped with a French dressing, buttered rolls or French bread are appropriate accompaniments for the Chicken Bake when served for a buffet. For a luncheon, Nancy suggests a molded salad.

She likes to make one with chopped apple, celery and walnuts molded in cherry gelatin flavored with red cinnamon candies. Nancy uses individual molds which look pretty, and serves the salad with a sweet dressing of mayonnaise and whipped cream.

The Chicken Bake is a great favorite of her husband, Hal, and children, Kurt, 11, Carol, 9, and Paul, 6.

In addition to cooking, Nancy enjoys

CHICKEN SALAD PIE

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 cups cooked chicken, diced
1/4 cup shredded American or mild cheddar cheese
1/2 cup (9-ounce can) crushed pineapple, drained well
1/3 cup sliced almonds
1/2 cup diced celery
1 9-inch pie shell, baked and cooled
1/2 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Blend salt and paprika into 1/2 cup mayonnaise.

Combine chicken, cheese, pineapple, almonds and celery. Mix in seasoned mayonnaise and blend well. Refrigerate overnight.

An hour before serving, turn chicken mixture into baked pie shell. Whip cream and fold in 1/2 cup mayonnaise. Spread over chicken mixture in pie shell. Refrigerate until served. Cut in wedges. Serves 8.

COMPANY CHICKEN NOODLE BAKE

1 8-ounce package lasagna noodles
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2/3 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 cup cream-style cottage cheese (small curd)
1/3 cup sliced stuffed green olives
1/3 cup finely chopped onions
1/3 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/4 cup minced parsley
3 cups diced, cooked chicken or turkey
1 1/2 cups buttered soft, fine bread crumbs
Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender, being careful not to overcook. Drain and rinse in cold water.

Mix soup, milk, salt and poultry seasoning and heat. Beat cheeses together and stir in olives, onions, green pepper and parsley. Place half the noodles in the bottom of an 11 1/2 by 7-inch greased baking dish. (A 9 by 13-inch dish may be used by increasing soup to 2 cans, cream cheese to one large package, and cottage cheese to 2 cups.)

Spread half the cheese mixture on top of noodles, half the chicken and half the soup. Repeat layers one more time. Top with finely-grated buttered crumbs.

Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes or until bubbly. (If made the day before, let casserole come to room temperature before baking.)

Let stand ten minutes before slicing. Cut in squares to serve. Decorate with pimiento stars, if desired.

The smaller dish serves 8 for a luncheon; the larger dish serves 10.

APPLE SALAD MOLD

1 3-ounce package cherry gelatin

1 cup hot water
1/4 cup red cinnamon candies
1/4 cup boiling water
1/2 cup chopped, peeled apples
1/2 cup finely-chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Dissolve candies in boiling water. Add to gelatin. Chill until slightly thickened. Stir in apples, celery and walnuts.

Turn into 6 to 8 individual oiled molds. Refrigerate until firm. Serve with the following dressing:

1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup whipping cream

Blend sugar into mayonnaise. Beat whipping cream and fold in sweetened mayonnaise. Makes one cup. Spoon over molded salad.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Many Americans today are following fat-controlled, low cholesterol meal plans on recommendations of scientists who regard this as one means of reducing the risk of heart attack in susceptible people.

However, this does not preclude having interesting menus and individual dishes, as will be suggested. The purpose is to avoid the saturated fats, both animal and vegetable. These harden at room temperature and are considered foods to avoid if worried about cholesterol.

In addition cholesterol-rich foods essentially non-fat include egg yolks, organ meats and shellfish. We've experimented with a couple of recipes which the Heart Association recommends and found both delightful.

First is Burgundy Pot Roast. Select a 3-pound beef roast, bottom round, sirloin tip, or lean chuck. Heat 1/3 cup polyunsaturated vegetable oil in heavy kettle or dutch oven. Add the beef and cook over medium heat until browned on both sides.

Add 1 1/2 cups sliced celery, 1 large onion, peeled and sliced, garlic salt to taste, 2 cups beef bouillon, 1/2 cup tomato puree, and 1/4 cup red wine (a dry burgundy is best). Bring to boil.

Cover and cook in a 350-degree oven until meat is tender, 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Serves 6 to 8.

LEMON BAKED Chicken is our second recipe. Select a plump fryer about 3 pounds. Cut into serving pieces. Wash, then wipe dry. Arrange in a shallow casserole or baking dish.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper and a generous dash of garlic salt. Mix 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice with 3 tablespoons polyunsaturated vegetable oil. Four this mixture over the chicken pieces. Cover and bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes, uncovering the last 10 minutes or so to allow chicken to brown.

You might wish to stick under the broiler for quicker browning, but be sure your dish will stand the high temperature. Before serving to 4, sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Booklets on fat-controlled, low cholesterol meals are available through the American Heart Association, 44 East 23rd St., New York, N. Y. 10010.

Refreshing Desserts With Fruit

Desserts are sometimes given a haphazard thought in meal planning. To do justice to any meal, put a small effort in planning them for they also give you a chance to show your creativity and dash. For some thoughts on spring desserts that are enticing and glamorous, Del Monte Kitchens presents Mandarin Chiffon Pie and Pears Helene.

Mandarin oranges are the basis of Mandarin Chiffon Pie — the orange segments and syrup are used in a chiffon filling to create a simply refreshing spring dessert. For glamour and flavor, a hint of orange rind has been added to the crust.

Ice cream is the all-American favorite.

Teamed with well-chilled pear halves and crowned with a smooth, rich chocolate syrup, the all-American favorite takes on new dimension and the excitement of classic Pears Helene.

The last is always the first remembered. Desserts are remembered longer for they are the finishing touch to any meal. Do try these desserts for they are sure to be remembered for their taste and for the extra drama created in serving them.

MANDARIN CHIFFON PIE

9-inch Orange Crumb Crust
1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin

4 eggs, separated
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup shredded coconut, toasted

Drain mandarin oranges, reserving syrup. Add lemon juice and enough water to syrup to make 1 cup. Soften gelatin in syrup mixture. Beat egg yolks until light in saucepan. Stir in sugar, salt and syrup mixture. Cook stirring constantly, until thickened. Set aside several orange segments for garnish. Cut remaining segments in half and add to gelatin mixture; cool completely. Beat egg whites until they form soft peaks; fold into gelatin mixture. Pour into pie shell; chill until set. Whip cream, gradually adding sugar. Before serving, top pie with whipped cream and garnish with orange segments and coconut.

ORANGE CRUMB CRUST

1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/3 cup margarine or butter, melted
1/4 cup sugar

1 teaspoon grated orange rind
Mix ingredients thoroughly. Firmly press into 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degrees, 10 minutes. Cool. 1 pie (8 servings).

PEARS HELENE

2 cans (16 oz. each) Bartlett pear halves, chilled and drained
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 can (16 oz.) chocolate syrup
Fill center of each pear with ice cream. Press two filled halves together; stand up in chilled dessert dish. Pour chocolate syrup over pears. Serve immediately. Garnish with candied violets, if desired. 6 servings.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

Almost any cut of beef can be tasty and tender if it is cooked the right way. Tender cuts of beef in the higher grades may be cooked with dry heat. The less tender cuts and cuts in the lower grades can be made tender by cooking with moist heat, braised or cooked in liquid.

The methods of dry heat are roasting, broiling, panbroiling and panfrying.

Roasting may also be called dry roasting or oven roasting is the best method for large cuts, including rib, rump (high quality) and sirloin tip (high quality).

Place the meat on a rack in a shallow baking pan. A broiler pan is ideal for roasting because it has its own rack. Or, if you're really stuck, use a couple of jar tops for a rack.

Some roasts, like a rib roast of beef, have their own built-in racks. They have rib bones on which the meat can rest while it cooks.

No water is added and no cover used for roasting. For best results roast in a slow oven, 300 to 325 degrees and use a meat thermometer to show doneness. Beef is rare at 140 degrees, medium at 160 degrees and well done at 170 degrees.

For easier carving and more attractive servings, it is desirable to allow a cooked roast to "set" 15 or 20 minutes. Meat continues to cook upon removal from the oven. If the roast is permitted to "set" it should be removed from the oven when the thermometer registers about 5 degrees lower than the desired doneness.

Tender steaks, including rib, rib eye (Delmonico), T-bone, Porterhouse, sirloin and filet mignon, cut one inch or more thick should be broiled at a moderate temperature to desired doneness.

For best results, broil about five inches from heat (the thicker the steak, the farther from the heat it should be) and broil longer on the first side. Season the browned side, turn and broil to the desired doneness.

Panbroiling is usually the best method for cuts of meat one inch or less thick. Place meat in preheated, lightly greased pan or griddle. Cook slowly, turning occasionally. Do not cover or add fat or water. Pour off or remove fat as it collects.

To pan fry meat, such as ground beef patties, brown the meat on both sides in small amount of fat. Season with salt and pepper and cook at moderate temperature until done, turning occasionally. Meat should not be covered.

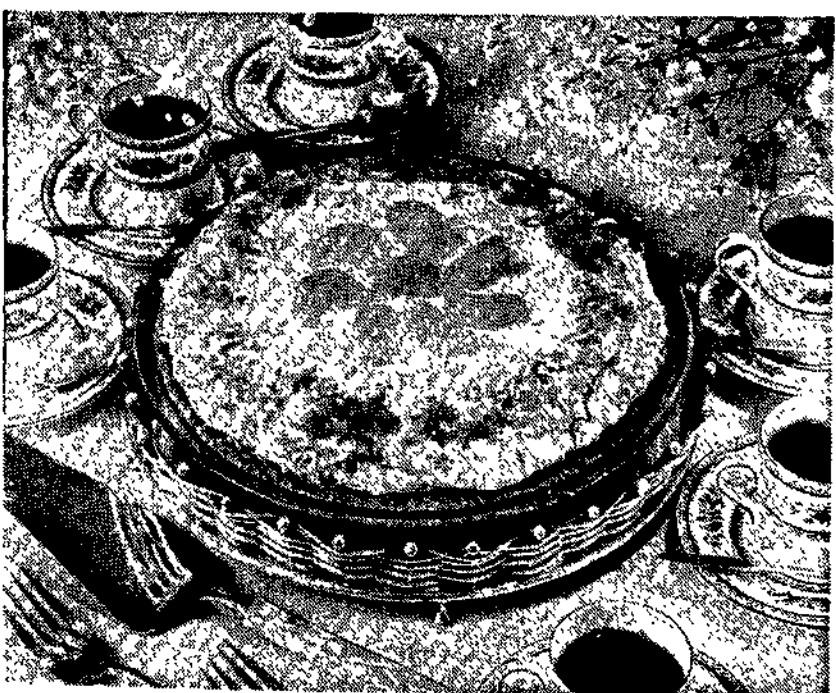

Less tender cuts including chuck, round and rump are usually braised as pot-roasts or steaks. Fresh beef brisket, plate, neck, shank and cubes from less tender cuts are usually cooked in liquid, although fresh brisket, cross-cut shanks and beef stew meat are also braised. Cuts cooked by braising or in liquid should be cooked well done.

To braise (also called pot roasting), use a heavy roasting pan with a cover. If you like, brown meat on all sides using a small amount of fat. Add a little liquid (water or soup). Cook at low temperature, covered tightly, on stove top or in oven. If oven is used, set temperature at 325 degrees.

When cooking in liquid (also called stewing) brown meat on all sides if desired. Cover with water and place lid on pan and simmer (cook just below boiling point).

Clever Shortcut For Cookie Fans

Toll House Marble Squares have the same chocolatey, old-fashioned flavor of Toll House Cookies, but the whole batch of batter is baked at one time in a baking pan instead of on cookie sheets. This way you save the time of spooning cookies onto cookie sheets, getting them into and out of the oven, and removing the cookies for cooling.

The marble squares have a clever trick that marbleizes the chocolate morsels throughout the batter. The cookie batter is put in the baking pan and a package of chocolate morsels sprinkled over the top. The pan is put in a preheated oven for one minute to soften the morsels, then removed, and a spatula or knife run through the batter to "marble" the cookies; then return to oven and continue baking until done. To serve, the cookies are cut into 2-inch squares. Yield: 2 dozen.

TOLL HOUSE MARBLE SQUARES

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup soft butter (or shortening)
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
6 tablespoons firmly-packed brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon water
1 egg
1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts

1 6 oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
Sift together flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. Blend butter, sugars, vanilla and water. Beat in egg; add flour mixture and mix well. Stir in nuts; spread in greased 13x9x2-inch pan. Sprinkle semi-sweet chocolate morsels over top of batter. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 minute. Remove from oven and run knife through batter to marbleize. Return to oven and continue baking for 12 to 14 minutes. Cool. Cut in 2-inch squares. Yield: 2 dozen.

'Follow Village Directive Or Resign'

Zettek Delivers Ultimatum To Housing Commission

Elk Grove Village Housing Commission members this week were told to resign en masse if they are not willing to follow the village board's directive concerning future work of the commission.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek delivered the ultimatum Tuesday night after members of the commission criticized the board for what they termed its "negative" position on the housing issue.

Zettek noted that the board had made its position clear on the housing issue in its letter to the commission and was not going to change that position.

"If you don't feel you can undertake the project, resign as a body," he told the commission at a meeting requested by that panel. "I'm not going to sit here and beg you to stay in operation."

Earlier in the meeting, a commissioner, the Rev. Maynard Beal, had described the board's letter as a "very negative" type of statement concerning the housing need. The letter, sent to commission members last month, stated that the board is not sympathetic to low-income housing unless it is looked at on an area-wide basis.

ANOTHER COMMISSION MEMBER, Cathy Duoba, criticized another portion of the letter asking the commission to contact other housing panels in the area to develop an area-wide plan for low-income housing.

"If you're really serious about this, I think it would be better for you to go to other village boards," Mrs. Duoba told the board. She also suggested the board pass a resolution saying it would consider low-income housing if neighboring communities did.

She noted that all housing commissions in the area could get together and agree on a plan, but "It's still, just talk" until policymakers agree on a plan.

In the letter to the commission, the board urged the commission to continue its study of the housing problem and "contact all like bodies . . . in the Northwest suburban area" to prepare a joint recommendation defining housing problems and suggesting remedies.

The letter also noted that the board would consider moderate-income and senior citizen housing if "the major developers would agree that land was available . . . and would essentially comply

Housing Panel Decimated

If the Elk Grove Village Housing Commission continues in operation, its make-up will be altered significantly as a result of developments this week.

Former commission chairman Neil Cooney, who resigned that position last month, now has submitted his resignation from the commission entirely.

Cooney, who notified Village Pres. Charles Zettek of his resignation from the commission in a letter, did not attend the commission's meeting Tuesday with the board.

Another commission member, village Trustee Ed Kenna, also officially resigned from the commission this week, reducing the number of commission members to five.

And at least one other commissioner, Joseph Wellman, said Tuesday he probably would resign from the panel.

ZETTEK Tuesday asked Rev. Maynard Beal, temporary chairman of the commission, to recommend persons for appointment to fill the vacancies on the commission.

The commission originally had nine members, but had been operating with just seven since last summer, when Sandra Todd and William Koretko resigned.

The commission has scheduled a meeting for next Tuesday.

Cooney, president of the Bank of Elk Grove, had been chairman of the commission since its formation two years ago. He had opposed continuation of the commission's work last November when the panel was preparing its report to the board, arguing that the commission had completed its major work.

Cooney had urged the board to continue the work done by the commission by taking its survey, which showed a need for 1,055 low-income housing units and 922 medium-income units, and contacting area developers.

with the village's zoning and building codes."

Zettek pointed out that writing a letter the whole board could agree on was a difficult task that took a lot of time. But, he also said, the letter represents the opinion of the board as a whole.

"WE TRIED TO present the letter in light of the whole board and that would be most fair to all board members," he said.

He also noted that the board's stand against low-income housing is one which the board believes is beneficial to the village as a whole.

"The board will not put up 1,000 low-income units (which the commission said were needed). We think we would be doing an injustice to the community to do so," he said. "We have to consider the entire village . . . We are not going to be crusaders."

The Rev. Mr. Beal, temporary chairman of the commission, then interjected, "I don't think we have any danger of being crusaders," noting that Arlington Heights and Des Plaines have both taken steps toward providing low-income housing.

The Rev. Mr. Beal also charged that the letter indicated the board "is abdicating its responsibility" in determining the future of the village by letting developers determine the type of housing which is built.

He also charged that the board "in essence did not deal with the contents of the (commission's) report" in its letter to the commission. In addition, he criticized the board for waiting 16 weeks to reply to the report and for its failure to make deliberations in public.

Boy Recovering After Hit-Run

A 15-year-old youth was in good condition yesterday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village after being struck by a hit-and-run driver in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Hospitalized with a fractured leg was Gary Pettay, 277 Martha St., Elk Grove Township. The youth was injured when he was struck while riding a bicycle on Lincoln Street just south of Martha Street in the northwest corner of Elk Grove Township.

The driver of the car, Christopher Mayernick, 270 Harmony Ln., Elk Grove Village, later turned himself in to Cook County Sheriff's Police. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, failure to yield to a pedestrian and driving too fast for conditions.

A TRANQUILIZER DART was used to temporarily immobilize a stray deer that rambled through Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights yesterday, pursued by police from both villages. Animal Officer Eugene Korn of the Arlington Heights Police Department finally subdued the animal near the Brass-Rail Restaurant on South Arlington Heights Road. The deer was transported to the Elk Grove Forest Preserve, from which he originally strayed.

Fourth-Grade Teacher

Town Backs Kidney Patient

Surgery to remove both kidneys of Gerald Cody, 27, a teacher in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 is scheduled for today. The kidney surgery will be done at Billings Hospital in Chicago if all tests go well, said his mother.

This initial surgery will prepare Cody for a kidney transplant from his 31-year-old sister, Sharon.

Cody, a fourth-grade teacher at Schaumburg Elementary School, has undergone intensive kidney dialysis treatment during the past five weeks, and has suffered from a kidney disease for four years.

His fellow teachers in Dist. 54 have organized an area-wide blood drive to replace the large amounts of blood Cody will need during both operations.

In conjunction with the Cooperative

Blood Replacement Plan, a May 24 blood drive has been arranged at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

ANYONE who wishes to donate blood may register by telephone anytime before that date by calling the administrative office at 529-4200. At least 150 pints are needed. To date, 31 donors have registered.

Blood will be taken from 2:30 to 6 p.m. at the school on that date. However, anyone who wishes to donate for Cody at area hospitals at other times may also do so.

It is necessary to tell the hospitals that the blood is to go to the Dialysis Department of Billings Hospital at the University of Illinois.

Suit Against Wheel Tax Continued To June 7

As expected, the suit challenging the constitutionality of the Cook County "wheel tax" was continued. The new hearing date is June 7.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

This Morning In-Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race tracks.

Dakin Williams, defeated in the March primary by U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, said he would run as an independent in November.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 8 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Racial Incident Followup

Suburban Housing Group Asks Law

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition has asked Hanover Park officials to establish a fair housing ordinance after a racial incident in April in Hanover Park.

Rudy Hazucha, president of the group and the Arlington Heights Human Relations Council, asked Mayor Richard Baker and the village trustees to state their "belief in justice" in a letter and position statement.

Hazucha said a fair housing ordinance would manifest the good will of the local government toward prospective minority citizens and also serve as a clear warning to those who want to make Hanover Park exclusively white.

Baker called the racial incident "an isolated situation." A cross was burned on the front lawn of a Glenbrook Country subdivision home in protest of the sale of the house to a white couple with an 11-month-old adopted black girl.

"We have blacks living here, and our village is far from all white, with representation from many races part of the total community," said Baker.

Baker added that biracial children also are living in the community. The mayor said the incident was condemned, not condoned, by officials, and did point out the necessity for research into ordinances to protect all residents from harassment.

BAKER SAID he has reactivated the village human relations committee and has sent letters to all school districts serving Hanover Park, asking them to include in their curriculums courses of study to prepare children for life in a multi-racial society.

Hanover Park does not have an open housing ordinance, said Baker, but the village attorney has been asked to research existing ordinances.

Hazucha said the incident in Hanover Park is the present concern, but that the problem is not peculiar to that village alone.

He urged Hanover Park to become a leadership community in this time of national and local crisis.

The group will hold a public meeting and program at 8 p.m. Monday at the Christian Church of Arlington Heights, 333 W. Thomas St.

Professor William Adelman of the University of Illinois will present a slide history of the ethnic migration and settlement of Chicago.

There is no admission charge for the program. Coffee will be served.

The district also has established a cash fund at the Schaumburg State Bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg, in Cody's name to help defray expenses of surgery and dialysis treatment. Approximately $1,000 in donations has been received.

Cody, formerly of Chicago, has lived in Schaumburg for four years. He is past president of the Schaumburg Education Association and presently an active member. In spite of his illness, he has lost little time from school.

Employees Of Village To Get Pay Hike

All employees of Elk Grove Village except department heads will receive at least a 5 per cent salary increase as a result of village board action this week.

The board approved three ordinances Tuesday establishing wage and salary schedules for the 1972-73 fiscal year, which began May 1.

The ordinances give 5 per cent increases to all clerical, office, public works, fire department and police department personnel. Only employees who moved up a step received increases greater than 5 per cent.

The village board has yet to decide on salary increases for village department heads. Village Mgr. Charles Willis is to make recommendations on those increases to the board next week. The 1972-73 budget, approved last week by the board, contains $10,000 for salary increases to department heads.

Village salaries and wages comprise 71.5 per cent or $1,955,934 of the village's present $2,734,979 budget. Last year salaries and wages totaled $1,785,534, which was 68 per cent of the total budget.

Decision On High School Shuttle Bus Delayed

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education postponed a decision Monday night on whether to continue a shuttle bus service for safety reasons for students living in three areas of the district.

The board decided to wait until the May 22 meeting after hearing pleas from residents to continue the free shuttle service. The pleas were made by parents of high school students living in the Bluff subdivision of Prospect Heights and an area near Golf and Arlington Heights roads south of Arlington Heights.

Students from Bluff are picked up by a bus and taken to Wheeling High School so they won't have to walk down Ill. Rte. 83 to school. Students in the area of Golf Road are bused to Forest View High School so they will not have to walk down Golf Road.

In addition, students from the Lake Briarwood subdivision near Mount Prospect receive shuttle service to Forest View down Golf Road. No representatives from that subdivision appeared at the meeting Monday.

SUPT. EDWARD GILBERT explained the board was considering discontinuing the shuttle service next year because few students have taken advantage of it.

Shuttle service provides one pickup point for students so the bus does not have to run a full route. The buses make the shuttle runs after they complete regular routes so the service has not cost the district extra money this year, Gilbert said.

The district began the shuttle service to the three areas last fall after it abolished all other free safety busing for students who live less than 1½ miles from school. All other students who live less than 1½ miles from the school must now pay $48.88 to ride the bus.

State law requires school districts to provide free transportation for all students living more than 1½ miles from school. The district taxes residents for the cost of this regular service and is then reimbursed 80 per cent by the state. The district receives no reimbursement for transportation provided for students living less than 1½ miles from school.

THE DISTRICT'S director of transportation, Nelson Lowry, said the shuttle bus may cost the district extra money next year because bus schedules may be so tight no buses will have extra time to make the runs.

Nancy Stearns, a representative of the Bluff parents, told the board her group canvassed the area door-to-door and found 29 students who plan to ride the shuttle next year. They said few students rode the shuttle this year because many were on the "early bird" shift which started an hour before the one shuttle run.

This year, Mrs. Stearns said, all students at Wheeling will be starting at one time and more will be able to catch the bus. "The need was there for safety reasons last year," she said, "Nothing has changed and the need is there this year."

A representative of the parents near Golf Road also said she did not know why the board would consider changing its policy now. "We've had the service for four years and the only alternative is to walk down Golf Road. As you remember a boy was killed this year on Golf," she said.

SHE SAID a survey of her area indicates that four students would ride the bus regularly and four would ride it in bad weather.

Board members agreed to postpone action on the shuttle runs until they can determine whether continuing the runs would cost the district money. In addition, Board Member Gene Artemenko, who joined the board after the safety busing decision was made last year, said he wanted to study the board's safety busing policy further.

Board Member Jack Matthews said he was sympathetic with the parents problem but did not believe shuttle busing should continue if it would cost the district extra money. "Then you'll get into the position of charging some people and not charging others for busing," he said.

Attempted Murder Case Continued For Defense

The defense was granted a continuance Tuesday in the case of Richard Salinas of Palatine Township, who is accused of attempting to kill a man he found with his wife.

Judge George Zimmerman of Cook County Circuit Court in Niles granted the continuance to June 6 on the attempted murder and aggravated assault charges.

Salinas, 28, is currently free on $2,500 bond.

He is accused of firing 20 shotgun pellets into the back of Jose Lopez, 24, of Chicago, who was with Salinas' wife, Paulina, 24, at the Deer Grove Forest Preserve Friday morning.

Lopez was treated for gunshot wounds at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, and was released yesterday.

COOK COUNTY Sheriff's Police investigator Lawrence Troka said he plans to contact Lopez upon his release from the hospital to determine if he wishes to file a complaint against Salinas.

Troka said Lopez declined to lodge a formal complaint Friday, but was under sedation at the time.

Charges have been filed by sheriff's police.

Two persons injured in an accident when their car collided with the hospital-bound vehicle carrying the injured Lopez were reported in good condition Monday.

Mrs. Anthony Abel, 1242 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, was treated for head injuries.

Her husband, who also was treated for head injuries, is to remain in the hospital for further observation.

High School Cost Lower Than Seen

Rolling Meadows High School will cost about $33,000 less than originally expected, but work remains to be done on the building.

The board of education of High School Dist. 214 approved change orders in the general contract Monday night which subtracts $33,004 from the contract, due to reductions in cost during construction. The changes bring the total general contract to Wil-Fred's, Inc., to $3,924,899.

However, representatives of Orput-Orput and Associates, the school architects, said about $300,000 of the contract will be withheld until all work is satisfactorily completed. The architects are now involved in a dispute with the contractor on the condition of the building's gymnasium floor.

The school opened last fall with students from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. It has been designed with an open style with no doors on many classrooms and triangular-shaped rooms. A similar design will be used in Buffalo Grove.

Rolling Meadows Principal Robert Hesse said cracks were left between the boards of the gym floor to allow for expansion of the wood. But architects and school officials believe the boards are "excessively spaced."

ARCHITECTS said Monday the contractor who installed the floor, has indicated he does not want to replace the floor, but wants to adjust the humidity in the gym so the boards will expand to fill the cracks. The architects said they found that solution unacceptable, but did not indicate what would be acceptable.

Miss Gorgol 3rd Runnerup In National Junior Miss

Barbara Jean Gorgol of Des Plaines, Paddock Publications and Illinois' Junior Miss of 1972, Tuesday night was named third runnerup in the national Junior Miss Pageant at Mobile, Ala.

Lydia Hodson of Kentucky was named America's Junior Miss for 1972. She received a $10,000 scholarship.

Policemen Honored

Four Schaumburg policemen were among a group of suburban police honored yesterday at graduation ceremonies from the Northwest Police Academy.

The ceremonies and a luncheon were held at the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

Policemen Roger Peter, James Kuzek, Ted Pryka and Art Pedraza were among the 36 men who completed the eight-week course in basic police work.

The men were instructed in the various aspects and duties of police work including investigation, courtroom procedures and criminal law with a special emphasis on protecting a person's rights during an investigation. The course included 320 hours in actual training.

All of the men will now return to regular police duties.

First runnerup was Cindy Strike of Utah with Catherine Day of Michigan second runnerup.

Miss Gorgol received a $2,500 scholarship as well as a $1,000 national scholastic achievement award presented in preliminary judging.

For her talent presentation, Miss Gorgol played a piano solo she had composed especially for the pageant.

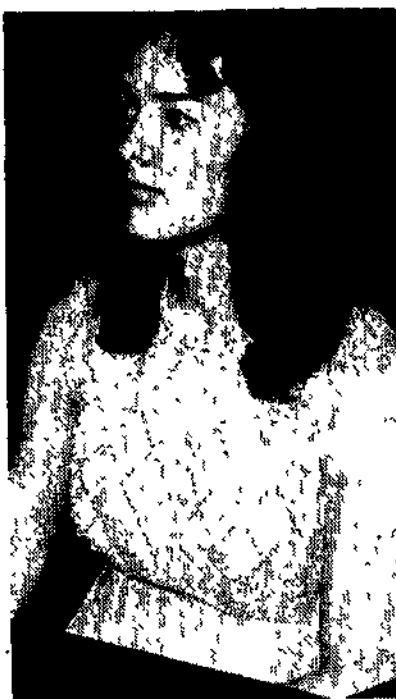

Representatives of Paddock Publications presented flowers to Miss Gorgol when she arrived at 4 p.m. yesterday at O'Hare Airport aboard Eastern Airlines Flight 242.

ARLENE STENS, of Woodlyme, N. J., America's Junior Miss of 1971, crowned her successor at the climax of the Pageant in Mobile's Municipal Auditorium. Miss Stens is a freshman at Glassboro State College in New Jersey, where she is majoring in education.

Judges for this year's Pageant were Celeste Holm, actress; I. William Hill, associate editor of the Washington Star; Debbie Meyer, triple gold medal winner in the 1968 Olympics; Arthur Gordon, novelist and staff writer for Reader's Digest; and Bob Clayton, host of NBC-TV's "Concentration."

The 50 contestants, one representing each state, were selected from among more than 80,000 high school senior girls between 16 and 18 years of age who competed at the local and state levels across the country.

Last fall Miss Gorgol was named as one of two Paddock Publications' Junior Misses in the locally sponsored pageant. She received a $500 scholarship and a chance to enter the Illinois Pageant held in Berwyn in late December. The Maine East High School senior won the state title along with a savings bond of $1000.

SPONSORS OF THE national pageant this year were the John H. Breck Co., Eastman Kodak, Kraft Foods and Scott Paper Co.

The Junior Miss Pageant has been conceived as something more than the conventional beauty contest. Judging emphasizes character, intelligence, personality, achievements and personal ambitions. To even be eligible to enter, girls have to have grades of a B, average or better.

More than $500,000 in college scholarships and other awards will have been presented to this year's Junior Miss participants at the local, state and national levels.

Annex For Hotel, Des Plaines Asked

The City of Des Plaines has been asked to annex land at the southwest corner of Wille and Mount Prospect roads to clear the way for construction of a $28 million hotel-exposition hall development.

At his weekly press conference Monday, Mayor Herbert Behrel said a private developer will construct a 100,000-square-foot exposition hall and a 500-room hotel if the 65-acre site just north of the Northwest Tollway is annexed and supplied with city services and roads.

Behrel indicated that the developers have an option on the site and that the land would be bought after a favorable city decision on annexation.

Behrel also said construction of the proposed development would probably necessitate widening along nearby streets.

ANTHONY FINOCCHIO, spokesman for the land developers, told the Herald Monday that he will meet next week with City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi and other city officials to work out details of annexation and zoning.

Finocchio said the development company is now discussing hotel construction with several national hotel chains. Behrel said that the hotel's maximum height would probably be set by the Federal Aviation Administration, because of the site's closeness to the airport.

The site is roughly triangular and bounded by Wille on the north, Mount Prospect on the east and by a diagonal section of the tollway on the south. A large lake, which had only recently been filled in, had existed on most of the property.

The site is about a mile east of the planned Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant, slated for construction at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

The development company includes individuals who recently built a $35 million recreation and hotel center along Lake Arrowhead near Los Angeles, Calif., Finocchio said.

The Des Plaines development would include an $8 million exposition center, a $20 million hotel, a theater for professional play production, and parking spaces for 6,500 cars, Finocchio said. The hotel would face Mount Prospect Road and the exposition center would face the tollway, and the Des Plaines tollway oasis overpass.

The development company hopes to attract business exhibitors who do not need the large display space now offered by McCormick Place in Chicago, he said.

Most firms do not require the 800,000 square feet of space offered at McCormick Place, Finocchio said. Because Chicago's exposition hall is usually reserved up to three years ahead, future planning for use of McCormick is difficult, he said.

Teachers Council Makes Bid For Salary Package

by RICH HONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council pulled a surprise move Tuesday afternoon and gave the Dist. 21 board of education a proposal for the salary and fringe benefit section of the contract.

The proposal came when neither side could reach agreement on the procedural package of the contract. The council still would like three items added and the board will not accept them.

The three items—scope, fact-finding and the strike clause—were, if not settled, supposedly going to send the talks into limbo.

However, Larry Halter, spokesman for the council, said, "I've never seen an impasse called over procedural, so we'll wait and see what happens to the financial section."

IN THE financial section the teachers are asking for many increases. They are:

- An 11 per cent pay raise.
- An increase from 10 to 15 sick days.
- An increase from two to three personal leave days.
- Funeral leave extended to cover non-immediate family.
- Full tuition to be paid by the district for all graduate studies taken.
- Changes in sabbatical leave.

HALTER SAID he feels all the proposals are realistic and he doesn't feel the salary increase of 11 per cent will be in violation of federal guidelines calling for increases no greater than 5.5 per cent.

"We feel that since the teachers usually get a four or five per cent increase yearly through their current contract increment steps, we are only asking for a six per cent increase," said Halter.

"However, after June 30 there will be no contract and no salary schedule, therefore it becomes an 11 per cent increase," said John Barger, spokesman for the board. "I don't have any comment on the proposals at this time, and probably won't have for the next few weeks."

Halter said the council is asking for the raise because they feel Dist. 21 is on the bottom of the ladder when it comes to salaries. "You can pick any 10 districts in the Chicago suburbs and Wheeling will be on the bottom," he added.

HALTER ALSO said the increase is determined by the average teacher's salary. He explained that, as in the past, the monies bargained for would be in total amount and left up to the council to decide which teacher would get what increases.

Barger told Halter the board must see the scale and how the money is distributed to make sure the money is within the bargained framework.

Halter disagreed at first, but when one of his team members explained it was just a procedure to double check the distribution, he agreed. The board also explained that the law states they must see the salary schedule before it is approved.

THERE WAS no indication at Tuesday's meeting as to what type of counter-proposals would be made at the next meeting by the board, but they indicated they would have some type of answer for the council.

Halter again said, "If the counter-proposal is 'no,' then by my definition you haven't countered." He also said the three items to be discussed in procedures may also be negotiated with the salaries and fringe benefits.

The two teams will not meet again until 4 p.m., May 24.

Policeman Quits Due To 'Politics'

A Wheeling policeman said yesterday he resigned from his job with the department because "the police department is too politically controlled."

Patrolman William Hoos submitted his resignation to the fire and police commission and the commission voted unanimously Tuesday to accept it.

Commission members were critical of the wording of the letter Hoos sent them which began "As of May 15, I quit."

Roger Stricker, director of public safety, said yesterday the village had offered to transfer Hoos from an assignment on the department's investigative division to a position as evidence technician in the service division in an attempt to help Hoos with "personal problems."

Hoos said, however, when he had asked twice for a leave of absence for personal reasons, the village had refused "for his own good."

The policeman, who has been with the department for 4½ years, said the police department's promotion system is like a "political popularity poll."

Hoos was also critical of the fire and police commission, which he said "is a political arm of outside influences."

OF STRICKER, Hoos said, "The police department is currently being run by a man with a five-week education in police administration who is an ex-convict."

(Stricker served as an elected trustee on the village board before resigning that post to begin his paid position with the village.)

Hoos went on to say, "The job environment created by the village is not conducive to a person planning a career."

Hoos, 25, lives in the village.

He said, "The prerequisite for advancement here is not job performance."

Stricker told the Herald yesterday there were no politics involved in the decision to transfer Hoos to the evidence technician post.

"There were only a few people qualified, and he was the most logical for the post in normal progression of advancement," Stricker said.

"I TOLD HIM IT wasn't political. In fact it was a promotion," Stricker said.

He also noted that the assignment change had nothing to do with the fact that Hoos was active in the Wheeling chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), a union.

Stricker said Hoos had originally accepted the technician job, then changed his mind.

"He was a damn good policeman," Stricker said.

Hoos also attacked the village board. "Some of the biggest crimes I've seen committed in this town happen Monday nights after 8 o'clock," he said.

"It was all of those reasons, put together, plus the fact that I was offered a job in real estate which I consider a good resignation."

"But it was the political transfer that made me accept the new job offer," he said.

Hoos said the personal problems he had were caused by the "working atmosphere" in the police department.

Hoos had been president of the Wheeling chapter of the CCPA. He said he resigned the office before the last wage and salary committee meeting village employees had with the board over salary negotiations.

Memorial Day Parade Set By Veterans Groups

Wheeling's combined veterans organizations will honor their departed comrades with a parade on Memorial Day May 29.

The parade will form at the Amvets 66 grounds at 8:30 a.m. that Monday, and will travel down Milwaukee Avenue, north to Dundee Road, beginning at 9 a.m.

It will continue west down Dundee Road to Wolf Road and south on Wolf Road to Heritage Park where services in honor of the dead soldiers will be conducted.

Participants who have already registered for the parade are: the Chicago Mounties, Color guards from the Amvets Post 66, VFW Post 7178 and American Legion Post 1948; Amvets Auxiliary 66,

VFW 7178 Auxiliary, Junior Amvets 66, Glenview Naval Air Station, Wheeling High School Band and Wheeling High Naval Junior ROTC.

Volunteers Off To Historic Galena

The First Illinois Volunteers drum and bugle corps will travel to Galena Saturday to take part in the parade and ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of Galena.

The corps will be marching as representatives of the Wheeling Historical Society. The corps will also be appearing for the historical society at the annual beer and brat festival Aug. 6 in Wheeling.

Last Sunday the Volunteers made their first appearance of the new season in the VFW Loyalty Day parade in Chicago. The members wore their new Civil War-type uniforms.

The Volunteers are also scheduled to appear in the Norwegian spring festival in Staughton, Wis., American Legion and VFW state and national conventions, Memorial Day and Fourth of July weekends and the corps' own Midwest Parade of Champions drum corps competition at Wheeling High School July 2.

Last year's drum corps competition was sold out and area residents this year are urged to get tickets early. All tickets at $3.50 each may be ordered by mail from the corps at P.O. Box 333, Wheeling, Ill.

The corps still has openings for new members. The age range is from 13 to 19 and information may be obtained by writing the corps or by calling Bob Bryson at 537-4723. Visitors are also invited to corps meetings each Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois racetracks.

Dakin Williams, defeated in the March primary by U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, said he would run as an independent in November.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 6 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Approve Shopping Center, Office Rezoning

Clark Oil Sign Denied

Wheeling's Zoning Board of Appeals denied a request for a sign variation for a Clark Oil service station and approved rezoning for a shopping center and for an engineering office at Tuesday's public hearings.

The board unanimously denied a request from the Clark Oil Co. to place a pole sign at the property line instead of set back 25 feet.

The station is the same one that was refused zoning by the village a year and a half ago. But after a court suit the station is now being built despite the village's objections.

At the hearing Tuesday, chairman Douglas Cargill pointed out to the Clark Oil representative that the village's concern for traffic safety at the intersection was a reason the original zoning was refused and could also affect the decision on the sign variations, because the signs would block the view of motorists.

"You're doing the same thing with the sign that you started to do with the building," Cargill said.

BOARD MEMBER Neil Brant said he thought the village should work to eliminate other non-conforming signs on Milwaukee Avenue which are too close to the street and not add others to the area by granting zoning variations.

Although Cargill repeatedly explained there were "no hard feelings," about the suit on the rezoning, he said the reasons the board opposed both the rezoning and the sign variations were the same.

Mrs. Maureen Pitt testified that she thought the board should grant the variation if it would keep the station from going out of business and becoming another abandoned station.

A Clark official told the zoning board if the variation was refused the station would open with an inadequate sign arrangement, but said the company would not go to court for relief.

The zoning board denial included two small price-sign variations as well as the one sought for the large trade sign.

Final action on the variation is up to the village board, however.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday, the zoning board approved rezoning for a shopping center at 430 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The center, which will be located on the southwest corner of North Street and Elmhurst Road, will house a White Hen Pantry convenience food store as well as small commercial offices, developer Allen Foss told the board.

The Dominion Development Co. would develop the center.

The zoning board was presented with a letter from the First Baptist Church indicating that the church had no objection to the proposed center.

The 5,000-square-foot building would be half occupied by the food store, Foss said.

IN APPROVING the rezoning, the zoning board asked the village board to consider that there will be a potential litter problem if students from the high school dispose of carry-out sandwich wrappings from the store by dropping them into neighborhood yards.

In a third hearing the board unanimously recommended that property at 400 S. Milwaukee Ave. be rezoned to business zoning to be used as engineering offices for Robert Neukranz and Associates.

Neukranz told the board he planned to live in the building as well as operate his business from it.

Careers Day Friday
At MacArthur Junior

A careers day and fair will be held tomorrow at MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights.

Representatives from almost 25 different professions will give speeches and answer students' questions about their careers. The program will be held in the afternoon. Following the discussions, the 600 students at the school will view displays on careers.

The fair is sponsored by the eighth grade students at MacArthur. The students chose the careers that would be represented from a list compiled by the faculty. The Prospect Heights branch of the Volunteer Service Bureau, with the help of the faculty at the school, secured the persons that will speak tomorrow.

New Continuance Granted
In Heights Annex Case

Yet another continuance was granted yesterday in the suit filed by a Prospect Heights group against Wheeling for its annexation of 40 acres of undeveloped Prospect Heights land.

Don Kreger, the attorney handling the suit for a group calling itself the Wheeling Road Zoning Committee, said yesterday "the case was continued over my rather strenuous objections." It was continued because the attorney for the landowner said he needed more time to work on the case.

The land involved lies east of Wheeling Road and south of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church. Wheeling village officials annexed the land early last year and rezoned it for apartments.

The zoning committee, a group of Prospect Heights residents, challenged the annexation because Wheeling's boundaries touch the 40-acre site on a point-to-point basis. The group contends the parcel is thus not contiguous to Wheeling and cannot be annexed.

In a judgement last November a Cook County circuit court judge ruled that point-to-point contact does not constitute contiguity.

The court has yet to decide the validity of Wheeling's claim that the annexation should be allowed because undue delay occurred in filing the suit challenging the annexation.

Suit Against Wheel Tax
Continued To June 7

As expected, the suit challenging the constitutionality of the Cook County "wheel tax" was continued. The new hearing date is June 7.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

A TRANQUILIZER DART was used to temporarily immobilize a stray deer that rambled through Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights yesterday, pursued by police from both villages. Animal Officer Eugene Korn of the Arlington Heights Police Department finally subdued the animal near the Brass Rail Restaurant on South Arlington Heights Road. The deer was transported to the Elk Grove Forest Preserve, from which he originally strayed.

A New Shop In Town

by BOB ANDERSEN

The cliché — "If there's a will, there's a way" — might be applied to three local men who started a new business in Schaumburg.

Strictly novices a few months ago, the trio now are competent and artistic craftsmen. They own and operate an iron works shop at 8 W. Schaumburg Rd., known as The Nail Keg.

They design, fashion and sell wrought iron pieces ranging from the more commonplace gates, room dividers, archways and railings to more custom-made pieces such as chandeliers, fireplace log holders and flower stands.

In fact, they recently made a wall bracket to hold a dinosaur's foot.

"None of us knew zilch about wrought iron works," said Bob Ceerle, a partner in the enterprise with Dean Erickson and Larry Maus. Ceerle and Maus live in Schaumburg. Erickson is a resident of Hoffman Estates.

Ceerle explained why three men decided on a wrought iron shop when none of them knew a thing about the craft until last September.

THE IDEA blossomed during a trip through a small Wisconsin town called Antigo, about 350 miles away, Ceerle said.

The partners made the acquaintance of Miles Jansen, an oldtimer in the wrought iron business.

"He got us into it," Ceerle said. Once the fundamentals of the craft, including welding, were learned, the trio did a little market research.

"We went to flea markets with our own pieces of wrought iron," Erickson said. "We wanted to know if the pieces would sell."

The pieces did sell.

"People in this area like this kind of work," Erickson said.

The trio opened their shop in January and report business is getting healthier and healthier.

Ceerle said the three are versatile and interchangeable, as far as the actual operation of the shop. They trade off the welding and manual chores, as well as tending to customers.

Erickson said the bread and butter of the business are such things as wrought iron cafe doors, room dividers, archways, window guards, indoor and outdoor railing, chandeliers and flower holders. They also offer combination wood and wrought iron shelves and stands.

The trio aims to please. They do custom work and go into homes on request to visualize and design projects.

THE DINOSAUR'S foot? Well, that is about as unusual a custom project as Erickson can recall.

A Hoffman Estates woman came into the shop sometime back with a plaster of paris model of a fossil, which was determined to be a prehistoric dinosaur's foot.

The woman's son, Erickson said, had been in New York on a highway construction site, when the fossil was dug up.

The young man, recognizing the real McCoy, seized the opportunity. He dashed off to a lumber store, purchased some plaster of paris, and made an exact replica of the fossil.

His mother wanted to hang the fossil replica on her wall and requested the partners fashion a wall bracket to hold the foot. They did.

Erickson, however, doesn't anticipate stockpiling the prehistoric dinosaur fossil foot wall bracket.

Police Test Is June 16

Wheeling's Police and Fire Commission set June 16 as the date for a test for new village policemen.

Kiwanis Grant
For Band Student

A MacArthur Junior High School band student will attend a week-long summer music camp this year on a scholarship provided by the Kiwanis Club of Wheeling Township.

Gerald McGovern, school principal, announced yesterday that Michael Rempala, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rempala of 306 N. Lancaster in Prospect Heights, would attend the Junior High Band Camp sponsored by Illinois Wesleyan University at Lake Bloomington, Ill.

McGovern said Rempala, who is in seventh grade and plays the trumpet, was selected from the approximately 100 band students at the school on the basis of "his commitment to the band program, his activities and his attitude."

At the camp, held July 2-8, students hold rehearsals throughout the week. The camp ends with a concert.

This was the first year the club has awarded the $60 scholarship.

The commission decided to require a grade of 75 to pass the test.

Approximately 40 people are on a list to take the exam for either fire, or police, positions.

The 7 p.m. test will be at the Heritage Park Fieldhouse at 222 S. Wolf Rd.

A new requirement that a man have 20/50 uncorrected vision corrected to 20/20 is included for this test, the commission members said.

The police department currently has two vacancies and two other new jobs are included in the proposed budget being prepared now for village board approval.

In other action at the Tuesday meeting the commission decided that three new firemen will be hired as of June 1.

The names of the men hired to fill the new jobs have not been announced yet.

The commission also voted to pay a $35 bill for the legal services.

Teachers Council Makes Bid For Salary Package

by RICH MONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council pulled a surprise move Tuesday afternoon and gave the Dist. 21 board of education a proposal for the salary and fringe benefit section of the contract.

The proposal came when neither side could reach agreement on the procedural package of the contract. The council still would like three items added and the board will not accept them.

The three items—scope, fact-finding and the strike clause—were, if not settled, supposedly going to send the talks into limbo.

However, Larry Halter, spokesman for the council, said, "I've never seen an impasse called over procedural, so we'll wait and see what happens to the financial section."

IN THE financial section the teachers are asking for many increases. They are:

- An 11 per cent pay raise.
- An increase from 10 to 15 sick days.
- An increase from two to three personal leave days.
- Funeral leave extended to cover non-immediate family.
- Full tuition to be paid by the district for all graduate studies taken.
- Changes in sabbatical leave.

HALTER SAID he feels all the proposals are realistic and he doesn't feel the salary increase of 11 per cent will be in violation of federal guidelines calling for increases no greater than 5.5 per cent.

"We feel that since the teachers usually get a four or five per cent increase yearly through their current contract increment steps, we are only asking for a six per cent increase," said Halter.

"However, after June 30 there will be no contract and no salary schedule, therefore it becomes an 11 per cent increase," said John Barger, spokesman for the board. "I don't have any comment on the proposals at this time, and probably won't have for the next few weeks."

Halter said the council is asking for the raise because they feel Dist. 21 is on the bottom of the ladder when it comes to salaries. "You can pick any 10 districts in the Chicago suburbs and Wheeling will be on the bottom," he added.

HALTER ALSO said the increase is determined by the average teacher's salary. He explained that, in the past, the money bargained for would be in total amount and left up to the council to decide which teacher would get what increases.

Barger told Halter the board must see the scale and how the money is distributed to make sure the money is within the bargained framework.

Halter disagreed at first, but when one of his team members explained it was just a procedure to double check the distribution, he agreed. The board also explained that the law states they must see the salary schedule before it is approved.

THERE WAS no indication at Tuesday's meeting as to what type of counter-proposals would be made at the next meeting by the board, but they indicated they would have some type of answer for the council.

Halter again said, "If the counter-proposal is 'no,' then by my definition you haven't countered." He also said the three items to be discussed in procedures may also be negotiated with the salaries and fringe benefits.

The two teams will not meet again until 4 p.m., May 24.

Memorial Day Parade Set By Veterans Groups

Wheeling's combined veterans organizations will honor their departed comrades with a parade on Memorial Day May 29.

The parade will form at the Amvets 66 grounds at 8:30 a.m. that Monday, and will travel down Milwaukee Avenue, north to Dundee Road, beginning at 9 a.m.

It will continue west down Dundee Road to Wolf Road and south on Wolf Road to Heritage Park where services in honor of the dead soldiers will be conducted.

Participants who have already registered for the parade are: the Chicago Mounies, Color guards from the Amvets Post 88, VFW Post 7178 and American Legion Post 1968; Amvets Auxiliary 66,

VFW 7178 Auxiliary, Junior Amvets 66, Glenview Naval Air Station, Wheeling High School Band and Wheeling High Naval Junior ROTC.

Also participating will be the "Volunteers" of the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Amvets 66 Auxiliary Tots King and Queen Car.

Scouting will also have its representatives. They are Cub Scout Troop 218, Troop 19, Troop 47 and Brownie Troop 368.

The guest speaker at Heritage park will be Lt. Col. George Bruser of the United States Marine Corps at Glenview.

Parade organizers said they are still looking for more parade participants and anyone wishing to join the group should call 537-1655.

Volunteers Off To Historic Galena

The First Illinois Volunteers drum and bugle corps will travel to Galena Saturday to take part in the parade and ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of Galena.

The corps will be marching as representatives of the Wheeling Historical Society. The corps will also be appearing for the historical society at the annual beer and brat festival Aug. 6 in Wheeling.

Last Sunday the Volunteers made their first appearance of the new season in the VFW Loyalty Day parade in Chicago. The members wore their new Civil War-type uniforms.

The Volunteers are also scheduled to appear in the Norwegian spring festival in Staughton, Wis., American Legion and VFW state and national conventions, Memorial Day and Fourth of July weekends and the corps' own Midwest Parade of Champions drum corps competition at Wheeling High School July 2.

Last year's drum corps competition was sold out and area residents this year are urged to get tickets early. All tickets at $3.50 each may be ordered by mail from the corps at P.O. Box 333, Wheeling, Ill.

The corps still has openings for new members. The age range is from 13 to 19 and information may be obtained by writing the corps or by calling Bob Bryson at 537-0728. Visitors are also invited to corps meetings each Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Hernandez Promoted By Army Reserve Unit

Raymond Hernandez of Wheeling was recently promoted to lieutenant colonel in the 305th Psychological Operation Battalion (STRAT) at the U.S. Army Reserve Center at O'Hare Airport.

Hernandez, who has been with the 305th for 20 years, is battalion supply officer. He earned four battle stars in World War II in Europe.

A member of the American Legion, Hernandez works as banquet manager of McCormick Place. He and his wife have two sons, Paul of Lincolnwood and Bruce of Atlanta, Ga.

Six Injured In Car Crash

Six persons were injured Tuesday night, apparently none seriously, in a two-car collision at the intersection of Rand and Palatine roads.

Derek Tennant of Barrington was driving his car northwest along Rand Road when he collided with a second auto being driven by Diane Drinkwater, 1539 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, who was attempting to turn left off of Rand Road into the eastbound lane of Palatine Road, police reported.

Both drivers and four passengers who were riding in the Drinkwater car were taken to Northwest Community Hospital with cuts and head injuries.

Treated were Tennant, Mrs. Drinkwater, Michelle Drinkwater, Roberta, Caterina and Christine Baker, all of 1549 S. Wolf Rd. in Wheeling.

Village, County Formally Agree On Road Repair

A formal agreement with Cook County on the repair and resurfacing of Arlington Heights Road was approved at the special Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting Monday night.

Under the agreement, the village will use Motor Fuel Tax funds for the project, and will let contracts on the base and preliminary work. The county will put the surface coat and final landscaping in with its own men and materials.

The agreement has been approved by the county roads and bridges committee, but awaits approval by the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

The board subsequently approved basic Cook County realignment plans for Lake-Cook Road by a 4-3 vote, with Village Pres. Gary Armstrong breaking the tie. The approval is for the general realignment principle and does not include specific details of the proposed path through the village.

Trustees Ed Fabish, Ed Osmon and Jim Shirley voted against the approval.

Library Begins 'New-Book' Policy

The Wheeling Public Library has a new procedure for making new non-fiction books available to its patrons shortly after publication date.

As soon as books are received from the library's suppliers, they are given temporary identification numbers and are placed on the "new book" shelf. They will remain there until catalog cards are available and the books receive their proper call numbers.

At that time the books will be placed in the regular collection.

Mrs. Elaine Burke, adult services librarian, said this is the only way the library knows how to get the books to the readers "right off the presses."

'Realtors Week' To Be May 21-27

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong has declared May 21-27 Realtors Week at the request of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

The week is being observed across the nation under the sponsorship of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The association has adopted a slogan for the week this year: "Call your realtor, he sells America first every day."

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race tracks.

Dakin Williams, defeated in the March primary by U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, said he would run as an independent in November.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 6 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Park Board OKs $700,000 Record 1972-73 Budget

The Palatine Park District's largest budget ever, totaling slightly more than $700,000, has been adopted by the park board of commissioners.

The 1972-73 budget, approved this week and effective immediately, represents a 12 per cent increase over the previous budget.

The increase was attributed mainly to the growth of the park district's program and maintenance responsibilities and improved facilities at the Palatine Hills Golf Course.

Park District Dir. Fred P. Hall declined to comment Wednesday on how the increased budget would affect the tax rate, which was 39.6 cents per $100 assessed valuation this year.

Hall earlier had indicated that the tax rate may decline slightly, but stressed he is not an actuary and could not be certain what the rate will be.

OFFICIAL figures will not be available until next year when the assessed valuation of property contained within the park district is totaled.

This year's figure was $91.2 million, about $1.2 million more than the park district anticipated.

The 1972-73 budget projects a $500 deficit, but Hall indicated it would be alleviated by the unexpectedly high assessed valuation.

In other action at their meeting Tuesday night, the park board commissioners passed a resolution authorizing Hall to request permission to initiate soil erosion preventative measures in Willow Park.

Permission must be obtained from the Illinois Department of Transportation, Division of the Waterways, because the work involves Salt Creek as it passes through the Willow Wood subdivision in Palatine.

The park district has appropriated $2,000 in the 1972-73 budget to control the erosion in the park. The funds were obtained in the 1965 referendum for park improvement.

Spring is a time to get close to the earth.

Jackie Prince Of Local Voter League

by MARGE FERROLI

Almost 2,000 women at the League of Women Voters' national convention last week voted to become more politically active and involved in making changes, and some of this philosophy may rub off on the Palatine League.

The impetus for such activity would have to come from Jackie Prince, president of the Palatine chapter for one year and now starting off on the second half of her term.

As the sole representative of the Palatine League at the national convention in Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Prince says she was "far from being a key figure" during the sessions but found the entire week a widening experience for herself and for what she brings back to her local chapter.

"The opportunity to meet with other delegates to exchange ideas and get some exposure to other levels of league throughout the country was enough to make the trip very worthwhile," she said.

MRS. PRINCE thinks the ideas and techniques she heard from other delegates may be particularly helpful for the local league in its program for expanded voter services.

"This is one area we plan to concentrate in and emphasize this year," she said. Providing information on candidates and election procedures, particularly to new voters, for the upcoming presidential election, will be a major activity.

Mrs. Prince and the convention delegates during the week came up with three decisions that were "fairly major" for the future direction of the league.

The first, and one with which she says she wholeheartedly agrees, was to give a strong endorsement to the recent decision of the league to become active in following through on their decisions. Rather than end league activity when a report is issued on a particular study, Mrs. Prince and the rest of the convention delegates favored following a course that might put into action some of the recommendations they make in their studies.

In line with this approach is the Palatine League's current plan for the year to continue its investigation of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15. The league recently concluded a two-year study of the schools and is in the process of compiling a consensus report of the members on possible methods to improve the schools.

A second major step taken at the national convention was the passage of a resolution which urged the Nixon administration to immediately withdraw all American troops from Southeast Asia.

Mrs. Prince explained this resolution did not represent an official league position but did reflect the opinion of the majority of delegates.

PERHAPS OF even greater consequence was the third decision made which excludes males from membership in the league.

Although it could be branded chauvinism in reverse, the convention decision to exclude males was made with "very little pressure for the change," Mrs. Prince said.

To make sure the delegates kept their ranks free of male opinion, Mrs. Prince said that feminist journalist Gloria Steinem and a contributing editor to "Ms." magazine spoke before the group on retaining its all-female membership.

Although Mrs. Prince said she found

Miss Steinem "extremely entertaining," she did not agree with much of her philosophy.

"I'm not a great women's liber myself," she said. "I agree with many of the professional equalities being proposed, but I guess I'm more of a traditionalist when it comes to marriage and similar institutions."

Besides expanding its voter services during the year, Mrs. Prince says the Palatine League will also continue its housing study and gather statistical evidence on the need for low and moderate-income housing in the Palatine area.

A LIBRARY study also being conducted will be continued and is particularly timely in view of the library's current search for a new building site.

It has only taken Mrs. Prince, a Palatine resident for three years, just two years to get deeply involved with the local organization.

Although, she admits she first became involved in it to provide her with an outlet for her interests aside from her home and family, she now sees the league as a way to constructively create some solutions to community problems.

Compromise Hicks Road Design To Go To State

A letter will be sent to the Illinois State Division of Highways from the Palatine Village Board suggesting that design drawings for the state's improvement project for Hicks Road include the closing off of Pebble Creek Drive but that access to Providence Road be retained.

The recommendation is a compromise suggestion between residents of Pebble Creek and Willow Wood subdivisions over potentially increasing traffic in their areas.

Residents in Pebble Creek had presented the board with a petition in February asking that both Pebble Creek and Providence Roads be closed off to Hicks Road traffic primarily to prevent additional traffic from Sellsberg's Old Madrid apartments from traveling through their subdivision. The petition was signed by over 90 per cent of the Pebble Creek residents.

The Willow Wood Homeowners Association objected to the proposal to close the streets, claiming such action would only bring more traffic through their subdivision for exit onto Baldwin Road. CLAYTON BROWN, chairman of the village board's planning and public works committee, said his committee recommended the closing of Pebble Creek Drive because it lies directly opposite from a main exit from Old Madrid.

"If Pebble Creek stayed open, there would be a great possibility that traffic would just shoot across Hicks into the subdivision," Brown said. The state has a policy not to put a median at an intersection like Pebble Creek and Hicks and this would also increase traffic, he said.

By closing only Pebble Creek Drive, Brown said the traffic that would go through Willow Wood to exit on Baldwin would be minimal.

"Pebble Creek Drive is a lone street with nothing tying into it," he said. "Only a little over 30 homes are on the street and probably at least half of them already use Willow Wood Drive to get out of the subdivision."

HE SAID the village will negotiate with the Sellsberg Corp. to have them offset Providence Road leading from their apartments so that it does not tie directly into the Providence Road through Pebble Creek.

A meeting between village trustees and members of the highway department last week showed that schematic drawings already prepared by the state have a provision to close off Pebble Creek Drive but keep Providence open.

In their petition to the board, the Pebble Creek residents had requested that both streets terminate into cul-de-sacs east of Hicks with barriers that could be mounted by emergency vehicles.

Old Cop Vs. New Cop: How Did Each Learn His Trade?

by KEN KOZAK

Old cop vs. new cop: How did each one learn his trade?

The image of the old cop is one of a man who, like as not, learned his job as it threw itself at him in its various and unpredictable forms.

He learned how to handle drunks when they stumbled into his arms. He learned how to disarm a man the first time someone flashed a knife at him. His was in the truest sense of the phrase, "on-the-job" training, learn as you go and risk paying for your mistakes when you're slow to learn.

The new cop? Before he sees his first drunk he's probably seen a training film describing how to deal with drunks. He may never face a man with a knife, but he's probably participated in a classroom demonstration called "How to Disarm an Attacker with Knife."

THIS IS THE new way. There is no substitute for experience, but experience has to be backed up, and in some cases preceded, by supplemental training programs — a policeman's book learning.

In Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Arlington Heights, greater emphasis is placed on what police departments call "in-service" training more than ever before.

This is the training a police officer receives after he is a sworn official, while he is on the job. It is intermittent, sometimes sporadic, sometimes appearing haphazard.

In-service training may be coordinated within an officer's police department — may be strictly intradepartmental — but with increasing frequency local police departments are making use of in-service training seminars, workshops and classes organized and coordinated by outside law enforcement agencies.

In Rolling Meadows, for example, an off duty patrolman may spend part of his Wednesday afternoons watching and then discussing movies with titles like "The Prowler," or "Homicide Investigation," or "Traffic Officer in Court."

THESE ARE POLICE training films provided by the Police Academy of the Chicago Police Department. The films are, in some cases, dated, but, says Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case, they are still a valuable training aid.

A Rolling Meadows patrolman is also tested quarterly, Case said, on his knowledge of various periodical law enforcement bulletins issued to the men. Failure on one of these written and oral reviews can mean a "poor" rating in an officer's service file.

To supplement these intradepartmental reviews of procedure, a Rolling Meadows patrolman may find himself spending a couple of days to several weeks in an outside training program.

Last week, one patrolman spent several days at a Juvenile School conducted by the Illinois Youth Bureau. Another was studying in a four-week traffic school at the Northwestern University Traffic Institute. A third was learning pursuit driving at the Cook County Driving School. Two others were participating in a crime laboratory school in Deerfield.

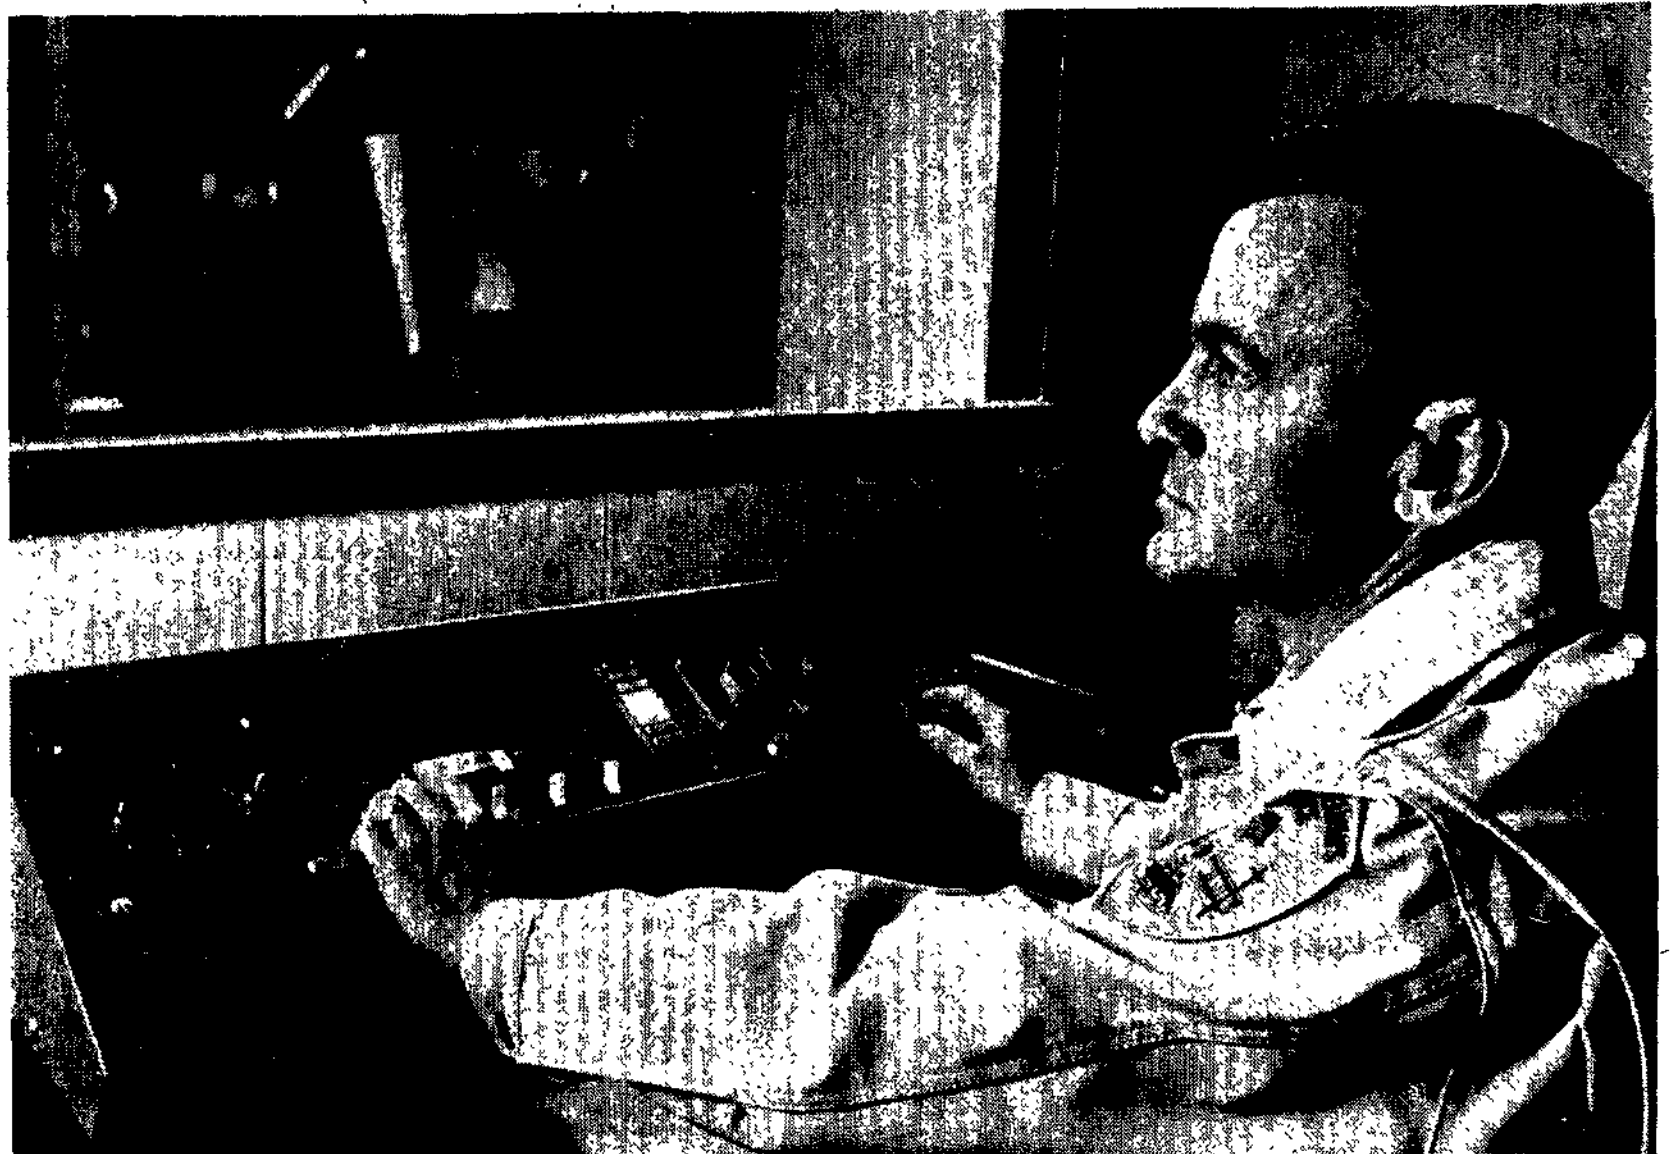

AND ROLLING MEADOWS regularly sends officers to traveling seminars which the state's attorney's office offers for suburban police departments.

"There are more opportunities (for a policeman) to go to school now than ever before," Case said, but he did stress that he likes some control over where his men are getting their schooling.

In a criticism of "academic-type" police courses, such as are offered in the law enforcement program at Harper College, and which deal heavily in psychology, sociology and criminology — academic courses rather than training courses — Case said, "I'd rather they (the student-policemen) take police courses, instructed by police personnel that are basically police oriented."

Case's criticism of training programs that can't be controlled locally extends to the Chicago Police Academy, to which he occasionally sends officers for two-week courses and which he calls "one of the finest."

"WE LIKE TO know the curriculum,

ANDY HERBERT, pistol range master of the Rolling Meadows Police Department, operates control panel during recent statewide pistol shoot held at latest training aid incorporated in the education of a Rolling Meadows patrolman.

to be able to go over it well in advance. We have no control over anybody else's."

The Palatine Police Department invested more than 1,400 hours in in-service training programs in the first two months of this year, according to Palatine Police Chief Robert Centner.

Those 1,400 hours covered topics like patrol procedures, liquor laws, search and seizure, departmental rules and regulations, protecting an accident scene and many others.

As in Rolling Meadows, the village will reimburse a policeman for tuition expenses if he successfully completes law enforcement courses at Harper College. Unlike Rolling Meadows there is no undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the Harper Program.

"We've had officers working for an associate's degree in law enforcement over extended periods of time. There are three men doing it now," Centner said. Unlike intradepartmental courses, this is something that is done exclusively on a patrolman's own time. But efforts are made to mesh work schedules with classroom schedules whenever possible.

PALATINE AND Arlington Heights share a problem that restricts the number of men who can be sent to outside training programs or institutes. That problem is one of taking advantage of training courses while not sacrificing the effectiveness of the department by cutting manpower.

In Arlington Heights, the police department no longer sends men to programs like the Northwestern University Traffic Institute because of manpower problems, according to Capt. Jack Aldrich.

But Arlington Heights has its own in-service training program that, Aldrich said, often eliminates the need for outside schools.

Every sworn police officer in Arlington Heights — from chief to patrolman — has to take a one week in-service training course annually, and pass an examination on completion of the course. Like in Rolling Meadows, bad marks on those tests are rewritten as bad marks in the personnel files.

ALDRICH CONCEDED that specialized training is not really within the province of the local departments, and in cases where specialty training is required or advantageous, "we would rather send the men somewhere else." One of those "somewhere else" is the Chicago Police Academy, which offers advanced courses in many police areas, available, when there are openings, to suburban police forces.

But, Aldrich said, men aren't sent to these programs just to send them: "If I can send a man to become an evidence technician, I have to know if I really need that technician."

Arlington Heights policemen are encouraged to attend Harper College, both for law enforcement courses and for "as many other courses as possible," Aldrich said.

The village won't pay the tuition, but Aldrich said there are enough opportunities for an officer to get federal money to study under the Law Enforcement Education Plan.

Aldrich heads the Northwest Police Academy, which is the basic training unit for almost every police department in this area. There is talk, he said, of expanding the academy's function to add in-service type training to the basic eight-week recruit training program now offered.

NOW, AFTER eight weeks of basic training, a new patrolman returns to his department to make his successes and failures and learn his job only under the observance of his own superiors.

The plan being considered, which Aldrich says the chiefs in the area are well-disposed toward, would give a patrolman six weeks of basic training, put him in the field under a trained supervisor for several weeks, and then bring him back to the classroom to learn what he has learned to that point.

This, Aldrich said, would open the way for more "experiential training," which he feels "is the essence of learning this job."

A SUBURBAN POLICEMAN may in anger or need, but hours are still never be called upon to fire his gun put in on the practice range.

A special exhibit prepared by local youngsters will be included in the display. Other features will be a body painter and a caricaturist. Refreshments will be available.

Chairman of the arts and crafts fair is Mrs. William H. Grace, 913 S. Mallard Dr. Assisting are Mrs. Terry Tobin, 1020 Gull Ct.; Mrs. John Anderson, 934 S. Harvard Dr.; and Mrs. Donald Kelley, 1046 Yale Ct.

Hunting Ridge residents wishing to exhibit works in the fair are asked to contact Mrs. Grace.

Sewer Connection Fee For Buildings Hiked

A revision to the Palatine building code that would increase the cost for a sewer connection for properties other than single-family homes from $100 to $150 was approved this week by the Palatine Village Board.

The former $100 fee had been set many years ago and had become insufficient to cover the engineering costs paid by the village for review of sewer connection plans.

A second adjustment to the Building Code was approved that made a previous special ordinance for building fees for sidewalks part of the actual code. The adjustment established a $3.50 per lineal foot bond required of all building permit applications for construction of sidewalks.

U.S. Chamber Grants Palatine Membership

The Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry recently received news that it has been accepted as a member of the national organization, the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S.A.

David Shoemaker, executive vice president of the local chamber, said the Palatine chamber met all requirements of the national group regarding organizational bylaws, programs and number of members.

Dale Elmshaeuser, 245 S. Benton St., will direct the band in the program, which includes "Venetian Suite," a brass ensemble in three movements which he composed.

In June, Elmshaeuser, his wife, and their three children will leave for Hong Kong, where he will be chairman of the music department and director of bands at the International School.

RONALD WUNDER of Denver, Colo., will succeed Elmshaeuser as director of the Immanuel Lutheran band and as chairman of the school's music department.

The spring concert, scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, Lincoln Street and Plum Grove Road, will be presented by the band and at least 30 alumni of the band.

'Fiddler On Roof' Opens This Evening

Students at Palatine High School will present their spring musical "Fiddler on the Roof," today, Friday and Saturday.

The play, starring Jim Hartman as Teyve, will be held at 8 p.m. at the school for all three performances. Other members of the cast are Stephanie Moebius, Bill Dyszel, Kathy Lubinski and Carol Huber. A total of 41 students will appear in the cast in addition to dancers, and the school chorus and orchestra.

Director of the play is Larry Peterson.

The band's selections include Eric Osterling's "Thundercross"; the overture to Mozart's opera, "The Impresario"; Morton Gould's "Revolutionary Prelude"; two popular numbers, "For All We Know" and "Down on the Corner"; and R. B. Hall's "Independencia."

Graduating members of the band will play "Rockhound."

Alumni will play Handel's "Messiah Overture"; Ray Luke's "Prelude and March"; and Harold Walters' "March-A-Go-Go."

Admission to the concert will be free, with donations accepted.

Four From Area In Science Fair

Four students from Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15 will be competing in the state science fair at the University of Illinois this weekend.

Paul and Bob Gauger of Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows will be displaying their project entitled "Weather by Satellite." Sue McWilliams of Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows will display "Conditioning of Mice." John Gieseke of Plum Grove School will display a project entitled "Fresh to Salt," and Mark Larsen of Stuart Paddock School in Palatine will display "Cold Front Squall Lines."

The students' projects, in order to qualify for the state contest, had to take a first place at the recent regional science fair held at Wheeling High School.

The state contest is sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Suit Against Wheel Tax Continued To June 7

As expected, the suit challenging the constitutionality of the Cook County "wheel tax" was continued. The new hearing date is June 7.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

Fremd Cheerleaders To Sponsor Car Wash

Cheerleaders from Fremd High School in Palatine will sponsor a car wash Saturday to raise funds for a summer cheerleading clinic.

The wash will be available at $1 a car from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Union 76 station, Palatine and Quentin roads.

The 21 cheerleaders at the school will wash the cars to obtain money to attend a clinic June 21 to 25 at Bradley University in Peoria.

Tickets for the car wash are being sold at Fremd High School this week and will be available at the service station on Saturday.

Eye Expansion Of Girls' Sports

The board of education of High School Dist. 211 will consider expansion of the girls' interscholastic athletic program at its meeting today.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 1750 Roselle Rd., Palatine.

The Mid-Suburban League, which organizes athletic competitions for area high schools, has been developing a program of girls' athletics for the coming year. The expanded program was made possible by action of the Illinois High School Association last fall increasing the number of sports girls may take part in.

High School Dist. 214 approved the expanded athletic program last month.

In other action, the board will hold a discipline hearing in an expulsion case and will hear a progress report on the construction of Hoffman Estates High School.

Chief Case Named Policeman Of The Year

Lewis R. Case, chief of police for Rolling Meadows, has won the Jaycees' first annual policeman-of-the-year award.

The announcement was made Tuesday night at a city council meeting, and a plaque commemorating the honor was presented to Case by Pat Mehallie of the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

In accepting the award, which he called a complete surprise, Case said:

"This is one of the greatest things that ever happened to me. Thanks to everyone who voted for me and to those who didn't, I'm sure you'll continue to do a good job in the future."

This last remark refers to the fact that the selection of the policeman-of-the-year was made by secret ballot among the members of the police department.

After the award presentation, Mayor Roland Meyer said:

"I certainly approve wholeheartedly of the choice that was made by the officers. The chief has come under fire recently but has continually proven himself."

Meyer said later his remark referred to the controversy several months ago when several patrolmen charged that Case tried to make them quit their union, the Combined Counties Police Association, by intimidating them. Those charges were not substantiated.

CASE, 57, WAS hired two years ago to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Cecil "Cy" Campbell, who had been police chief 14 years.

Case spent 22 years in the Oak Park Police Department, working his way up to the rank of captain and the position of chief of detectives.

He left the Oak Park force in 1966, and organized the Ford City Police Department, a security force for the Ford City commercial and industrial complex on the South Side of Chicago.

In 1969, Case took a job as chief security officer at the Oak Park-River Forest Wieboldt Stores, and stayed there until he was hired in February, 1970, to head up the Rolling Meadows Police Department.

He is a graduate of several police schools, including the FBI National Academy in Washington, D.C., and is a member of many fraternal and professional police organizations.

After the presentation Tuesday, both Case and Meyer said the selection was a "vote of confidence" for the department and for Case.

Case also said the plaque is particularly important because "it's the only one I have left." Case and his wife were burned out of their Three Fountains apartment in May, 1970, and all their possessions were destroyed.

Area Paper Drive At Community Church

The youth fellowships of Rolling Meadows Community Church will conduct a paper drive Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Papers can be brought to the church parking lot, Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive, on Saturday. Arrangements can be made to have the papers picked up at home by calling the church, 255-5510, any morning.

'Bridge' To Sponsor Friday Night Dance

A benefit dance will be sponsored Friday night by The Bridge, Palatine Township's youth services bureau.

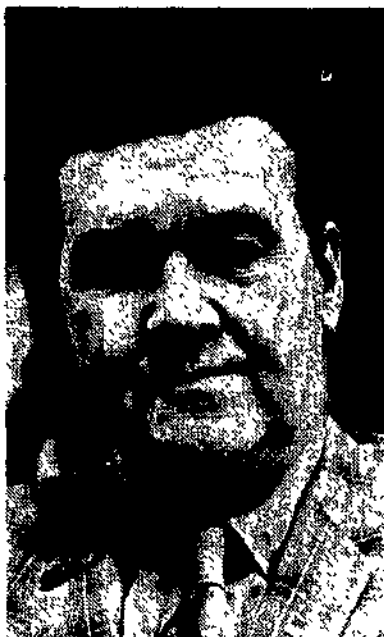

The dance is scheduled for 7 p.m. to midnight at The Green Barrel (Arlington Heights Teen Center), Euclid and Ridge avenues. It is open to teens from throughout the Northwest suburban area.

Music will be provided by The Liquid Crome Blues Band, The Tri-Town Ragtime Band and Eruption. Admission is $1.50 per person.

Proceeds will go toward setting up a drop-in center in the Palatine Township area.

Lew Case: He Keeps Things In Place

by KEN KOZAK

There is that first time you walk into Lew Case's first floor office at city hall.

Through a locked door, past a cordial secretary, into the inner office, where police trappings — badges, billy club, an autographed photo of J. Edgar Hoover, an American flag — share prominent places with pictures of loved ones.

The gun is in a drawer, you learn later. Close, but not obvious.

As a stranger, it's difficult to feel that you are not being "sized up" by the cop in Lew Case while he shakes your hand. Like as not the first thing he says to you is, "If you have to smoke, be sure you turn the fan on."

Lew Case does not smoke, and as you turn to look for the silvered wall fan or for an ashtray to dump the offending cigarette, you realize that you have been casually, but firmly, put in place.

Lewis R. Case, chief of police in the city of Rolling Meadows, likes to keep things in their places.

DEALING WITH him as an outsider on a regular basis, you learn what those places are and how hard they can be to get to.

On a casual day there can be tales of the old days in Oak Park, when Case was chief of "dicks," as he calls the detective division. Or a long discussion of the merits of one kind of police car over another. Or an invitation to sit in on a departmental in-service training session.

On a tight day, when there is something to be learned from Case, the easy informality is replaced by an attitude that can be as difficult to penetrate as a flak vest. It is the cop syndrome: What is good for the department and good for the city is good for you to know; what is bad for the department or bad for the city is not so good for you to know. You have to work for it, brother.

Good and bad are relative. But in this instance the standard of relativity is not open to discussion. It is in its place.

CASE IS THE choice of the Rolling Meadows Jaycees for policeman of the year. He was picked by secret ballot, and the votes were cast by the members of the Rolling Meadows police department.

He has worked hard to develop the city's Youth Referral Committee into an organization that well serves parents and young people in the city. He is responsible for many of the advancements made in the department in the area of modern equipment and techniques.

Yet there are some policemen who contend that he is insensitive to the men who work for him. The men who make those accusations are what Mayor Roland Meyer would call "the bad apples in the barrel."

Case merely says, "They are entitled to their own opinions. I don't care what they think as long as they do their jobs well."

He says the men's selection of him as policeman of the year is a vote of confidence for his leadership, which had to suffer at least by suggestion when several policemen said in December that Case used intimidating tactics to get them out of their police union.

At that time he said, "Those policemen are being misled. But they are entitled to their opinions. The important thing is that they do the job."

Many would agree that that, after all, is a policeman's place.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race tracks.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 6 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Old Cop Vs. New Cop: How Did Each Learn His Trade?

by KEN KOZAK
Old cop vs. new cop: How did each one learn his trade?

The image of the old cop is one of a man who, like as not, learned his job as it threw itself at him in its various and unpredictable forms.

He learned how to handle drunks when they stumbled into his arms. He learned how to disarm a man the first time someone flashed a knife at him. His was in the truest sense of the phrase, "on-the-job" training, learn as you go and risk paying for your mistakes when you're slow to learn.

The new cop? Before he sees his first drunk he's probably seen a training film describing how to deal with drunks. He may never face a man with a knife, but he's probably participated in a classroom demonstration called "How to Disarm an Attacker with Knife."

THIS IS THE new way. There is no substitute for experience, but experience has to be backed up, and in some cases preceded, by supplemental training programs — a policeman's book learning.

In Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Arlington Heights, greater emphasis is placed on what police departments call "in-service" training more than ever before.

This is the training a police officer receives after he is a sworn official, while he is on the job. It is intermittent, sometimes sporadic, sometimes appearing haphazard.

In-service training may be coordinated within an officer's police department — may be strictly intradepartmental — but with increasing frequency local police departments are making use of in-service training seminars, workshops and classes organized and coordinated by outside law enforcement agencies.

In Rolling Meadows, for example, an off duty patrolman may spend part of his Wednesday afternoons watching and then discussing movies with titles like "The Prowler," or "Homicide Investigation," or "Traffic Officer in Court."

THESE ARE POLICE training films provided by the Police Academy of the Chicago Police Department. The films are, in some cases, dated, but, says Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case, they are still a valuable training aid.

A Rolling Meadows patrolman is also tested quarterly, Case said, on his knowledge of various periodical law enforcement bulletins issued to the men. Failure on one of these written and oral reviews can mean a "poor" rating in an officer's service file.

To supplement these intradepartmental reviews of procedure, a Rolling Meadows patrolman may find himself spending a couple of days to several weeks in an outside training program.

Last week, one patrolman spent several days at a Juvenile School conducted by the Illinois Youth Bureau. Another was studying in a four-week traffic school at the Northwestern University Traffic Institute. A third was learning pursuit driving at the Cook County Driving School. Two others were participating in a crime laboratory school in Deerfield.

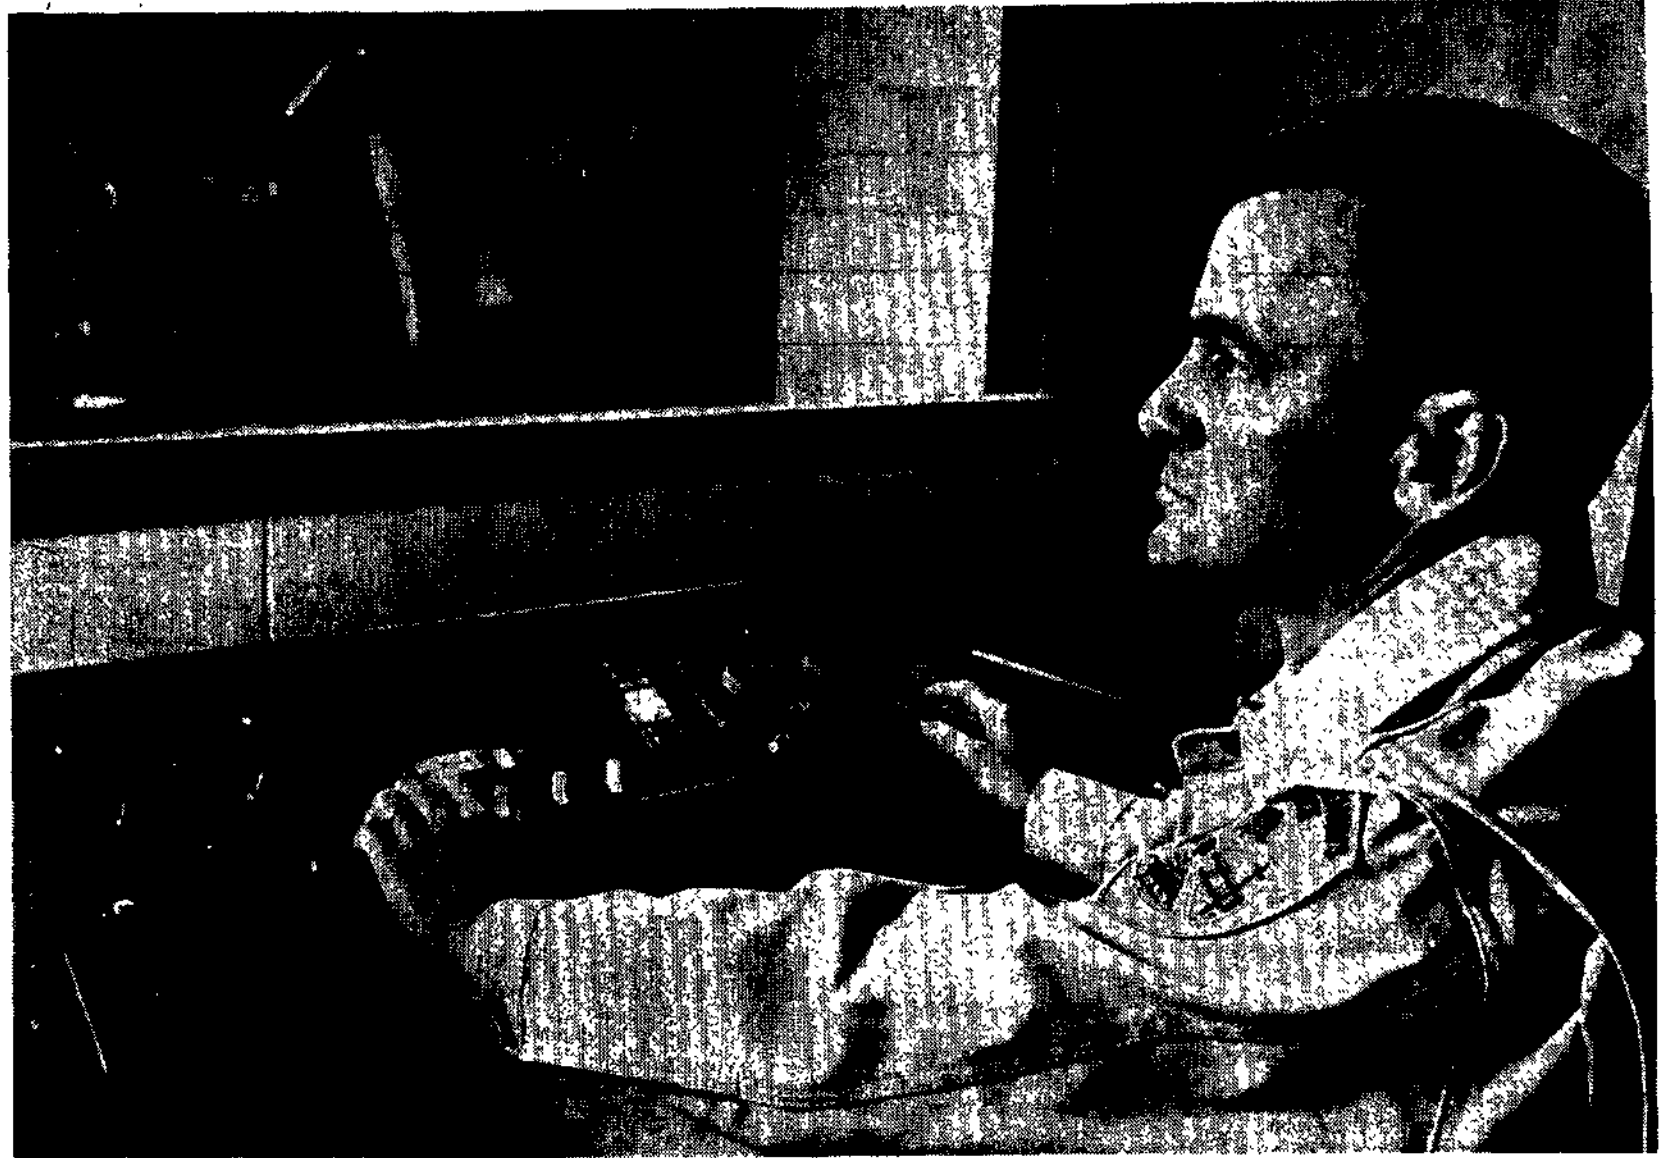

AND ROLLING MEADOWS regularly sends officers to traveling seminars which the state's attorney's office offers for suburban police departments.

"There are more opportunities (for a policeman) to go to school now than ever before," Case said, but he did stress that he likes some control over where his men are getting their schooling.

In a criticism of "academic-type" police courses, such as are offered in the law enforcement program at Harper College, and which deal heavily in psychology, sociology and criminology — academic courses rather than training courses — Case said, "I'd rather they (the student-policemen) take police courses, instructed by police personnel that are basically police oriented."

Case's criticism of training programs that can't be controlled locally extends to the Chicago Police Academy, to which he occasionally sends officers for two-week courses and which he calls "one of the finest."

"WE LIKE TO know the curriculum,

ANDY HERBERT, pistol range master of the Rolling Meadows Police Department, operates control panel during recent statewide pistol shoot held at latest training aid incorporated in the education of a Rolling Meadows patrolman.

to be able to go over it well in advance. We have no control over anybody else's."

The Palatine Police Department invested more than 1,400 hours in in-service training programs in the first two months of this year, according to Palatine Police Chief Robert Centner.

Those 1,400 hours covered topics like patrol procedures, liquor laws, search and seizure, departmental rules and regulations, protecting an accident scene and many others.

As in Rolling Meadows, the village will reimburse a policeman for tuition expenses if he successfully completes law enforcement courses at Harper College. Unlike Rolling Meadows there is no undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the Harper Program.

"We've had officers working for an associate's degree in law enforcement over extended periods of time. There are three men doing it now," Centner said. Unlike intradepartmental courses, this is something that is done exclusively on a patrolman's own time. But efforts are made to mesh work schedules with classroom schedules whenever possible.

PALATINE AND Arlington Heights share a problem that restricts the number of men who can be sent to outside training programs or institutes. That problem is one of taking advantage of training courses while not sacrificing the effectiveness of the department by cutting manpower.

In Arlington Heights, the police department no longer sends men to programs like the Northwestern University Traffic Institute because of manpower problems, according to Capt. Jack Aldrich.

But Arlington Heights has its own in-service training program that, Aldrich said, often eliminates the need for outside schools.

Every sworn police officer in Arlington Heights — from chief to patrolman — has to take a one week in-service training course annually, and pass an examination on completion of the course. Like in Rolling Meadows, bad marks on those tests are rewritten as bad marks in the personnel files.

ALDRICH CONCEDED that specialized training is not really within the province of the local departments, and in cases where specialty training is required or advantageous, "we would rather send the men somewhere else." One of those "somewhere else" is the Chicago Police Academy, which offers advanced courses in many police areas, available, when there are openings, to suburban police forces.

But, Aldrich said, men aren't sent to these programs just to send them: "If I can send a man to become an evidence technician, I have to know if I really need that technician."

Arlington Heights policemen are encouraged to attend Harper College, both for law enforcement courses and for "as many other courses as possible," Aldrich said.

The village won't pay the tuition, but Aldrich said there are enough opportunities for an officer to get federal money to study under the Law Enforcement Education Plan.

Aldrich heads the Northwest Police Academy, which is the basic training unit for almost every police department in this area. There is talk, he said, of expanding the academy's function to add in-service type training to the basic eight-week recruit training program now offered.

NOW, AFTER eight weeks of basic training, a new patrolman returns to his department to make his successes and failures and learn his job only under the observance of his own superiors.

The plan being considered, which Aldrich says the chiefs in the area are well-disposed toward, would give a patrolman six weeks of basic training, put him in the field under a trained supervisor for several weeks, and then bring him back to the classroom to learn what he has learned to that point.

A SUBURBAN POLICEMAN may be called upon to fire his gun in anger or need, but hours are still put in on the practice range.

Hunting Ridge Arts, Crafts Fair June 4

Plans are being made for the first annual Hunting Ridge arts and crafts fair June 4.

Participants must live in the Palatine subdivision, but the fair will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Hunting Ridge School, 1105 W. Illinois St.

Sewer Connection Fee For Buildings Hiked

A revision to the Palatine building code that would increase the cost for a sewer connection for properties other than single-family homes from $100 to $150 was approved this week by the Palatine Village Board.

The former $100 fee had been set many years ago and had become insufficient to cover the engineering costs paid by the village for review of sewer connection plans.

A second adjustment to the Building Code was approved that made a previous special ordinance for building fees for sidewalks part of the actual code. The adjustment established a $3.50 per lineal foot bond required of all building permit applications for construction of sidewalks.

A special exhibit prepared by local youngsters will be included in the display. Other features will be a body painter and a caricaturist. Refreshments will be available.

Chairman of the arts and crafts fair is Mrs. William H. Grace, 913 S. Mallard Dr. Assisting are Mrs. Terry Tobin, 1020 Gull Ct.; Mrs. John Anderson, 934 S. Harvard Dr.; and Mrs. Donald Kelley, 1045 Yale Ct.

Hunting Ridge residents wishing to exhibit works in the fair are asked to contact Mrs. Grace.

IEA: District Teacher Cuts Cause Crowding

The Illinois Education Association (IEA) has charged the teacher cuts in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 next year will lead to increases in class size and poor quality education.

Dist. 57 and more than a dozen other suburban school districts were singled out by the IEA this week for criticism. All the school districts cited are cutting back on teachers because of budget deficits.

Dist. 57 Board Pres. Robert Novy disputed the charges saying "quality education relates more directly to the teacher's capability than the number of students."

He said the teacher reductions will make the average class size in Dist. 57 about 28 students. This year's average is 25 students in each classroom. "We only have so much money and this is the only available thing to do," Novy commented.

THE IEA also charged the school districts are making cuts in teacher personnel but not administrators. An IEA survey stated districts are increasing administrative budgets while teachers' budgets are being slashed.

Novy disputed the survey as it applies to Dist. 57. He said only 13 of 140 teachers were eliminated, while one of the four administrative jobs has been cut.

The IEA said removing teachers is not the answer to balancing the budget. They suggested reducing non-teaching items. The Dist. 57 School Board voted in April to dismiss the 13 teachers. At the same time the board accepted five resignations, thus reducing next year's teaching staff by a total of 16½ positions (full and part-time). The board approved the cuts unanimously.

The staff reductions followed the defeat of a March 25 referendum proposal to raise property taxes for education by 39 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Voters turned out in record-breaking numbers to vote down the proposal by a 3-1 margin.

Prior to the referendum, school board members had indicated they would cut not 16, but 22 positions. The board decided to make fewer cuts after holding a public hearing on their staffing plans for next fall.

Park Budget Up; Taxes Probably To Stay Same

Even though the proposed $1.2 million Mount Prospect Park District budget for 1972-73 represents a slight increase over last year, residents' taxes will probably remain stable.

Tom Cooper, park director, made the announcement yesterday saying that "higher assessed valuation will pay for the (budget) increases."

Several budget categories have been hiked including, the recreation fund, bond and interest and retirement for employees. The corporate fund shows a slight decrease.

The recreation tax levy will be raised to the maximum, Cooper said, to pay for the increase in the recreation budget. The other levies will be lower, he said.

He called the new budget "a tightening all the way around" citing staff cuts and a 5 per cent wage jump from last year.

The proposed budget shows the director to be paid a salary of $18,500 and the park district golf course greenskeeper $14,350.

Also included in the proposed budget is $25,000 for the purchase of Dist. 57 school property. The land is about eight acres of the Gregory School site in Mount Prospect.

The total cost is $250,000 and although the contract is not yet final, the $25,000 budgeted is the first payment in a 10-year schedule.

Park district commissioners were expected to consider the budget this week, but postponed it for at least two weeks.

A TRANQUILIZER DART was used to temporarily immobilize a stray deer that rambled through Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights yesterday, pursued by police from both villages. Animal Officer Eugene Korn of the Arlington Heights Police Department finally subdued the animal near the Brass Rail Restaurant on South Arlington Heights Road. The deer was transported to the Elk Grove Forest Preserve, from which he originally strayed.

Village To Weigh '70' Ruling Appeal

An appeal by Mount Prospect to the Special Assessment '70 court ruling, although considered unlikely, will be discussed by the village board Tuesday.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the village's attorney in the case, Kenneth O. Stonessiffer, will address the board in an executive session before the board's regular meeting. Teichert said a report of the trial will be given and the feasibility and probable success of an appeal will be examined.

Monday's jury verdict reduced the assessments for the storm sewer project of 112 objectors. The verdict, plus a ruling by Circuit Court Judge Helen F. McGillicuddy, lowered the total amount assessed by almost $68,000. The jury had decided the property owners would receive less in benefits than they were being assessed.

Teichert indicated Tuesday the $634,000 project, designed to alleviate flooding in the Hatlen Heights area, may have to be dropped, leaving the village to come up with a less expensive plan.

"There are limits," he said in how much the rest of the village can pay for an improvement to serve one section.

"IF A DETERMINATION has been made that the people in that area don't benefit, it is hard to see how the rest of the community will benefit by it."

He further said if the assessments were too high for the third who objected, it would be too high also for the other two-thirds who did not object. He questioned why they should have to pay more just because they did not object. "The benefits should be the same," he said. "So when you mention $68,000 (what the jury cut), what I'm considering is $180,000 or $200,000 that the village will have to make up," Teichert said.

As for the project itself, Teichert said the board will take that up in June.

Senior Citizen Singalong Monday

A singalong will highlight the annual potluck supper meeting Monday of the Mount Prospect Senior Citizens, a group sponsored by the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club.

The meeting will start at 6:30 p.m. Those attending have been asked to either bring their own dish or pay $1.50 to help defray the cost of the meal.

For more information on the senior citizens group call Mrs. Richard Patchin at 392-0837.

JON DANIEL and Darrell Heasley rehearse for the Hersey High School presentation of "The Andersonville Trial." The play, which portrays the trial of the commander of a Confederate prison after the civil war, will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race-tracks.

Dakin Williams, defeated in the March primary by U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, said he would run as an independent in November.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 6 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

A PASSING MOTORIST on north Arlington Heights Road stopped to help Richard Hess of Elk Grove Village extricate himself from his overturned pickup truck. The mishap occurred Tuesday evening at Arlington Heights Road near College Drive.

Attempted Murder Case Continued For Defense

The defense was granted a continuance Tuesday in the case of Richard Salinas of Palatine Township, who is accused of attempting to kill a man he found with his wife.

Judge George Zimmerman of Cook County Circuit Court in Niles granted the continuance to June 6 on the attempted murder and aggravated assault charges. Salinas, 26, is currently free on $2,500 bond.

He is accused of firing 20 shotgun pellets into the back of Jose Lopez, 24, of Chicago, who was with Salinas' wife, Paulina, 24, at the Deer Grove Forest Preserve Friday morning.

Lopez was treated for gunshot wounds at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, and was released yesterday.

COOK COUNTY Sheriff's Police investigator Lawrence Troka said he plans to contact Lopez upon his release from the hospital to determine if he wishes to file a complaint against Salinas.

Troka said Lopez declined to lodge a formal complaint Friday, but was under sedation at the time.

Charges have been filed by sheriff's police.

Two persons injured in an accident when their car collided with the hospital-bound vehicle carrying the injured Lopez were reported in good condition Monday.

Mrs. Anthony Abel, 1242 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, was treated for head injuries.

Her husband, who also was treated for head injuries, is to remain in the hospital for further observation.

Grant New Continuance

Yet another continuance was granted yesterday in the suit filed by a Prospect Heights group against Wheeling for its annexation of 40 acres of undeveloped Prospect Heights land.

Don Kreger, the attorney handling the suit for a group calling itself the Wheeling Road Zoning Committee, said yesterday "the case was continued over my rather strenuous objections." It was continued because the attorney for the landowner said he needed more time to work on the case.

Prospectus

Let's Not Lose Skating Facility

Metro Sports Inc. would like to build a twin ice skating rink facility at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

However, the Mount Prospect Board of Appeals last month voted to recommend that a variance for the building not be granted. Without the variance, the building cannot be constructed.

It would be a shame if Mount Prospect were to lose such a desirable addition to the community. The Mount Prospect Village Board should overrule the Board of Appeals and approve the variance when it takes up the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

Hockey, as a participation sport, is an ever-growing phenomenon in this country — especially in areas that have professional hockey teams. The Chicago area is no exception.

Figure skating also is a popular sport. Training in both sports will be available through Metro Sports at their rinks.

BOARD OF APPEALS members who voted against the proposal (and there were five of them as opposed to two in favor) had three basic reservations about the project.

First they were concerned about the single-purpose usage of the building. The question here is if the project should fail, what would the building be used for. In his testimony at the hearing, Harold J. Carlson, vice president and manager of the Randhurst Corp., said that Metro Sports' lease on the land would restrict usage of the property to an ice skating facility.

This means that fears of anything else "sneaking" into the village are unfounded.

Second, appeals board members questioned the traffic that would be generated.

Again, the planners of the project already had given the answer. The vehicle entrance to the building will be from the Randhurst parking lot and the traffic pattern will be relatively light as many car pools will probably develop among rink users.

Heavier traffic, such as could be generated by 2,000 spectators, would only result on two Saturday or Sunday nights a month — times when the shopping center itself would be closed.

Third, there was a fear among members that the facility would become a place where teen-agers could hang out, because it would be open 24 hours a day. They could not see the need for such long hours of operation.

As expected, the suit challenging the constitutionality of the Cook County "wheel tax" was continued. The new hearing date is June 7.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

Racial Incident Followup

Suburban Housing Group Asks Law

The Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition has asked Hanover Park officials to establish a fair housing ordinance after a racial incident in April in Hanover Park.

Rudy Hazucha, president of the group and the Arlington Heights Human Relations Council, asked Mayor Richard Baker and the village trustees to state their "belief in justice" in a letter and position statement.

Hazucha said a fair housing ordinance would manifest the good will of the local government toward prospective minority citizens and also serve as a clear warning to those who want to make Hanover Park exclusively white.

Baker called the racial incident "an isolated situation." A cross was burned on the front lawn of a Glenbrook Country subdivision home in protest of the sale of the house to a white couple with an 11-month-old adopted black girl.

"We have blacks living here, and our village is far from all white, with representation from many races part of the total community," said Baker.

Baker added that biracial children also are living in the community. The mayor said the incident was condemned, not condoned, by officials, and did point out the necessity for research into ordinances to protect all residents from harassment.

BAKER SAID he has reactivated the village human relations committee and has sent letters to all school districts serving Hanover Park, asking them to include in their curriculums courses of study to prepare children for life in a multi-racial society.

Hanover Park does not have an open housing ordinance, said Baker, but the village attorney has been asked to research existing ordinances.

Hazucha said the incident in Hanover Park is the present concern, but that the problem is not peculiar to that village alone.

He urged Hanover Park to become a leadership community in this time of national and local crisis.

The group will hold a public meeting and program at 8 p.m. Monday at the Christian Church of Arlington Heights, 333 W. Thomas St.

Professor William Adleman of the University of Illinois will present a slide history of the ethnic migration and settlement of Chicago.

There is no admission charge for the program. Coffee will be served.

$1.29 Million Park District Budget Approved

The Arlington Heights Park District 1972-73 budget, totaling $1,293,319 was passed unanimously Tuesday night by the park board.

The budget, which is about $90,000 higher than last year, includes salary increases of about 5 1/2 per cent for the 42 full-time and most part-time park district employees, which is the normal salary increase according to the park district scale.

"The budget is practically the same as last year, except that our labor costs are up," said Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks and recreation. "There will be no major improvements or purchases since we only have income enough to maintain what we have."

Park district income consists of taxes, license and user fees, concession sales, fines and gifts.

Tax revenue, which makes up the largest portion of park district income, is expected to amount to $681,790. That figure is $66,624 less than originally expected because of an error in computing the tax rate in the Cook County Clerk's office.

BESIDES SALARIES, liability insurance for this year is $13,500, which is nearly double the amount budgeted for last year's insurance.

"We now have complete coverage on all of our parks," said Roger Burke, park district treasurer.

Also included in the budget are park improvements including some tennis court resurfacing and resurfacing some asphalt walks.

In other park district business, Charles B. Cronin was reelected president of the board for the 1972-73 fiscal year, and William A. Meister was reelected vice president.

The board approved the purchase of swingback baskets for the basketball courts at Camelot and Frontier parks at a cost of $556. The purchase of a tiller rake, which will be used for seeding, was also approved by the board at a cost of $570.

Mrs. Muller On Park Board

Katherine Muller was named to the Arlington Heights Park District Board of Commissioners last night. She will replace Robert A. Stenzel who is leaving the board to take a position in New York.

Mrs. Muller, 418 South Lincoln, applied for a board position in January when two other commissioners resigned. She has been an Arlington Heights resident for nine years, has been a board member of the League of Women Voters and is a Dryden PTA member and a Brownie leader.

"I accepted the position because I am very interested in the activities of the park district and over the years have gained a great deal of knowledge on how the district operates," she said. "The board has been very businessmen-oriented and it's time for a change."

During the past two months, Mrs. Muller has been a member of the ice facility committee which is proposing an indoor ice rink in Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Muller and her husband, John, have four children. She will take office June 13.

A TRANQUILIZER DART was used to temporarily immobilize a stray deer that rambled through Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights yesterday, pursued by police from both villages. Animal Officer Eugene Korn of the Arlington Heights Police Department finally subdued the animal near the Brass Rail Restaurant on South Arlington Heights Road. The deer was transported to the Elk Grove Forest Preserve, from which he originally strayed.

As expected, the suit challenging the constitutionality of the Cook County "wheel tax" was continued. The new hearing date is June 7.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

Six Injured In Car Crash

Six persons were injured Tuesday night, apparently none seriously, in a two-car collision at the intersection of Rand and Palatine roads.

Derek Tennant of Barrington was driving his car northwest along Rand Road when he collided with a second auto being driven by Diane Drinkwater, 1539 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, who was attempting to turn left off of Rand Road into the eastbound lane of Palatine Road, police reported.

Both drivers and four passengers who were riding in the Drinkwater car were taken to Northwest Community Hospital with cuts and head injuries.

Treated were Tennant, Mrs. Drinkwater, Michelle Drinkwater, Roberta, Katrina and Christine Baker, all of 1569 S. Wolf Rd. in Wheeling.

Music For Youth To Evaluate School Program

by CINDY TEW

Twelve members of Music for Youth have volunteered to assist the officers of the corporation to recommend a method of providing instrumental music in Dist. 25 schools for the 1972-73 school year.

"The board delegated the officers to evaluate the existing program and study other alternatives of providing instrumental music next year," said Sidney Rosenfeld, board member. "They will record the facts and report to us in 30 days."

Music for Youth was created in May, 1971, when the school board cut instrumental music from their program because of a lack of funds. The school board on May 24, 1971, approved a proposal made by Music for Youth to save the district's instrumental music.

The proposal included setting up Music for Youth as a non-profit corporation, collecting money on a donation basis and contracting with a music center to hire teachers and run the musical program. The Music Center of the North Shore has run the program this year.

THE DONATION for the program is $30 per semester per child in the program. At the present time, there are 700 children in the program.

"Since the program is on a donation basis, students don't have to pay to take instrumental lessons," said Mike Fogel, president of Music For Youth. "Only about 5 per cent of our students are non-paying participants, however."

According to the by-laws of the corporation, all parents who have children in the program or have donated $10 are members of Music for Youth.

Financially, the first year of the corporation has been successful. According to John E. Cornell, vice president and treasurer, $40,380 has been collected through donations and interest on savings deposits, and $33,000 has been spent so far this year in teaching fees, legal fees and supplies.

"I think we will finish out this year with a few hundred dollars in the treasury," Cornell said.

THE PROGRAM, however, has not been without criticism, and Pres. Fogel is the first to admit that it is a long way from perfection.

"Our biggest problem is coordinating the lessons which are given by Music Center of the North Shore teachers with a band program which is directed by a school Dist. 25 teacher," said Fogel.

Other problems aired at the first annual meeting of Music for Youth members Tuesday night included some teacher performances which were not up to par, and a general lack of coordination and communication within the program.

"When I paid the donation for my child's instrumental music program, I had no idea Music for Youth was a corporation, or that I was a member of it," said one Music for Youth member.

THE CORPORATION is composed of a seven-member board of directors which chooses the officers, including president, four vice presidents, a secretary, accountant and school coordinators. A proposal has been made to include a band and string coordinator in the 1972-73 school year.

Some parents, who are interested in creating performing bands in the schools, are interested in hiring Music Education Service (MES) to take over the program. Donald D. Borian, president of MES, told the members at Tuesday night's meeting that he would concentrate more on providing more band participation.

Other parents, more intent on individual lessons, were interested in a proposal by Herbert Zipper, national executive director of the Guild of Community Music Schools, to create a community music school, with emphasis on private lessons.

"We consider, as a matter of policy, that the goal of Music for Youth would be to have the instrumental music program taken back by the school district when they can," said Rosenfeld. "Therefore, I don't think we'll be expanding our program to include a community music school."

OFFICERS APPOINTED by the board of directors Tuesday night included Mike Fogel, president; George Galvin, executive vice president; John Connell, vice president and treasurer; Joyce Anderson, vice president in charge of public relations; JoAnn Fogel, vice president of administration, and Nancy Meyer, secretary.

Volunteers to the citizens committee are John Holm, Jeanne Dacy, Mary Kulwicz, Elaine Erickson, Charles Shields, Julius Miller, Delores Miller, Ruth Cormier, Charlotte Braun, Stacy Heile, Arlyn Miner and Elaine Morken.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Mayor Daley said President Nixon's decision to mine the harbors of North Vietnam wasn't Nixon's decision to make but that of Congress. In other reaction to the war, Northwestern University students blockaded a street in Evanston. In Chicago, eight persons were arrested for obstructing traffic on Lake Shore Drive.

The National Coalition of American nuns has issued a "declaration of independence" calling for sexual equality in churches, including full priesthood for women and elimination of the College of Cardinals.

The state government would get into the horse racing business under a bill passed by the Illinois Senate. The bill would allow the state to compete with Chicago newspapers and other organizations for charity dates at Illinois race tracks.

The World

The head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks left for Hanoi via Moscow and Peking for discussions on the war.

Chancellor Willy Brandt asked parliamentary ratification of nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland which he said would build bridges over the trenches and graves of past wars and shield Europe from growing tension in Asia.

The Nation

Defense Sec. Melvin Laird strongly indicated that in addition to mining and blockading harbors, the United States will halt any ships or planes from attempting to unload supplies in North Vietnam. He also reported no major ship movements in Haiphong harbor since it was mined. Meanwhile, antiwar protests increased, with mostly student demonstrators blocking highways and breaking windows as arrests mounted into the hundreds.

The War

Martial law was declared in South Vietnam during a day of escalated war in which U.S. fighter planes shot down seven Communist MiGs in battles over North Vietnam. The crucial period arrived this morning at 6 o'clock when hundreds of mines planted along the North Vietnamese coast were to be activated. In other action, 32 persons aboard a U.S. helicopter were killed near Saigon, the result of a mechanical failure.

Teachers Council Makes Bid For Salary Package

by RICH HONACK

The Wheeling Faculty Council pulled a surprise move Tuesday afternoon and gave the Dist. 21 board of education a proposal for the salary and fringe benefit section of the contract.

The proposal came when neither side could reach agreement on the procedural package of the contract. The council still would like three items added and the board will not accept them.

The three items — scope, fact-finding and the strike clause — were, if not settled, supposedly going to send the talks into impasse.

However, Larry Halter, spokesman for the council, said, "I've never seen an impasse called over procedural, so we'll wait and see what happens to the financial section."

IN THE financial section the teachers are asking for many increases. They are:

- An 11 per cent pay raise.
- An increase from 10 to 15 sick days.
- An increase from two to three personal leave days.
- Funeral leave extended to cover non-immediate family.
- Full tuition to be paid by the district for all graduate studies taken.
- Changes in sabbatical leave.

HALTER SAID he feels all the proposals are realistic and he doesn't feel the salary increase of 11 per cent will be in violation of federal guidelines calling for increases no greater than 5.5 per cent.

"We feel that since the teachers usually get a four or five per cent increase yearly through their current contract increment steps, we are only asking for a six per cent increase," said Halter.

"However, after June 30 there will be no contract and no salary schedule, therefore it becomes an 11 per cent increase," said John Barger, spokesman for the board. "I don't have any comment on the proposals at this time, and probably won't have for the next few weeks."

Halter said the council is asking for the raise because they feel Dist. 21 is on the bottom of the ladder when it comes to salaries. "You can pick any 10 districts in the Chicago suburbs and Wheeling will be on the bottom," he added.

HALTER ALSO said the increase is determined by the average teacher's salary. He explained that, as in the past, the monies bargained for, would be in total amount and left up to the council to decide which teacher would get what increases.

Barger told Halter the board must see the scale and how the money is distributed to make sure the money is within the bargained framework.

Halter disagreed at first, but when one of his team members explained it was just a procedure to double check the distribution, he agreed. The board also explained that the law states they must see the salary schedule before it is approved.

THERE WAS no indication at Tuesday's meeting as to what type of counter-proposals would be made at the next meeting by the board, but they indicated they would have some type of answer for the council.

Halter again said, "If the counter-proposal is 'no,' then by my definition you haven't countered." He also said the three items to be discussed in procedures may also be negotiated with the salaries and fringe benefits.

The two teams will not meet again until 4 p.m., May 24.

Nonresident Borrowing At Library Under 2 Pct.

Less than 2 per cent of the items checked out of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library in April were borrowed by residents living outside the village, it was reported Tuesday night at the library board meeting.

The library board has been keeping a close check on who borrows materials from the library since the inception of the reciprocal borrowing program. The program, initiated March 14, allows patrons of the 31-member North Suburban Library System to borrow from all other libraries in the system.

Of 69,623 items borrowed from the Arlington Heights library in April, 1,246 were borrowed by nonresidents. In the same month, 74 Arlington Heights library patrons borrowed materials from other libraries in the system.

"We don't feel the amount of borrowing from non-Arlington Heights patrons is excessive," said Harold Ard, executive librarian.

Palatine residents have borrowed 237 items from the Arlington Heights library, 207 items have been borrowed by Barrington residents, 168 items have been borrowed by Mount Prospect residents and 154 items by Rolling Meadows residents, for the highest total.

Arlington Heights residents have borrowed 27 items from the Mount Prospect library, 14 items from the Barrington Library, and fewer than 10 items from other libraries.

Attempted Murder Case Continued For Defense

The defense was granted a continuance Tuesday in the case of Richard Salinas of Palatine Township, who is accused of attempting to kill a man he found with his wife.

Judge George Zimmerman of Cook County Circuit Court in Niles granted the continuance to June 5 on the attempted murder and aggravated assault charges.

Salinas, 28, is currently free on $2,500 bond.

He is accused of firing 20 shotgun pellets into the back of Jose Lopez, 24, of Chicago, who was with Salinas' wife, Paulina, 24, at the Deer Grove Forest Preserve Friday morning.

Lopez was treated for gunshot wounds at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, and was released yesterday.

COOK COUNTY Sheriff's Police investigator Lawrence Troka said he plans to contact Lopez upon his release from the hospital to determine if he wishes to file a complaint against Salinas.

Troka said Lopez declined to lodge a formal complaint Friday, but was under sedation at the time.

Charges have been filed by sheriff's police.

Maine Welfare Cases Up More Than 170 Per Cent

The monthly number of welfare cases handled by Maine Township jumped more than 170 per cent in the fiscal year ending March 1, as compared to the previous year.

According to figures released by the Illinois Department of Public Aid, the township handled an average of 46 cases a month in the 1971-72 fiscal year, an increase of about 171 per cent over the average of 17 cases a month handled in fiscal 1970-71.

In addition, the average number of persons on township general assistance rolls each month jumped about 125 per cent, from 57 each month in fiscal 1970-71 to 128 persons a month in 1971-72.

Maine Township spent $33,197 on general assistance last year, an increase of 21 per cent over the $27,277 spent the previous year. The $33,197 spent in fiscal 1971-72, however, was considerably less than the $74,850 that had been budgeted for general assistance by the township. Tentative budget for fiscal 1972-73 is $75,000.

OFFICIALS IN Elk Grove Township have released figures showing a 78 per cent increase in the number of welfare cases reported last year and a 58 per cent increase in the number of persons

Last year, there were 387 cases involving 1,277 persons who received general assistance in Elk Grove Township, compared to 245 cases involving 717 persons the year before.

Township general assistance is designed as emergency aid for families and individuals until they become eligible for other forms of welfare, such as aid to dependent children. Families rarely stay on general assistance for more than a few months.

Mrs. Frances Imig, Maine Township social worker, attributed the large jump in the number of general assistance cases to rising unemployment, population growth and high rents in the suburban area.

"The employment situation is bad. There are people in here who have never been in a welfare office before. They just can't find jobs," Mrs. Imig told the Herald.

THE JOB SITUATION has been compounded because employers in this area won't hire anyone without transportation and many township general assistance cases are persons who don't own cars, she said.

According to her, families forced on to general assistance in this area are unable to find apartments. A family with a husband, wife and children is allotted $140 a month for a furnished apartment under general assistance rules but apartments at that rent just can't be found in Maine Township, Mrs. Imig said.

She said the township's increasing welfare role is caused in part by its ability to give immediate aid to families hit by sickness or accidents.

Cases involving dependent children or medical disabilities are handled by the township until the county can take them over, she said.

According to her, 85 per cent of the persons who come to the township office seeking general assistance are women whose husbands have deserted them. They are helped, she said, until they can be approved for the county welfare rolls.

In Wheeling Township, a smaller increase was reported. The number of families receiving aid increased from 114 in 1970-71 to 147 in 1971-72, a jump of about 30 per cent.

Officials in Schaumburg Township also have reported an increase in the number of welfare cases. More than twice as many families received aid from the Schaumburg Township office during 1971-72 than in 1970-71, officials reported.

Maine W. Boosters To Meet Thursday

The Maine West High School Boosters Club will hold its final meeting of the season Thursday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. in room L102 of the school. Parents of all Maine West students are members and are welcome to attend.

The election of 1972-73 officers will be held and plans for next year will be discussed. Members will also meet James Morel, new head football coach at Maine West.

Break-In No. 12 Comes Up Empty

Number 12 — the 12th Des Plaines school break-in to take place in the last three weeks — happened Monday night when a thief entered Albert Einstein School, 345 Walnut Ave. but left empty-handed.

Apparently the same thief had broken into High Ridge Knolls School, 588 S. Dara James Rd., Monday evening and escaped with an unknown amount of cash, police theorize.

According to the Cook County Sheriff's Police the burglar entered the Einstein school by breaking the glass portion of an outside door. The burglar reportedly failed to find any money but damaged several doors inside the school and ransacked several classrooms.

Police speculate the thief is the same one who has broken into eleven other Des Plaines schools in the last three weeks. In nine of the break-ins, money has been taken.

Teachers Vote On 2.25% Increase

Maine Township High School Dist. 207 teachers will vote Monday on a proposed 2.25 per cent 1972-73 pay increase. The new wage package was approved this week by the Dist. 207 School Board and the Teachers' Association executive board.

The proposal would raise starting teacher salaries for a bachelors degree holder with no experience from the present $8,400 to $8,590. Starting pay for masters degree teachers with no experience would be $9,285, up from the present $9,060.

The 2.25 per cent increase, approved Monday by school officials and Tuesday by the teacher's Association executive board, represents less than half of the five per cent raises the high school teachers received last year.

"In light of the situation this year, I think this has been a well-negotiated package," Karl Miller, teacher association president, told the Herald.

THE SCHOOL district, strapped with a deficit of about $3 million, has eliminated 27 full-time teaching positions for next year. In addition, 13 part-time teaching jobs, most of them held by teachers who were working toward masters degrees, have been dropped.

Richard Short, Dist. 207 superintendent, said this week five of the 27 teachers whose jobs were eliminated already have been asked to take other Dist. 207 positions vacated due to resignations or other reasons.

Thus there are now 22 teachers facing firings, he said, and he expects further openings before September to reduce that number even more. The 27 whose jobs are being eliminated are all non-tenure teachers, according to Ralph Frost, assistant superintendent.

In addition to the 2.25 per cent increases in the wage package, teachers would get regular one-step pay hike increments, based on experience, evaluation of services and additional training, school officials said.

THERE WOULD be no increases in payments teachers receive for extra-curricular assignments under the proposed agreement.

According to school officials, the package approved by the Dist. 207 board also includes additional Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage for some health services not now covered. Premiums for the expanded coverage would be paid by district employees, with the school board continuing to pay two-thirds of the cost of the present hospital-medical coverage.

Under the proposed wage package, top scale for a teacher with a masters degree, reached in 16 steps, would be $16,535, up from the present $16,170. Teachers with masters degrees plus 64 graduate hours would get a top of $19,110, compared to the current top of $18,690.

Frost said this week that school officials are trying to find jobs for the dismissed teachers either in other Dist. 207 positions or with other school districts.

"I'M HOPEFUL resignations and normal attrition will take care of most of those positions but I'm not sure whether it will take care of them all," he said.

"We're working very hard in those areas where we don't have positions to find positions for those teachers in neighboring districts," said Frost.

The classes will be small and each student will be tested in order to identify his reading strengths and weaknesses. Individual instruction will then be based on the student's abilities.

Concert May 15 At Chippewa

A free concert featuring the Chicago Sinfonietta Orchestra will be given at 8 p.m. May 15 at the Chippewa Junior High School gymnasium, 123 Eighth Ave., Des Plaines.

There will be an opportunity to talk to the orchestra players informally after the program and persons planning to attend are urged to arrive early. Seating will be on a first-come, first-served basis. Students and faculty members from Chippewa will serve as ushers and guides.

The concert is being sponsored by the Chicago Park District. The Chicago Sinfonietta is conducted by Armand Baker.

Members of the Sinfonietta come from many walks of life and include doctors, lawyers, lathe operators, housewives, teachers, and college students. The program contains a variety of music, including: Symphony No. 103 (The Drum Roll) by Joseph Haydn, Overture to Fidelio by Beethoven, Trumpet Concerto by Joseph Haydn, Waltzes from Des Rosenkavaller by Richard Strauss, The Adagio from the Bassoon Concerto by W. A. Mozart, and Selections from Camelot by Lerner and Loewe.

The tax, on vehicles in unincorporated areas, was passed late last December by the Cook County Board. It was one of three taxes approved by the county under home-rule powers allowed by the new state constitution.

The suit challenging the constitutionality of the wheel tax was filed last month by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. The suit contends the tax is unconstitutional because the funds, while collected only from unincorporated area residents, will go into the county general fund.

Don Kreger, attorney for the PHIA, said the case was continued because all the attorneys involved wanted more time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, the deadline for paying the tax remains May 15. Applications are available at area police departments. County officials have said that police will issue only warning tickets to those without county stickers through June 1.

Oakton Board Hires Firm To Ponder Campus Site

The Oakton Community College Board Tuesday hired a Chicago-based architectural firm to help in selection of a permanent Oakton campus site.

Perkins and Will Architects Inc., the firm which had designed the junior college's temporary campus facilities in Morton Grove, was named to draw plans for the new campus and to supervise its construction.

The Oakton board also authorized traffic studies of sites under consideration for the permanent campus. Architectural services in selecting and designing the campus and traffic studies are required by the Illinois Junior College Board before it will approve a proposed site, board members indicated.

The architectural firm will receive up to $30,000 for preliminary work before construction, according to the contract agreement approved by the board. The firm will receive between 5.5 per cent and 10 per cent of the construction cost, depending on the size of the construction project, the contract indicates.

BARTON ASCHMAN and Associates of Chicago will receive up to $5,000 for traffic studies, which will include the impact of automobile traffic around proposed sites for a campus, the availability of public transportation and the convenience for district residents.

In preparing preliminary plans, which will be presented to the Illinois College Board, the architectural firm will conduct inspections of the proposed sites for the campus, examining geographic characteristics such as drainage and physical features, and access to roads, public utilities and services.

The firm will draw plans and make recommendations after consulting with Oakton's board, faculty and administration on enrollment predictions, classroom needs, community use, physical education requirements, parking and traffic needs.

The firm will also confer with local and state agencies about future plans, which might affect the use of a site.

PERKINS AND Will would then prepare a "master plan" for the physical layout of the proposed campus, including recommendations for the order in which buildings would be built, depending on state and local funding.

Following state approval of the site and plans, and voter referendum approval of a bond issue to finance the first phase of construction, the architectural firm would draw estimates and bid specifications. The firm would then supervise construction, according to the contract.

The state junior college board had first approved and then rejected an Oakton proposal to use a vacant 106 acre Maryhill Cemetery site in Niles for the permanent campus, following protests from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese, the site owner.

The state board has promised to provide funds necessary to begin work on a campus, following site selection, approval of that site by the state, and voter approval in a referendum.

Oakton Board Pres. LeRoy Wauck has said that three large sites and several smaller sites are now being considered. He said that a referendum may be held this June.

Full Time City Youth Director Eyed

The Des Plaines City Council Monday will consider proposals for hiring a full time city youth director, who could help fight increasing youth problems here.

Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) will ask the council's youth committee to study creation of a new city job for a youth worker who could help combat rising youth crime rates, drug abuse and family conflicts.

Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd) youth committee chairman, told the Herald yesterday he will schedule a meeting on Ald. Sherwood's proposal before the end of this month.

Sherwood, a former chairman of the youth committee and now one of its three members, said yesterday he has studied the need for a youth director for more than three years. He is convinced, he said, that a director is needed to provide professional guidance and to coordinate programs offered by city and private youth aid agencies.

COMMITTEES HE chaired considered hiring a city counselor to work with young people who had become involved with police. He had also heard complaints, as youth committee chairman, that members of the Des Plaines Youth Commission lack the time and the professional knowledge to plan and create programs to help young people.

A youth director could coordinate efforts by the Des Plaines Police, the Maine Township Mental Health Clinic, the Salvation Army Family Service, Forest Psychiatric Hospital, the city youth commission, the Des Plaines Coordinating Council on Youth Problems — an organization of school and church leaders — the Des Plaines Park District, and the Place for People, an informed youth center, according to Sherwood.

Often these agencies duplicate services, Sherwood said. If they would work together "toward the same goal, they would get there quicker," he said.

A YOUTH DIRECTOR might be able to develop programs to reduce the growing number of juvenile criminal offenses, he said. In 1971, juvenile offense arrests rose 35 per cent from 1,118 in 1970 to 1,505.

Arrests for narcotics-use violations rose almost 50 per cent from 42 to 62. Burglary arrests jumped 117 per cent from 35 in 1970 to 78 in 1971.

During the first quarter of 1972, juvenile arrests were up 11 per cent, compared to the first quarter of 1971. Drug-use arrests more than doubled, from 11 during last year's first quarter to 26 during the first three months of this year.

Another advocate of hiring a city youth director, The Rev. David Russell, who heads the Place for People center, said yesterday the city could provide a youth service similar to one provided by Palatine Township.

A YOUTH SERVICES bureau could be created to refer young people to other agencies for counseling, jobs, legal assistance, medical aid, he said.

The youth bureau could also provide informal activities, similar to the Place for People center, so the young people would be attracted and come in contact with adults who could help them. Russell also said a city counselor could seek out young people at neighborhood hang-outs to explain services the city is offering.

A youth director could also be a resource for information, and he could be a consultant for community groups, like the PTA's, he said.

A director could coordinate programs of various local agencies and create new programs where a need exists, he said.

Funds for creation of this type of service are now available from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, Rev. Russell said. The commission would provide up to $30,000 a year for a city youth service program, he said.

Middleton Hearing Delayed

A hearing on a defense motion to vacate the judgment and sentence in the case of Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was delayed again yesterday in the Criminal Courts Building in Chicago.

Judge Robert J. Downing rescheduled the hearing for May 30 after Assistant State's Atty. Nicholas Metherway asked the court for more time to prepare his arguments.

Sam Adam, Dr. Middleton's attorney, had filed motions previously requesting the court to throw out the guilty verdict returned against the doctor Feb. 3 on charges of deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery and the subsequent sentence of 5 to 10 years in prison.

In his motion Adam contended the assistant state's attorney who prosecuted the doctor admitted to the doctor during an alleged telephone conversation that some of the testimony was perjured.

Yesterday Metherway argued the allegations were not specific enough to warrant a hearing, but Judge Downing denied his motion and reset the hearing date.

Bill Would Make Students' Visual Exams Mandatory

by ROGER CAPELLINI

A bill that would require Illinois school children to undergo eye examinations by ophthalmologists or optometrists in addition to their school physicians by physicians was approved Tuesday by the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee.

The bill could mean a $13.5 million windfall for eye doctors across the state, according to testimony offered during the committee hearings.

The bill was passed by the House last Nov. 3. With the recommendation to pass the bill from the Senate Committee, the bill now awaits action by the full Senate.

The bill would require mandatory visual examinations by ophthalmologists or optometrists of every student in the state entering kindergarten, first, fifth or ninth grades.

If made law, the bill would preempt the vision screening program that became law last August but is not mandatory until September, 1973.

PASSAGE OF THE bill has been opposed by the Illinois State Medical Society, which contends the program would cost parents more than $7 million a year and the state public aid department more than $1 million since eye examinations by optometrists and ophthalmologists cost $15 to $35.

Also opposed to the bill are: The Illinois Association of Ophthalmology; Illinois Academy of Pediatrics; Illinois Pediatric Coordinating Council; Illinois Academy of Family Physicians, and the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The Illinois State Medical Society opposes the bill because it says it will force parents to take children to an optometrist's or ophthalmologist's office for the examination.

The society pointed out there are only 400 ophthalmologists in the state as opposed to about 1,900 optometrists. Ophthalmologists have medical degrees and are qualified to treat eye diseases and ailments as they relate to the entire body. Optometrists are not licensed physicians and are not qualified to treat eye diseases.

The society has characterized the bill as a "make-work bill for optometrists."

The present screening program is given free of charge and is part of the regular school physical examination program.

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY also attacked the bill because it says the bill would prohibit family physicians or in-ternists from conducting eye examinations. The society called that "a ridiculous requirement since optometrists themselves are not licensed physicians."

Three of four children, the medical society contends, have no visual defects and those that do presently are referred to an optometrist or ophthalmologist by the vision screening program. Citing a shortage of optometrists and ophthalmologists, especially in downstate Illinois areas, the society says passage of the bill would only aggravate the situation.

The Senate committee, dominated by Chicago Democrats, voted 8 to 3 to recommend passage of the bill.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, minority spokesman on the committee, said yesterday he voted in favor of the bill.

Graham added, however, his vote was intended "to get it out of committee and into the light of day." He said the bill cannot pass in its present form.

The senator said he does not feel the bill would prohibit the required examinations being conducted by family physicians as interpreted by the Illinois State Medical Society. "But if it does say that, it's dead," Graham said.

He said Senate staff workers are studying the bill and amendments to clarify the role of family doctors in administering the examinations are expected.

The concert string orchestra will be conducted by Thomas Daniels.

Park Budget Up; Taxes Probably To Stay Same

Even though the proposed $1.2 million Mount Prospect Park District budget for 1972-73 represents a slight increase over last year, residents' taxes will probably remain stable.

Tom Cooper, park director, made the announcement yesterday saying that "higher assessed valuation will pay for the (budget) increases."

Several budget categories have been hiked including, the recreation fund, bond and interest and retirement for employees. The corporate fund shows a slight decrease.

The recreation tax levy will be raised to the maximum, Cooper said, to pay for the increase in the recreation budget. The other levies will be lower, he said.

He called the new budget "a tightening all the way around" citing staff cuts and a 5 per cent wage jump from last year.

The proposed budget shows the director to be paid a salary of $18,500 and the park district golf course greenskeeper $14,350.

Also included in the proposed budget is $25,000 for the purchase of Dist. 57 school property. The land is about eight acres of the Gregory School site in Mount Prospect.

The total cost is $250,000 and although the contract is not yet final, the $25,000 budgeted is the first payment in a 10-year schedule.

Park district commissioners were expected to consider the budget this week, but postponed it for at least two weeks.

Maine East, Notre Dame Clash For District Title

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Doubles by Rich Pedit and Russ Anderson propelled Notre Dame and Maine East into the championship game of the Maine East District Tournament.

Pedit's double drove in the game's only run as Notre Dame nipped Maine West 1-0 and Anderson's double drove in two crucial runs as Maine East edged Maine North 6-5 Wednesday.

The Dons and the Demons will meet in the title game today at 4:30 p.m. on the Maine East diamond. The winner will advance to the Niles West Regional which will get underway Monday.

Dick Allegretti hurtled the shutout for Notre Dame in a pitching duel with the Warriors' Mark Ackermann. Allegretti allowed only three hits while striking out one and walking two.

Rich Luzinski started off the bottom of the seventh inning for the Dons with a single to left field. John O'Connor grounded out to second base as Luzinski advanced to second. Pedit then blasted the ball against the left field fence and Luzinski trotted across home plate with the winning run.

Ackermann permitted only four hits to the Dons and struck out five while walking two.

Maine West threatened in the first inning with two runners on, but Notre Dame completed a double play to end the frame. In the sixth frame after two were out Chris Bouchee belted a double to left-center field which brought Bill Slapke to the plate.

On a three-ball, two-strike pitch, the umpire ruled that Slapke had fouled off a pitch which the Dons' catcher Al Aloisio grabbed for the out. Slapke and Maine West coach Al Carstens argued that the ball had hit Slapke on the arm, not the bat, and that the Warrior batsman should be awarded first base. The umpire did not change his ruling though a red welt on Slapke's arm mysteriously appeared.

The Warriors put two runners on the sacks in the sixth inning, but again Allegretti pitched his way out of the jam.

Maine East had to rally from behind twice before disposing of the pesky Norsemen.

Maine North took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on a pair of errors and a single by Neal Schawel. The Demons tied the count in the fourth frame on singles by Mike McDonnell, Glenn Sedjo, Dan Lowy and Joe Darby.

The Norsemen came up with three runs in the sixth inning on a single by Brian Bradfield, a single by Ken Spain, a double by Gary Halls and a sacrifice fly by Mickey Drewes.

In the bottom of the sixth, Maine East tallied four runs to take the lead.

Lowy started the frame by reaching first on an error. Fred Parker reached safely on an error as Lowy took second. After one out, Roy Adamski hit an infield single to load the bases. Bob Lloyd grounded into a fielder's choice which scored Lowy, moved Parker to third and got Adamski out at second.

Anderson followed with a double to left-center field to drive in Parker and Lloyd and Anderson scored the winning run on an error.

It was not over for the Norsemen as they threatened in the seventh. Maine North had two runners on in the seventh, but a pickoff throw by Demon catcher Mike McDonnell and a shoestring catch by leftfielder Harry Abrahams ended the threat.

Parker was the winning pitcher as he worked six complete innings and pitched to two batters in the seventh. Greg Maloney pitched the Demons out of the jam in the seventh and earned the save.

Halls was the losing pitcher as he was victimized by seven errors by the Norsemen.

The probable starter for Notre Dame today will be Mike Callero, who was quite impressive for the Dons in his last outing as he limited St. Francis DeSales to four hits in a 5-1 victory. The Dons, 13-6-1, have gone unbeaten in their last nine games.

Maine East, 8-4-1, will send Maloney to the mound today. The righthander has a 3-1 mark this season.

Motorcycle Race Promotions Plans Five Races; Opener Set For Sunday

What do the people in the following occupations have in common: construction engineer, landscaper, detective, motel manager, marina owner, tavern owner, and motorcycle sales and service owner?

They're all motorcycle buffs, and they form Xross, Inc., a motorcycle racing promotion group based in suburban Arlington Heights. Xross (pronounced "cross") plans to sponsor five races at three different sites in Southern Wisconsin this year.

Xross' first race will be staged Sunday, May 14, at the Turtle Park motocross track which is located northeast of Elkhorn, Wis., on Wisconsin Highway 15.

The highlight of Xross' five-race series will be an International Motocross at Turtle Park Sunday, July 23. It is one of six such events scheduled in this country this summer and it is expected to draw the top riders from the United States and European countries.

Motocross is this country's fastest-growing motor sport. It's best described as cross country motorcycle racing in which man and machine battle almost every type of terrain imaginable.

Proof of its growing popularity was provided in April at Road Atlanta, a track deep in the heart of stock car racing country. Southerners, who usually spend their spare time cheering stock car racers Richard Petty and Bobby Allison, turned out 50,000 strong for the three-day series of motocross races.

"We believe motocross has unlimited potential," said Xross President Robert Paoletta of Arlington Heights. "Not many people have been exposed to it so far, but we feel that once they are exposed, they'll go for it just like we have."

"It's a tremendously exciting sport that is very visual. Fans never get to see the drivers working in car racing. All you see is the driver's helmet. He gets into the car and literally becomes part of it. "In motocross and motorcycle racing on flat tracks, you can see everything the rider does, and what he's doing is just as important as what the machine is doing."

"We know there's tremendous interest in motocrossing in the Chicago-Milwaukee-Rockford-Madison area. It's a spectator sport for the whole family — mom, dad, and the kids. Kids especially go for it because so many of them have mini-bikes and mini-cycles of their own. The number of kids riding 'off road' these days is staggering. Anytime you find an open field, you're sure to find at least a dozen kids riding their 'bairns'."

"Many people have attached a certain stigma to motocrossing because of the 'outlaw' gangs, but racing is nothing like that. We staged one motocross last year and got clobbered by the weatherman. It rained most of the day, but 7,000 fans still turned out and it was one of the best behaved sports crowds I've ever seen."

Paoletta is a construction engineer. Other officers of Xross are Vice President Les Klinko of Niles, Ill., who is in the motorcycle sales and service business, and Secretary-Treasurer Bob Vraney of Rolling Meadows, Ill., who is in the landscaping business.

Other members of the privately-held corporation are Joe Paoletta of Wilmette, Ill., who has his own detective and security guard agency; Jon Vraney of Lake Geneva, Wis., manager of the North Chicago Holiday Inn; Bill Sheriff of Des Plaines, Ill., also in the construction business; James Avolio of Niles, also in the motorcycle sales and service business; James Humphrey of Lake Geneva, a marina owner; and Gordon Whowell of Lake Geneva, a tavern owner.

Jack Morgan and Bruce Hartwell, both of Elkhorn, who own and operate Turtle Park, also are associated with Xross under the banner of Morgan's organization, Moto-Sports Racing Circus.

"I guess you'd have to say we're all bike 'freaks,'" explained Robert Paoletta. "That's why we're in this... we're all bike happy."

Xross intends to promote its five-race series in several ways. On Sunday, April 30, it co-sponsored the live radio broadcast of the Yamaha Gold Cup Motorcycle Races from Colorado Springs, Colo., over Chicago station WJJD-FM.

All five Xross races will be American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned events. The schedule is: May 14, motocross at Turtle Park; June 4, motorcycle races on the Elkhorn Fairgrounds half-mile dirt oval; July 3, motorcycle races on the quarter-mile dirt oval in San Prairie, Wis.; July 23, International Motocross at Turtle Park; and July 30, motorcycle races on the Elkhorn track.

Posted prize money for the five races will total approximately $15,000, with the majority of it posted for the International Motocross. Contingency awards could double that figure, according to Paoletta.

The May motocross will serve as a qualifying event for the International Motocross for U.S. pro riders. A complete amateur program will precede the pro events May 14. Tickets for the May race will be available at the gate. They are priced at $3 for adults, with children under 12 admitted free. A special rate will be available May 14 since it's Mother's Day. Mothers will be admitted for half price, or $1.50.

The track will open at 9 a.m., with practice slated at 10 and the first race at 11. The pros and amateurs will compete in three classes according to the engine size of their motorcycles — 125 cc, 250 cc, and open. There probably will be two heats in each class, depending on the number of entries.

For further information, contact: PJP Enterprises, 3703 Seward Ave., Rockford, Ill. 61108. 815/398-1766.

Hushek's 40 Paces ND Golf Victory

Mark Hushek shot a 40 to lead Notre Dame to its ninth golf victory of the season as the Dons whipped St. Joseph 165-189. The Dons have lost two meets this season.

Mike Casey shot a 41 and John Murnane and Dick Schaeffer each shot 42's for Notre Dame.

The Dons will go against St. Patrick and St. Viator on Thursday and will compete in the Glenbrook South District at the Glenview Park District on Friday at 8 a.m.

Fetters, McDermott Top Branigar Meet

Fighting rain, wind, and the long 7,040 yard par 72 Sioux Course at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale, the two men, best-ball team of Jim Fetters and Bill McDermott, was the only team to break par of the 56 teams to participate in this second Branigar Open Monday.

Fetters, Head Pro at Lincolnshire Country Club in Crete, and his partner, McDermott, an assistant pro at Exmoor Country Club in Highland Park, combined for a steady 36-35 for their one stroke victory. Their win was worth $250 each.

Tied for second at an even par 72 were two teams: Don Stickney, head pro at Chicago Country Club in Wheaton, and his partner Dennis Piotrowski, assistant pro at Hinsdale Golf Club; and Larry Rouse, head pro at Ruth Lake Country Club in Hinsdale and Charlie Hackett, an assistant pro at Barrington Hills Country Club near Barrington. Second place was worth $125.50 to each pro.

This was Don Stickney's second year in the money in the Branigar Open as he finished fourth in last year's tournament. Larry Rouse, Illinois Section PGA Tournament Chairman, held his team in contention with nine consecutive one putt greens from the second through the tenth hole. But with the bad weather, at the end of tea, his team was only even par, and that is where they finished.

The Branigar Open is sponsored by The Branigar Organization, Inc., Chicago based developer and operator of golf, resort, recreational, and second-home sites. Golf courses owned or managed by Branigar in the Chicago area include Indian Lakes, Sportsman Country Club in Northbrook, Buffalo Grove Golf Club in Buffalo Grove, the new Hilldale Country Club in Hoffman Estates, and Midlane Country Club in Wadsworth (near Waukegan).

colnshire, Crete, Bill McDermott, Exmoor, Highland Park; 72 — Don Stickney, Chicago, Wheaton; Dennis Piotrowski, Hinsdale; 73 — Larry Rouse, Ruth Lake, Hinsdale; Charlie Hackett, Barrington Hills; 74 — Hubby Habjan, Onwentsia, Lake Forest, Dave Mose, Calumet, Hazel Crest; 75 — Bob McDonald, Rob Roy, Prospect Heights, Al Bailey, Ravinia Green, River Woods; 76 — Geoffrey Pearsall, Elgin, Ron Ranch, Briarwood, Deerfield; 77 — George Capoun, Inverness, Stone Dunning, Glen View Club; 78 — Dick Lancioni, Green Acres, Northbrook, Rick Murray, Beverly, Evergreen Park; 79 — Bill Erforth, Skokie, Glenview, Tony Makarek, Ridge, Evergreen Park.

74 — Fred Cook, Naperville, Dion Corisni, Indian Hill, Winnetka; 74 — Joe Zelanzy, Briarwood, Deerfield, Stan Ferguson, Medinah; 74 — Terry Carlson, Fox Lake, Ed Staffan, Plum Tree, Harvard; 74 — Vern Frazer, Westmoreland, Evanston, Jerry Goering, Twin Orchard, Long Grove; 74 — Emil Esposito, Brookwood, Addison, Henry Sajpel, Ridge, Evergreen Park; 74 — Ken Buss, Westgate Valley, Palos Heights, Ron Stokely, Green Acres, Northbrook.

In all, $2,000 in prizes were awarded in the second Branigar Open PGA Tournament.

Bill McDermott made a clean sweep of the prizes when he won a drawing at the dinner after the contest. The prize he won is a week for two at Pipestem Resort in West Virginia. Pipestem is a resort which is also managed by The Branigar Organization.

Harper Campus Quiet During War Escalation

By BETSY BROOKER

A protest cry has risen from campuses across the nation to the new moves in the Vietnam War effort, but at Harper College President Nixon received a quiet vote of confidence.

Opinion on the Palatine community college campus is split, but most of the 30 students interviewed by the Herald stand behind Nixon's position. Next week however, the college newspaper, the Harbinger, will publish an editorial opposing the steps announced this week.

Representatives of the student government are considering sponsoring a "peaceful forum" to protest the new war movement. But the prospect of a full-scale protest demonstration is so remote to many of the students that they laugh at it. It is the nature of a community college student, they say, to be uninvolved in campus life.

"We're not together here," said a Harper student. "You do your school thing and then you leave to go to work or to go home."

"NO ONE CARES," added Gary Wicklund. "The kids aren't organized."

They're scared to do anything around here because they'd get stepped on."

Protests, say many of the students, are simply "a waste of time." They look at the efforts of university students and see no results.

Nixon's speech wasn't viewed firsthand by many of the students, but they had heard about it by the time they arrived at the Harper campus.

Larry Holabek's reaction to the news was typical. "Nixon did the right thing, but it should have been done a long time ago," he said. "We've been doing nothing for too long."

"The war would have been over 10 years ago if we had done this in the 1960s," said Greg Walsh. "We've just been playing games over there."

Walsh doesn't want to see the United States "put down" or made to "look silly." He says we are obligated to support South Vietnam because "we are the only strength they've got."

Taking a strong hawkish position, Ron Ortwerth said the United States should "keep bombing until nothing is left." He is tired of the war.

FEELING LESS aggressive, another student said she favored Nixon's new tactic only because "nothing else worked. Something has to be done."

A Harper sophomore said he would like to see our forces pull out, but he doubts if it is feasible. "I think Nixon made the best move possible. With the exception of the bombing, he is taking a defensive, not an aggressive, position."

Many of the Harper students see the war as an either-or situation. If we can't pull out all together, then we should hit hard.

Rolling Meadows School Costs Lower Than Expected

Rolling Meadows High School will cost about $33,000 less than originally expected, but work remains to be done on the building.

The board of education of High School Dist. 214 approved change orders in the general contract Monday night which subtracts $33,104 from the contract, due to reductions in cost during construction. The changes bring the total general contract to Wil-Fred's Inc., to $3,824,800.

However, representatives of Orput-Orput and Associates, the school architects, said about $300,000 of the contract will be withheld until all work is satisfactorily completed. The architects are now involved in a dispute with the contractor on the condition of the building's gymnasium floor.

The school opened last fall with students from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. It has been designed with an open style with no doors on many classrooms and triangular-shaped rooms. A similar design will be used in Buffalo Grove.

Rolling Meadows Principal Robert Hoese said cracks were left between the boards of the gym floor to allow for expansion of the wood. But architects and school officials believe the boards are "excessively spaced."

ARCHITECTS SAID Monday the contractor who installed the floor, has indicated he does not want to replace the floor, but wants to adjust the humidity in the gym so the boards will expand to fill the cracks. The architects said they found that solution unacceptable, but did not say what is acceptable.

In other action, the board awarded $33,104 worth of equipment bids for Buffalo Grove High School. The bids were for food service and gym equipment, lockers and removable partitions to be used as walls in the classrooms.

The board accepted the low bids for all equipment except for the partitions where it decided to buy partitions for $60,510 from E. F. Hauserman Co., the same company that supplied the partitions for Rolling Meadows High School. The low bidder was Virginia Metal Products Co. at $60,148.
